Police Think Slain Girl May Have Hailed Taxi

Theory Advanced Because None of Her Effects Has Been Found by Searchers

The possibility that a taxicab figured in the diabolical murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff is being considered by the augmented squad of detectives seeking the killer, it was learned last night.

Friends of the 23-year-old War Department clerk, who disappeared in Sunday's cloudburst and whose nude and raped body was found Monday morning, have told police that she was not the kind of a girl who would have accepted a ride from a stranger.

This, however, would not rule out the possibility that she got into a taxicab as the thunderstorm reached its most furious peak.

True, she did not have far to go. When she left her apartment house at 2110 Nineteenth Street Northwest to buy a stick of butter, she had only a block and a half to walk to Peter Duncan's delicatessen store at 1810 Florida Avenue.

Well Protected from Rain

This circumstance, plus the fact that she was protected from the rain by a hooded raincoat and an umbrella, has been cited as an argument to knock down the theory that she would have chosen a ride.

If this be so, if she neither accepted the offer of a ride nor stepped into a taxicab, then she must have been seized and dragged into a house or possibly a garage or a cellar.

No trace has yet been found of the stick of butter or the white lawn umbrella, two articles that police have been dropped during an attack about which Miss Strieff would have told on to if she got into a taxicab.

Tips Pour In

There are arguments for and against all the theories that have been advanced in the baffling case. The detectives who are working on it are wedded to no particular theory. On the contrary they are running down all the ideas and all the tips that are pouring into the Detective Bureau at the rate of one every three minutes, ranging from sound to crackpot.

And the theory that a taxicab was used, at least to haul Miss Strieff's body from the place of attack to the garage in which it was found, is one that definitely is being run down.

Two detectives yesterday journeyed out to a point 3 miles beyond Rockville to investigate a story about a taxicab and a screaming woman.

Their trip took them to the general store of William H. Beam, located on the Travilah Road. Beam and his wife had closed their store around midnight Sunday and had gone into their adjoining house.

Screaming "Something Awful"

Beam said that, just as he was about to put out the lights, he saw a car coming from the direction of Washington. A woman in the car, he said, was screaming "something awful." She was crying out, "Oh, Oh!" Her screams continued as the car passed the Beam place.

Others in the neighborhood reported that they were awakened by the screams. They said the car made a turn in the driveway at the home of Sam Hunter, who was away, and then started back in the direction of Washington. By this time the woman had become silent.

Mrs. Beam noticed that there was a light on top of the car, and there-

Robin Moor Sinking Reunites Wife and 'Missing' Seaman

WIFE'S WELCOME—Mrs. Virgil Sanderlin kisses husband

When Virgil Sanderlin, survivor of the torpedoing of the Robin Moor arrived here by plane yesterday to report to the State Department he was greeted by his wife, who for 16 months had conducted a search for him, the Associated Press said.

He left home February 14, 1940, presumably to go to his job as driver for a Richmond, Va., laundry, and Mrs. Sanderlin had not heard from him until his name appeared among the list of survivors of the Robin Moor.

Knowing of his former service in the merchant marine and his love for the sea, Mrs. Sanderlin had enlisted the aid of seamen's bureaus in the search for her husband, with-

Mary Sibley Guilty of Killing Husband; Faces 20 Years to Life

The jury of 11 men and 1 woman found Mary Sibley guilty of murder in the second degree last night in the shooting of the man she married illegally. The jury returned with its verdict at 11:05 p. m. after deliberating nearly seven hours.

MARY SIBLEY

William R. Russell, 34, of 3100 University Terrace Northwest, the jury foreman, announced the verdict. It carries a sentence of 20 years to life.

At 10:30 p. m. a marshal entered the jury room to ask members if they were ready to retire for the night.

"No," replied the foreman, "we want time for more discussion."

Justice Jessie C. Adkins told the august deliberators in the jury box that if Miss Sibley killed Oscar Rush, 42, on purpose, their verdict should be guilty of murder. The mandatory penalty for first degree murder is death, for second degree 20 years to life in prison.

If the shooting were accidental but resulted from Miss Sibley's wanton carelessness, said the justice, the jury might find her guilty of manslaughter, for which the penalty is imprisonment not more than 15 years. Finally, the jus-

Suspect in Maryland Attack Soon Trapped by State Police

MRS. A. H. NAGERS

Mrs. Edith A. Nagers, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. employe, said the attack occurred at 11:45 a. m. when she returned from a grocery store, to be confronted by a colored man when she opened the front door. At the time she was attired in a play suit similar to that worn by Miss Strieff on her fatal trip to a delicatessen last Sunday.

"The man, without saying a word, hit me in the face with his fist and tried to strike me with a hammer he held in his other hand. I struggled with him and managed to take hold of the hammer," Mrs. Nagers declared.

"When I fell to the floor he kicked me in the head," said the woman, who bore a deep scar on her nose and discolored eyes as well as numerous abrasions on her arms.

Still battling, Mrs. Nagers rolled

Jury Convicts School Teacher In Revenge Flogging of Guide

By the Associated Press

Camdenton, Mo., June 19.—A jury of Ozark menfolk convicted School Teacher Aldythea Keeth of common assault today for her part in the cat-o'-nine-tails flogging of 23-year-old Max Caldwell.

HILDA RHOADES

Circuit Judge C. H. Jackson fined her $100, then set July 23 for hearing of a motion for a new trial.

The jury deliberated two hours after hearing the 26-year-old teacher relate that she struck Caldwell "only three or four times, lightly" and then only because she feared Dr. Robert Murrell would shoot her if she did not obey him. She said the Eldon, Mo., osteopath handed her the whip and told her to "give him (Caldwell) a few lashes for the sake of womanhood."

Miss Keeth was tried on a charge of felonious assault.

The State accused her and her roommate, Miss Hilda Rhoads, 25, of whipping Caldwell for 45 minutes in their Osage Beach cabin home this spring while Dr. Murrell, Miss Rhoad's fiance, held a pistol pointed at the Bagnell, Mo., resort guide.

Miss Rhoads filed a complaint against Caldwell accusing him of rape but later withdrew the charge. She and Dr. Murrell are

New Surtaxes Would Tap Everybody

Ways, Means Group Backs Levy Starting At Five Per Cent; Profits Tax Boosted

(A Typical Case, Page 5.)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A preview of the American taxpayers' share in the national defense effort yesterday was flashed by the Ways and Means Committee in new individual and corporation tax schedules designed to raise $2,480,900,000.

Individual surtaxes starting at 5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, corporate surtaxes beginning at 5 per cent, and a 10 per cent increase in excess profits rates were projected as a starter.

The committee voted "tentative" approval of these, then turned to a study of gift and estate taxes and excises for the remaining $1,019,100,000 needed to round out an unprecedented $3,500,000,000 program.

Low bracket individual taxpayers for the first time would feel the impact of a surtax, more moderate than the Treasury proposed, but in some cases multiplying many times present taxes paid: Middle bracket surtaxes were stepped up to strike hard at salaries between $10,000 and $20,000.

How Surtax Strikes

Continued were the present 4 per cent normal rate, the 10 per cent defense tax and current exemptions and credits, but superimposed on this was the lucrative surtax schedule graduated up to the present maximum 75 per cent on incomes of over $5,000,000. Joint returns by husband and wife were made mandatory.

As practically applied, a childless married couple earning $2,800 would pay $38.50 total tax, against $11 now required. If the same couple earned $5,000, they would pay $308 instead of the $110 now levied. A $7,000 couple would pay $552.20 instead of $189.20 and a $10,000 couple would pay $1,166 instead of $528.

Harder hit would be single persons, with only $800 exemption. A single man earning $900 and now taxed only 44 cents would be billed for $5.94. If he earned $1,000 his present $4.40 tax would be stepped up to $15.40. A $2,500 bachelor would be taxed $189.50 instead of $63.80; if he earned $5,000 he would pay $473 and in the $10,000 class he must put aside $1,469.60 instead of $686.40.

These Are Surtaxes

Here are the proposed surtaxes, beginning where the normal tax now starts, after $800 exemption for single persons, $2,000 for married,

Randolph Opens One-Man Drive To Save Gasoline

Representative Jennings Randolph, chairman of the House District Committee and a man who has a good deal to do with pace-setting in Washington, is having the carburetor on his car adjusted. What's more, he hopes every Washingtonian will follow suit.

The idea behind the Congressman's campaign is to conserve gasoline. Bureau of Standards experts tested Randolph's car this week and pronounced it a gas waster, diagnosing the trouble-maker as a faulty carburetor.

'I thought my car was in good condition," Randolph said. "Now I'm going to have my carburetor adjusted."

Randolph's car was one of ten selected at random and tested. Faulty carburetors and soft tires were found to consume 10 per cent more gasoline than was necessary.

Moscow Testing Barrage Balloons; Clash at Border Reported by Bern

By Daniel T. Brigham
Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, June 19.—A "serious clash" is reported from Bucharest to have occurred in the neighborhood of Przemysl, Poland, two days ago in which, it was said, four German soldiers were killed and three others wounded when a patrol was fired on by Russian troops.

Details are lacking, and there is no official statement from either side on the responsibility of the parties concerned. It may be presumed, however, that this and other reported "incidents" during the last 48 hours along the whole demarcation line form the basis for yesterday's reports of German invasion of Russian-occupied Poland.

The general outline of the clash, as understood here, is as follows:

At 4 o'clock on the morning of June 17 a strong German motorized patrol proceeding southward from the neighborhood of Jaroslav "in connection with practice maneuvers being carried out along the southern end of the demarcation line, inadvertently crossed the San River to a depth of a few hundred yards.

"Apparently discovering its mistake," the outline continues, "the German forces were proceeding to withdraw when they were attacked by a strong force of Russian frontier guards. From about 4:30 to 5:30 the skirmish continued, after which the Germans were able to complete their withdrawal in good order, bringing their four killed and three wounded with them."

Moscow On Alert

Tonight Moscow issued an official announcement that the high command has ordered, "in connection with the usual seasonal maneuvers," the immediate installation of barrage balloons "according to plan" around all the industrial centers of Western Russia, including Moscow, by noon tomorrow.

[In this regard, the Russian army organ Red Star, according to the Associated Press, said an alarm was sounded in the middle of the night and within half an hour Red army men had arrived with balloons and other equipment. A "safe barrage," it said, was immediately put up.

[The party organ Pravda described careful training of fliers manning high altitude fighters and referred to a sham battle against

3 $1-a-Year Men Off to End Burma Road Bottleneck

San Francisco, June 10 (AP)—Three top-flight American truck-line operators will leave soon for the Orient on one of the world's most dangerous transportation jobs—transformation of the Burma Road into a smooth-flowing carrier of war supplies to China.

The three—all men who have so much money you couldn't hire them for thousands—will get $1 a year.

They are Marco Hellman, San Francisco banker and transportation expert; Daniel G. Arnstein, who owns New York City's big Terminal Cab Co., and Harold C. Davis, West Hartford, Conn., who owns Consolidated Motor Trucks.

Their job is to smash the bottleneck in the road that stretches 2,000 miles between Rangoon and Chungking—the only means of transportation remaining into unoccupied China from the coast.

U. S. Seizes First Of 28 Italian Ships

By the Associated Press

The Maritime Commission announced yesterday it had taken formal possession of the first of the 28 sabotaged Italian ships laid up in United States waters.

The commission said its representatives took possession of the ship Clara—6,131 gross tons—at Savannah, Ga.

The Clara, the commission said, will be taken to Newport News, Va., for drydocking before being placed in service.

The commission said it had not been decided to what service the vessel would be assigned.

Least damaged of the 28 laid-up vessels, the Clara already had been repaired at Savannah.

It was the seventh foreign vessel formally taken over by the Maritime Commission under the recently enacted ship seizure bill. Six Danish vessels were taken over last weekend. The commission's records indicate there are 84 foreign vessels which may be requisitioned under the act.

American Officials Ordered to Leave Nine Nazi-Ruled Nations by July 15

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Germany and Italy took revenge on the United States yesterday by ordering American consular staffs out of nine European nations under their control. The Americans have until July 15 to leave.

Germany's action, in retaliation for ejection of consuls from the United States, was fully expected here, but Italy's simultaneous action came as somewhat of a surprise, since Italian consuls have not yet been ordered to leave the United States.

In reply, the United States will serve similar marching orders on Italian consular employes here, it was learned, and will vigorously protest the Axis reprisals.

Relations Wearing Thin

The joint moves by Rome and Berlin were the latest of a series of reprisals and counter-reprisals that have reduced relations between the United States and the European Axis to the bare formality of diplomatic relations.

How long even that formality would be maintained no official could predict last night.

In the last fortnight fund-freezing has been answered by counter-freezing, ejection of consuls has been answered by ejection of consuls, until relations between this country and Great Britain's enemies have reached their most strained point since the World War.

The Germans at the same time also ordered that the American Express Co. close its offices in eight Nazi-controlled countries and that all American employes of the firm leave. Italy reserved the right to issue similar orders, but did not actually serve them. The Nazi action was in answer to American expulsion of German employes of the German Library of Information, the German Railway and Tourist Agencies and the Transocean News Service, all allegedly carrying on propaganda for the Reich.

Orders Affect 86

The American officials were ordered out of Germany, Italy, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, occupied France, Serbia and occupied parts of Greece.

Fully 86 consular officers will have to pack up and leave—17 in Italy and 69 in German-controlled countries—in addition to an uncomputed number of employes of consular offices and those of the American Express Co.

In all these conflicts with the two Axis powers, however, observers considered it notable that no United States action against Japan, third Axis partner, has been taken. It appeared clear to many that efforts were being made to avoid aggravating American-Japanese relations at a time when a new crisis has threatened in the Far East over breakdown of Japanese negotiations for increased shipments of materials from the Netherlands East Indies.

While the United States, in ejecting Germany's consuls and propagandists, made only the broad official charge that they were endangering American safety by improper activities, Germany recited a list of specific charges accusing American officials of espionage and harboring spies.

Among the Americans implicated by the German charges was Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, well known in Washington circles, and granddaughter of a former United States

WPA Slash Burden Placed On Capital

Cut in Rolls Scheduled For July 1; City Faces Problem, Hunter Says

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

Howard C. Hunter, Federal WPA commissioner, admitted late yesterday that many of the 4,000 workers scheduled to be thrown out of jobs here July 1 "probably will be stranded," but said he thought the District's 50 per cent slash in WPA personnel was "relatively fair" considering the city's booming defense activities.

"This is the nearest to a boom town in the country," he declared, adding that Washington will be tied with Connecticut for the heaviest cut in WPA rolls from June to July.

By July 1 WPA rolls throughout the country will be reduced from 1,413,000 workers to about 1,000,000, but defense projects under WPA will be maintained, Hunter said. A national average of 1,000,000, he said, will be maintained during the next fiscal year.

This will bring the national WPA roster to its lowest ebb in history, Hunter reported. The last previous low mark was 1,450,000 in September, 1937.

Local Responsibility Stressed

At his first press conference since announcement of drastic, Nationwide WPA employment reductions, Hunter stated emphatically that responsibility for persons who will be unable to find work must rest with local authorities.

He said Washington's main problem was the fact it had no provisions for direct relief to employable unemployed persons.

"That, in itself, is too bad," Hunter said, but he indicated strongly that no change in plans would be made.

The WPA chief said he was confident many persons now doing research and statistical work could find immediate placements because of the growing demand for clerical help.

C. I. O. Pact Is Said To Include Highest Wage in Car Industry

MEDIATION BOARD panels close to success in settling two labor disputes in defense industries.—Page 6.

The Ford Motor Co., for years the leader in the fight against unions and the last hold-out in the auto industry against collective bargaining, last night was reported on the verge of a complete reversal and becoming the first great auto manufacturer to grant a closed shop.

Reliable sources informed The Post that current negotiations between the company and the C. I. O. United Auto Workers were about to crystallize into a contract which will grant the union such complete recognition that, in return, the company may become the first to use the union label on its cars.

Wages provided in the contract, it was reported, equal the highest in the industry.

The imminence of the contract was also confirmed by Associated Press dispatches from Pittsburgh, where negotiators last night departed for Washington.

Bound to Silence

In Pittsburgh, persistent reports circulated that the union, victor in a recent National Labor Relations Board election, was about to obtain one of its "strongest" contracts.

Although neither side would comment on the report, saying that a "gentlemen's agreement" was made not to discuss terms, one of the conferees declared, "We can say, however, the conferences rapidly are reaching a head."

When negotiations were originally switched to Pittsburgh to permit the attendance of Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, it had been said that the negotiators would probably return to Washington if an understanding were reached.

On arrival here, it was added, efforts would then be made to have the NLRB settle certain orders and

Schulte Assails Price Rise For Milk in Letter to Wickard

By Gerald G. Gross.
Post Staff Writer

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, yesterday addressed strong letters to Secretary of Agriculture Claude M. Wickard and Leon Henderson, Federal price administrator, protesting the proposed cent-a-quart increase for Washington milk.

The boost would cost Washingtonians $1,000,000 a year and is wholly unjustified, wrote Schulte, ranking member of the House District Committee.

Not only would it send home-delivered milk up to 15 cents a quart, he said, but it would jeopardize continuance of the present surplus milk program for needy families.

A Federal subsidy makes 5-cent quarts possible for these people. If the producer got a cent more a quart for this milk, the subsidy would have to be increased—a doubtful possibility—or the price increased to 6 cents.

Schulte pointed out that dairy farmers in this area now receive $3.17 a hundredweight for Class I milk. Add to that an average pre-

D. C. Leaders Honor McCoach At Dinner, Regret His Leaving

Members of Congress and leaders in Washington civic, business and labor circles last night acclaimed Col. David McCoach, jr., at a testimonial dinner tendered the popular former Engineer Commissioner whom the War Department called back to active service in the defense crisis.

Nearly 600 citizens attended the banquet at the Mayflower Hotel. They joined in expressing regret at McCoach's departure and heard speakers point with praise to his list of accomplishments for the Capital.

Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, the principal speaker, epitomized the sentiment of a dozen others who addressed the guests when he stated: "I know of no one who has contributed so much to constructive work" for Washington.

In a time of rapidly expanding population, McCoach brought about a number of vitally necessary improvements for the District, the bank president asserted.

These he mentioned: the new fire alarm system, completion of the new Municipal Center and Municipal Court buildings, and a number of schools; improvements at Gallinger Hospital and the District Jail.

Also to the former Commissioner's credit were the Thomas Circle and Scott Circle underpass projects, alleviation of traffic and highway difficulties, and the fact that he had brought savings to taxpayers by a reduction of interest rates on PWA loans for Washington improvements, Fleming declared.

Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Representa-

Senator, who was held for two weeks by the Germans in Paris last December for allegedly helping British officers to escape from occupied France.

The Associated Press, quoting the official German news agency, D. N. B., said the accusations against the Americans were:

1. That Sidney Redecker, consul at Frankfort-am-Main, in the fall of 1939, made "propaganda" speeches unfriendly to Germany and "passed on information concerning military, secretive war and economy problems."

2. That Consul Orsen Nielson (now first secretary of the Berlin Embassy and presumably exempt from the expulsion of consuls) and Consul Roy Bower in Munich were "active" against Germany and spoke unflatteringly in public about the German government.

3. That Alfred W. Klieforth, consul in Cologne, used code to send information about plans to invade German lowlands in late 1939 and early 1940.

4. That Ralph C. Oetsinger, vice consul in Hamburg in the spring of 1941, engaged in espionage, sketched Hamburg railroad centers, wrote a report on military facilities around Hamburg and "tried to pass on this material."

5. That Iwan Jacobsen, "a former employe of the American consulate general in Oslo," carried documents about German occupation of Norway, which were found on him when he tried to cross the Norwegian-Swedish border on a trip to Moscow in December, 1940.

That Jacobsen admitted getting the reports from Dr. Frank Nelson, also described as a former employe of the consulate-general in Oslo.

6. That Leigh Hunt and Cecil Cross, consuls at Paris, sheltered a British spy named Sutton, during the autumn of 1940. Sutton, it was said, is now serving a long prison sentence.

The employes of the American Express Co., though not accused of any specific misdeeds, were said to have "conducted themselves contrary to the interests of the German Reich."

Two From D. C. Affected

The Axis orders affected two former residents of Washington. They were Dwight W. Fisher, 57, vice consul at Antwerp, Belgium, formerly a student at Columbian College, now George Washington University; and Francis B. Moriarty, 57, vice consul at Turin, Italy, a native of the District, formerly a student at National University and a member of the District bar.

The Germans said they culled their accusations "out of a wealth of material available to the foreign office."

Mrs. Deegan, Hunt and Cross were all recalled last December by the United States at the request of Germany.

The United States order served on Germany, affected 34 Nazi consulates in the United States and Territories, while Germany's countermeasure affected American consulates in Germany and lands under her control.

Expulsion of the Americans from Italy affected seven American consulates there. The official plan to order Italian consular staffs to leave the United States would affect approximately 56 Italian employes at 49 offices.

The first interchange between Italy and the United States on the consular front occurred in February when Italy ordered the United States to close its consulates in two southern Italian cities, Naples and Palermo. This country retaliated in March by ordering Italy to close its Newark, N. J., and Detroit, Mich., offices and to restrict the movements of its consuls to the territories to which they are assigned.

The only United States consular offices in Axis-controlled portions of Europe left open by the German and Italian actions were in Denmark, Bulgaria and Rumania.

The United States also has consulates left in Sweden, Switzerland, Finland, Spain, Portugal, Leichtenstein, Monaco, San Marino, Hungary and unoccupied France.

As the United States prepared its answer to these moves, Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, warned that any attempt to evade the foreign fund freezing order "through persons in the other American republics" or in other countries would bring swift counter action by this Government.

Welles told the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee, of which he is chairman, that the United States is aware that Germany and Italy may attempt to evade the order through Latin-American channels and that the United States is prepared to thwart such attempts.

The Axis expulsion orders affect six American consular officers in Belgium, 10 in occupied France, 37 in Germany, two in Greece, six in Holland, five in Norway, one in Luxembourg, two in Yugoslavia and 17 in Italy.

Robin Moor Seaman Tells of Amazement At Nazi Action, Praises Women's Courage

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BEFORE REACHING LAND—Nine survivors from the sinking of the American steamer Robin Moor in the South Atlantic are shown aboard the rescue ship Ozorio, which picked the men up after they had been afloat for days in a lifeboat. By the Associated Press

Virgil Sanderlin, third engineer of the torpedoed United States freighter Robin Moor, told reporters yesterday that passengers and crewmen on the vessel "couldn't understand" why a German submarine decided to sink the ship in positive knowledge of her American nationality.

Sanderlin, 28-year-old Richmond, Va., seaman who was among 11 survivors rescued by the Brazilian freighter Ozorio after 19 days adrift in a lifeboat, was flown here for conferences with the State and Navy Departments. He said the Robin Moor's seamen and passengers thought at first the submarine which approached in the dark was a British or American destroyer or submarine.

Not until First Officer Melvin Mundy visited the U-boat and returned with its commander's orders to abandon ship did realization dawn, he said, that the submarine was German. Sanderlin was in the small boat which visited the submarine.

Morale of the Robin Moor's passengers and crew was high, the seaman related.

"The women took it very calmly," he said. "After our boat left the other three lifeboats, we were still more concerned about those women and the 3-year-old child than we were about our own shipmates.

"The last we saw of the child he was smiling; everyone knew it was a desperate situation we were in, but they all took it very bravely."

Sanderlin, asked whether he would return to the sea, grinned and said: "I've been at sea for several years. It's my life. So now that Uncle Sam needs me more than ever I think I would be a piker to quit."

He declared the submarine commander's conversation and "German dialect didn't leave us any doubts" about her German nationality—"Even the food he gave us had German printing on it."

out success.

Sanderlin said he saw several years service in the merchant marine before he "got married and settled down" in Richmond in 1933.

"You know how women folks like to keep you at home," he explained, adding that he never had lost his love of the sea and his experience aboard the Robin Moor had not changed his mind.

He said he planned to go to Richmond in a few days and in the meantime he and Mrs. Sanderlin 'might take a little trip somewhere."

But Sanderlin said he expected to go back to sea as soon as he could find a berth.

"I have been at sea for several years," he said, "so now that Uncle Sam needs me more than ever I think I would be a piker to quit now."

Mediation Asked To Avert Strike

By International News Service

Joseph Ryan, head of the A. F. of L. Longshoremen's Union, last night appealed to the National Mediation Board and President Roosevelt to do something to avert a threatened strike of stevedores on July 1 which would tie up shipping in all Atlantic and Gulf coast ports, including cargoes bound for Britain.

"I am as patriotic as anybody and I do not want to do anything that will hamper the defense program in any way," Ryan declared. "But my men have been thrown out of jobs by the Maritime Commission transferring ships to Great Britain, and the Maritime Commission has done nothing for them. The men are impatient and they want to strike, but I am holding them in until all possible mediation sources are exhausted.

"Our position is this: Something must be done for the stevedores and men thrown out of work by transfer of ships to England."

PREXY-PROXY: The President accepted an Oxford doctorate yesterday at Harvard University by proxy for two reasons—one of health and the other of state. His physician, Rear Admiral Ross McIntire, asked the President to stay home and conserve his health. Secretary of State Hull asked the President to stay home and stand by the State Department in this hour of drastic diplomatic action.

STUDY IN SOLITUDE: The President stayed over at the White House again yesterday, ran through a list of morning appointments, caught up on the mountain of paper work awaiting his attention. White House spokesman Steve Early explained the President's absence from the office was an attempt to get 'more solitude' and less interruption. Mr. Roosevelt also likes the idea of working in the privacy of the White House study; is more comfortable over there.

GLOW: For the first time in many weeks the President is glowingly ruddy, has lost the grey sallowness that worried many. The glow is improved health and the ruddiness stems from the Presidential sun lamp.

UNEVENTFUL: The roll of morning callers produced uneventful results. First caller War Secretary Stimson had "nothing to say" as usual. Senator Richard Russell of Georgia's call and purpose was "off the record" and personal. Congressman Joseph Gavagan of New York and Gerald Cruise discussed the St. Lawrence Waterway plans. John B. Blanford came shortly before noon to discuss the buffeted budget of which he is acting director. Presidential Secretary Miss Le Hand lunched in the study with her boss, took some more dictation, handed him letters to sign.

Asset Freezing Adds to Ire In Portugal

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal, June 19.—Portuguese irritation with the United States has become generally vocal in the wake of President Roosevelt's action in freezing this country's assets in the United States.

With banks and exchange agencies refusing to buy dollar checks or notes at any price pending a clarification of the President's action, as they put it, Washington was going out of its way to slap one of the few remaining European neutrals disposed to be friendly with the Anglo-Saxon nations.

Leading Portuguese bankers said their clients were "very annoyed" over the measure, which they described as "unreasonable and unfriendly."

They declared that Portugal was the only country in all Europe which had imposed no restrictions on monetary transactions despite the war.

Exemptions in Prospect

[In Washington, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau yesterday announced conversations have been inaugurated with the representatives of Portugal, Russia, Finland, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland to exempt those nations from President Roosevelt's order "freezing" all continental European assets in the United States.

The Secretary told a press conference that the State Department was conducting the conversations with a view to determining on what terms and restrictions these countries might get exemptions.

He recalled that the President had said these countries would be exempted if they gave "adequate assurances" that the exemptions would not be used in ways that might aid the Axis powers.]

Press Assails U. S.

The freezing of Portuguese assets served to add fuel to the fire caused by President Roosevelt's speech of May 27, which was interpreted here as indicating that the United States has designs on the Azores and Cape Verde Islands.

Since then there has been an unremitting press barrage against the United States, to which O Seculo added a stiff editorial saying there was not one Portuguese "whose patriotic sensibilities do not revolt at such a suggestion of the mutilation of our national territory."

Pope Sends Message On Fordham Birthday

New York, June 19 (INS).—Pope Pius XII, in a tribute to Fordham University which is observing the 100th anniversary of its founding, tonight commented on the "troublous times" that confront the world. In a letter read at an anniversary dinner, the Pope stated in part:

"It is our confident and prayerful hope that all those who in the future will partake of the rare privileges and bounteous advantages offered by your university may be even more fully prepared to encounter with courage and conviction the difficulties and the perils which await them, and which seems likely to be very greatly accentuated in the troublous times which may lie ahead."

World's Best Plane Locater Credited to U. S.

By the Associated Press

The United States is credited with possessing aircraft detection apparatus superior to any in use abroad.

The American apparatus, according to Brig. Gen. George V. Strong, former chief of war plans, apparently is "far in advance of any similar equipment available to any of the belligerents abroad." The aircraft spotting devices adopted by the Army, members of Congress have been told, are effective at well over 100 miles, piercing fog and darkness to give defending fighters at least 15 minutes warning of the approach of hostile aircraft.

With such devices already in large-scale production, the War Department has started construction of a string of fixed and mobile warning stations in both the United States and defense outposts.

First deliveries were scheduled to the Navy this summer of a new super-sensitive apparatus to enable ships of the fleet to detect the approach of both warplanes and enemy surface ships even when they are far out of sight over the horizon.

Full details of the British locator, for the servicing of which the United States has been called on to supply thousands of technicians, have been turned over to the United States long since. American technical and military experts have made reciprocal contributions.

Congress included $8,929,000 in defense funds for detectors to be installed in warning stations on the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coasts, and in Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone. Plans also provided for five mobile Signal Corps companies. The detectors cost $54,700 each.

The first of the mobile stations already is in operation, and received an initial service test last January in antiaircraft war games in the New York area.

On the plea of Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, Congress added $20,650,000 to previous $11,000,000 appropriations to equip the Navy with secret warning apparatus of two types.

250 British Jobs

New York, June 19 (AP).—More than 250 men and six women applied for aircraft-detective duty in England as the civilian technical corps, seeking upward of 15,000 volunteers, swung into operation today.

Cab drivers, factory workers, mechanics, radio engineers, laborers, either telephoned or called at the British consulate for applications, hoping to work with the new radiolocator which spots approaching planes.

Allied Forces Enter Suburb Of Damascus

By the United Press

Vichy, June 19.—Allied forces entered the suburbs of Damascus late today after a 6-mile drive culminating a 12-day invasion from Trans-Jordan, official dispatches from Beirut reported tonight.

The first official admission of a direct threat to the ancient capital of Syria was contained in the report that Hindu colonials and De Gaullist French units had thrust into the outlying fringe of the city.

[An Associated Press dispatch from London said full occupation of the Syrian capital was "expected perhaps in a matter of hours."]

Heavy fighting was reported raging along the southern edge of Damascus, where a Hindu brigade arrived after all-day combat surging back and forth among the promontories commanding the approaches to the city.

Advance Hindu elements late in the day slashed into La Guta Oasis, in the center of which stands the city reputed to be the oldest in the world still inhabited.

The oasis consists of a succession of gardens honeycombed with irrigation canals and hedges. The terrain is unfavorable to warfare and slowed the progress of the invaders.

At dawn the Hindu brigade attacked a defense position 6 miles south of Damascus after a night of combat north of Kissoue. The Hindus took the place of De Gaullists who had failed in a four-day attempt to penetrate the French line guarding Damascus.

Some Prisoners Taken

[An Associated Press dispatch from Beirut quoted the French command as saying the Hindu detachment was driven out again by the French defenders, who captured 160 prisoners.

[The French reported capturing another 80 prisoners in beating back a British attack on the town of Merdjayoun, 40 miles southwest of Damascus on the central front, which was said to have "failed."

[British warships bombed the French coastal positions north of Sidon on the road to Beirut but "without result," the French command said, and airplanes similarly failed to do damage in a bomb attack on Beirut.]

Beirut reports said a "considerable number" of dissident Frenchmen who had been serving under Gen. Charles de Gaulle voluntarily rejoined the French defense forces after Admiral Darlan promised them amnesty in a radio speech last night.

Blistering heat rising as high as 120 degrees was said to be impeding operations in Syria.

Beirut's Fall Predicted

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, June 19.—British sources here, as well as the Jerusalem radio, reported the entry of Australian troops into Damour, less than 24 kilometers from Beirut, and British military sources predicted the fall of that city shortly. Damour had been previously reported occupied.

Foreign and neutral military sources minimized French reports of reinforcements dispatched from North Africa to the Vichy French, stating that virtually all reinforcements have been aerial and these few in number and of inferior quality. British sources reported that Allied reinforcements are still moving up from Palestine and that both Royal Air Force and British naval activity has been intensified.

The same sources said a French counter-attack on Casale Gezin had been beaten off with heavy casualties and the capture of much French materiale.

Russo-German Tension Mounts

bombers at heights obliging the pilots to use oxygen masks.]

Other reported precautions "in connection with these maneuvers" are the sudden calling up of specialists and their immediate transfer to points along the southwestern frontier.

With 27 divisions of German soldiers reported massed just behind the Rumanian frontier with Bessarabia, Bucharest today in a series of posters in all public places is reported to have called on "unnecessary civilians, women and children" to leave the capital "as soon as possible" and despite all official Rumanian denials of "anything unusual in Russo-Rumanian relations," reports reaching neutral military attaches here point to the preparations for an almost immediate action directed toward the east.

Sub Fleet in Readiness

Most notable of these preparations is the concentration of a fleet of small German submarines recently assembled at Constanta and at present lying in that harbor. These, together with "fleets" of "invasion barges" and flotillas of mosquito boats placed at strategic points along the coastline north of that port, it is held here, can only be intended for an eventual thrust by sea against Odessa.

Odessa, Russia's largest seaport on the Black Sea and anchor point of the Dniester line in the south, has been under a state of military emergency for five months; by far the larger part of its civilian population has been evacuated and the Russians are reported to be still working 24 hours daily on fortifications there.

Possession of that port by an invader would enable him to turn the Dniester line and would render relatively simple the cutting off of Russian forces in Bessarabia from the rear.

Once in possession of the Bessarabian provinces and with a foothold on the other side of the Dniester, the carrying out of a pincers movement would be greatly facilitated.

That Russians seem to expect some operation along these lines would seem borne out by the mass evacuation of civilians carried out in those regions recently. According to the Moscow radio last night, during the last 15 days nearly 80,000 peasants have been evacuated "to other agricultural regions of Russia."

In eastern Hungary and Rumania civilian railroad traffic has been practically at a standstill for the last ten days. Reports reaching diplomats here tell of a large shipment of ill-concealed mechanized equipment, including tanks and armored cars, as well as large quantities of artillery. The significant fact of these movements is that they all appear to converge on a line running roughly from Munkacs, Hungary, in the north, to Galatz, Rumania, in the south.

Reported Seeking Bases

By the United Press

London, June 19.—Germany has "suggested" to Russia that she vastly increase delivery of Soviet supplies to the Reich and give Germany naval, air and army bases on Russian territory, a responsible non-British diplomatic source reported tonight.

The information was not confirmed elsewhere.

The German "suggestions," or demands, were said to call for:

1. A substantial increase in Soviet oil and wheat deliveries to Germany.

2. Permission for Germany to establish naval, and especially submarine, shipbuilding [illegible] Soviet ports, including [illegible] and Tallin, because Kiel [illegible] German Baltic shipyard [illegible] too exposed to British [illegible]

3. The establishment of German army and air bases in Bessarabia, the territory which Russia recently took from Rumania and which adjoins her richest oil and wheat fields "as a guarantee that the first two conditions will be fulfilled."

The quarters sponsoring this report expect a new German-Russian agreement in the immediate future in which Josef Stalin will make substantial concessions.

Meanwhile, reliable reports reached London that Germany is using many ships to transport troops along Norway's western coast to the vicinity of Kirkenes for concentrations in northern Norway and Finland, where they would be in a position to thrust toward Murmansk and Archangel if German-Russian hostilities develop.

Pact Equals Battle Victory, Nazis Assert

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 19.—The Turkish-German nonaggresion treaty was hailed tonight as a triumph equal to a military victory, as Adolf Hitler received the Turkish Ambassador in the Reichschancellory.

The envoy, Huesrev Gerede, delivered to Hitler a written message from Turkish President Ismet Inonu.

The treaty was represented as evidence that English influence, already declared eliminated in the Balkans, now was waning in the Near East.

Adolf Hitler telegraphed President Inonu that he was "certain our nations are entering an era of permanent mutual trust." This was in reply to a wire from the Turkish President expressing "deep satisfaction" over the treaty.

Held Blow to Donovan

German commentators called the Turkish pact a personal blow both to Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and to Col. William J. Donovan, unofficial American emissary who recently toured much of Europe.

Both Eden and Donovan were accused of having tried to the utmost to realize an English-American wish to see the war spread on endlessly to the southeast, giving Germany long lines of defense.

Spokesmen said there still was no reaction to the treaty from Soviet Russia.

They spurned suggestions that the pact was forced upon Turkey, saying the foundations had been laid by Hitler in a letter to Inonu even before the Balkan campaign and long before the pressure of German military power was felt in the southeast.

Claim 200 Tanks Wrecked

As to the North African fighting, the German African corps was reported cleaning up the blood-soaked Sollum (Egypt) battlefield. It was said that Nazi troops already had counted 200 British tanks which were destroyed or battered under Axis fire in staving off the British offensive. (A Berlin broadcast asserted 426 British tanks were destroyed.)

German sources claimed that the batteries of a single antiaircraft detachment smashed 80 British panzer units. Antiaircraft guns have been used regularly by the Germans in ground fighting since their worth was proved in France. Their muzzle velocity and fast firing action are especially effective in tank battles, military spokesmen said.

An uncounted number of British field guns, antitank artillery and other war booty also is being assembled in Africa, it was said. The British thrust was described as a "foolhardy" attempt to relieve the besieged British garrison in Tobruk for which the attackers had "paid dearly."

Miss Cochran Flies Bomber Over to Britain

JACQUELINE COCHRAN

New York, June 19 (INS).—First woman to pilot an American-built bombing plane to Britain, Jacqueline Cochran, famous American aviatrix and winner of many flying trophies, arrived safely in Britain today, according to word received in New York tonight.

Miss Cochran made the flight from "somewhere in Canada" to "somewhere in England" as a "first officer" of the ship and co-pilot in the ferry service which has been flying American bombers of Britain for service with the R. A. F.

The famous aviatrix undertook the trip to study Britain's program of using women pilots for ferrying planes and other branches of the British air force with reference to a similar program in the United States as part of America's National defense program.

Miss Cochran was duly accredited under the ferry pilot regulations and passed all examinations qualifying for the flight.

Finns Call All Reserves, Curb Rail Traffic

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, June 19 (AP).—War-worn Finland, fearful of having to take an unwilling role in a new war, prepared for the worst tonight by ordering up all reserves, suddenly promoting cadets to full-fledged officers and restricting rail travel to facilitate troop transport and other military moves.

Finnish leaders are convinced that in the event of war between Germany and Russia, Finland probably will become involved. The chances of such a war seem here to be real enough to justify extensive military measures.

A Presidential decree making all reserve officers regular army officers swiftly followed the call up of reserves last midnight. Further, it was announced, a short cut has been taken in the matter of army and navy cadets, who are being graduated immediately and commissioned as lieutenants instead of first putting in a year's active service, as previously required.

(The British news agency, Exchange Telegraph, reported from Goteborg, Sweden, that travelers from Russia to Finland had told of a "frantic mobilization" along the railway line from Moscow to Leningrad, with the line blocked by troops and material.)

The Finnish people displayed outward calm and quietly obeyed the ordered defense measures.

Siam Ratifies Treaty

Harriman at Cairo To Speed U. S. Arms

Cairo, Egypt, June 19 (AP).—W. Averell Harriman, expediter of United States aid to Britain, arrived here tonight with his party of experts.

The group was welcomed at the airport by United States Minister Alexander Kirk. Harriman is here to discuss receipt of American equipment now en route to British Middle East forces. In his party were Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, Col. G. A. Green and R. P. Meiklejohn.

Five Auto Firms Fail to Reduce Prices

Five leading automobile manufacturers, requested last week by Leon Henderson, price administrator, to withdraw recent price advances because they were not consistent with the earnings of the companies and tended toward inflation, have taken no action and have not even communicated with the administrator, it was learned yesterday.

Henderson's office probably will do nothing until some reply has been received. It was learned, however, that the office will proceed cautiously, as it is feared that forced price reductions might be followed by a lowering of the quality of the products through the use of inferior materials and the elimination of accessories now considered standard equipment.

The companies involved are the Ford Motor Car Co., the Chrysler Corporation, the Studebaker Corporation and the Hudson Motor Car Co. It was learned further yesterday that informal conversations had been held with smaller companies, but no definite decisions had been reached in those cases.

French Officer, Who Led Suicide Force, Feted Here

Robert Gerard, French military officer who commanded a "suicide" force covering a retreating army during the German invasion a year ago, was honored at a dinner here last night.

Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, was also a guest of honor at the affair in the Mayflower Hotel, and officers of the Army general staff attended.

While in Washington Gerard is a guest of Capt. Toby Miller, a World War officer who met Gerard in France 23 years ago.

Churchill Refuses Commons' Plea to Air Shipping Situation

By the Associated Press

London, June 19.—Prime Minister Churchill resisted demands today in the House of Commons for public debate on the gravity of the shipping situation by insisting it was impossible to state the government's position "except under the protection of the secret session."

Announcing that the government will review the Battle of the Atlantic at an early date, he said:

"It would be a great pity if we were forced to conduct discussions on these most grave matters with every word quickly reaching the enemy. No justice could be done to the argument in such circumstances."

Former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha joined others in asking the prime minister to reconsider, reminding Churchill of "the effect created in the United States when he began to publish our shipping losses on a monthly instead of a weekly basis."

Hore-Belisha said, "It is most important to get the full cooperation of public opinion in the United States in order to get further help from that country, if possible in convoy."

He asked, in view of President Roosevelt's statement that losses were thrice the capacity of British yards to replace them, "is it not desirable that we face them (the facts) with candor and resolution?"

Laborite Emmanuel Shinwell also appealed the decision, saying:

"Many conflicting and, indeed, alarming statements, have been made by responsible statesmen—President Roosevelt, for example, the first lord of the admiralty and many others—and it is desirable to remove this confusion which keeps the public in the dark."

The prime minister told the House it was not convenient for him to make a war review today.

House Limits Debate Upon Labor Bill

The House Rules Committee yesterday voted privileged status for a House bill defining picket interference with defense workers as "sabotage," but a Senate committee delayed action on the Administration's "draft property" follow-up.

The rule granting right-of-way for House defense labor amendments to the Senate-passed Connally bill prescribed four hours' debate. Leaders were asked to call the drastic measure before the House on Monday.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee, meanwhile, completed the second day of hearings on the draft property measure without action. Additional witnesses from the Army and OPM were summoned for further hearings that may continue a week.

The bill empowers the President to requisition any facilities and articles needed in defense efforts, but moves were under way in committee to specify items to be requisitioned and place a time limit on the power.

Seeking data on the extent of subcontracting under the defense program, the committee questioned Lieut. Col. Ray M. Hare, chief of the facilities division of the Army-Navy Munitions Board, and Robert L. Mehornay, chief of the OPM defense contract service.

Hare said 177,000 sub-contracts have been let. He backed up the War Department's request for broad requisitioning powers, stressing needs to draft machine tools for defense work.

Brenda Marshall Will Marry Again

Hollywood, June 19 (AP).—Actress Brenda Marshall said today she and William Holden, young film player, hoped to be married within a few weeks.

She revealed their engagement shortly after the entry of her final divorce decree from Richard Houston Gaines, of the New York stage, who she married in 1936. Custody of their 3-year-old daughter, Virginia, was given to the 24-year-old actress. Holden has not been married

Roosevelt Accepts by Proxy Oxford Degree From Halifax

By International News Service

Cambridge, Mass., June 19.—America's will to fight for freedom's maintenance was reaffirmed today when President Roosevelt accepted, by proxy, the unprecedented award of an honorary doctorate of civil laws made by Oxford University in the yard of Harvard University.

"We, too, born in freedom and believing in freedom, are willing to fight to maintain freedom," Mr. Roosevelt declared in an address read by his military aide, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, in response to the Oxford citation intoned by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador and chancellor of Oxford.

"We, and all others who believe as deeply as we do, would rather die on our feet than live on our knees," the President continued.

The honorary degree was conferred on Mr. Roosevelt immediately following Harvard's annual graduation ceremonies during which Lord Halifax was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. The British Ambassador was held to typify a "stalwart nation unyielding before the blows of tyranny."

"Championship of Humanity"

Then Lord Halifax, in black and gold robes of state as Oxford's chancellor, conducted an extraordinary convocation of eight other Oxford officers and delegates in the yard of the President's alma mater.

Oxford's tribute to the President, Lord Halifax read, was conferred "in lively recollection of his stand for liberty and of his steadfast championship of humanity and law."

Gen. Watson responded that the President had requested him to bring to his "old associates at Harvard University and especially to his new associates of the University of Oxford," a message as follows:

"In days like these, therefore, we rejoice that this special convocation, in breaking all historic precedent, does so in the great cause of preserving the free learning and civil liberties which have grown, stone upon stone, in our lands through the centuries. That is why I am proud to be permitted to have a part.

"It is right that this unfettered search for truth is universal and knows no restriction of place or race or creed.' There have been other symbols throughout the years and in the present.

"The American Ambassador in Britain gave recognition to this recently when he said:

"'Only this week in London, in the early morning hours of the Sabbath Day, enemy bombs destroyed the House of Commons room of the Parliament and smashed the altar of Westminster Abbey. These two hits seemed to me to symbolize the objectives of the dictator and the pagan. Across the street from the wreckage of these two great historic buildings of sate and church, St. Gauden's statue of Abraham Lincoln was still standing. As I looked at the bowed figure of the Great Emancipator and thought of his life, I could not help but remember that he loved God, that he had defined and represented democratic government and that he hated slavery.

"'And as an American I was proud that he was there in all that wreckage as a friend and sentinel of gallant days that have gone by, and a reminder that in this great battle for freedom he waited quietly for support for those things for which he lived and died.'

"We, too, born to freedom and believing in freedom, are willing to fight to maintain freedom.

"We, and all others who believe as deeply as we do, would rather die on our feet than live on our knees."

Honorary degrees were also conferred by Harvard on Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin; Ernest O. Cambridge, Mass., June 19.—Weapons produced by American industry assure democracy of "final victory," Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, said today at the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association a few hours after he had received the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Lord Halifax declared that democracy never would be defeated by "so foul and vile a thing as Nazism." He said that the "lovers of freedom everywhere" have been greatly encouraged by the declarations of President Roosevelt "in terms that no man can mistake" concerning the stand the United States has taken in the war.

(Handbills, signed "the Harvard Student Union," were distributed among the crowd denouncing the awarding of a degree to Lord Halifax as a "degree for imperialism and for war," the Associated Press said.)

Japan Deters U.S. From War, Ishii Says

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, June 19.—Koh Ishii, director of the official Japanese information bureau, declared tonight that although "it is almost certain that the United States will enter the European war on the British side," she is now strongly deterred by Axis-partner Japan's dominance in the Far Eastern seas.

Addressing the central cooperative council, Ishii said, "Japan as a partner in the tri-partite alliance, remains dominant on the other side of the Pacific and is playing an important role as a strong deterrent to her (United States) entry into the war."

"As things stand," he asserted, "the United States will think twice . . . or thrice."

Sees Need of Decision

Growing international tension and the general tide of events are making it essential to the United States to reach a decision, Ishii said.

"The future attitude of the United States is wholly in the hands of Roosevelt . . . it must be borne in mind that he is invested with the right of supreme command as a constitutional right."

Asserting that President Roosevelt has announced "United States readiness for unlimited patrol," Ishii added, "he said nothing of Japan, presumably under some political consideration. We must be cautious on this point."

Axis Ties Stand

The spokesman said Japan's primary goal remained "construction of a new order in East Asia. Though rumors are rife about Japanese foreign policy . . . Japan has not budged from her established road since conclusion of the three-power (Axis) pact."

In his hour-long discussion, Ishii said although United States aid to Britain has increased tremendously, Germany deliberately is avoiding any step which would stir up the United States.

He pointed out that the military situation in Europe is vastly different today from the World War, when the A. E. F. was able to land on the continent.

Song to Swell Bond Sales To Go on Radio

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday that a theme song written for the defense savings campaign by Irving Berlin will be introduced in a radio program tomorrow night.

The song, entitled "Any Bonds Today?", will be sung by Barry Wood on a program beginning at 8 p. m. (Eastern standard time) over C. B. S.

The words are:

The tall man with the high hat
And the whiskers on his chin
Will soon be knocking at your door
And you ought to be in.
The tall man with the high hat
Will be coming down your way.
Get your savings out
When you hear him shout
"Any bonds today?"

Chorus:
Any bonds today?
Bonds of freedom, that's what I'm selling.
Any bonds today?
Scrape up the most you can.
Here comes the freedom man
Asking you to buy a share of freedom today.
Any stamps today?
We'll be blessed if we all invest
In the U. S. A.
Here comes the freedom man
Can't make tomorrow's plan.
Not unless you buy a share of freedom today.

Patter:
First came the Czechs—and then came the Poles;
And then the Norwegians with three million souls.
Then came the Dutch—the Belgians and French.
Then all of the Balkans with hardly a chance.
It's all in the book—if only you look.
It's there if you read the text.
They fell everyone—at the point of a gun.
America mustn't be next.

Any bonds today?
All you give
Will be spent to live
In the Yankee way.
Scrape up the most you can.
Here comes the freedom man
Asking you to buy a share of freedom today.

Ninth Straight Raid Hammers French Ports

By the Associated Press

London (Friday), June 20.—R. A. F. bombers escorted by a strong force of fighter planes heavily assaulted German-held French coastal positions last night for the ninth straight night, hitting docks and oil tanks at Le Havre and a German supply ship, the British air ministry announced today.

One German fighter plane was shot down and the British came through unscathed, the communique said.

"Very little opposition was encountered. . . . Docks at Le Havre were attacked by the aircraft; bombed and hit an enemy supply ship escorted by destroyers near the French coast."

The blasts were heard on the English side of the Channel.

The attack on Le Havre occurred just before nightfall and after dark the British still were hammering at areas southwest of Boulogne which also were attacked the night before.

A German military camp was the special target Wednesday night.

The Nazi naval base of Bremen, Germany, and the port of Brest, France, where three German warships, the Scharnhorst, Gneisenou, and Prinz Eugan have been reported sheltering, also were attacked Wednesday night.

Nazi Suicide Squad Fights In the Desert

Richard B. McMillan
United Press Staff Writer

With British Forces in Western Desert, June 19 (U.P.).—German suicide squads of crack machine-gunners, given seven days of rations and ordered to fight to the last bullet, have had their baptism of fire in the battle of Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass which raged through the past four days.

The men were recruited and trained as model parachute troops and dive bomber airmen. The newest German robots were placed in machine gun nests at vital desert points, given food and water for seven days, and ordered to fight to the end.

I watched the seven-day-ration men in the great battle which has been going on in the western desert. They used all types of machine guns, particularly the heavy naval pompoms which throbbed in the moonlight night like a huge native war drum.

I watched British Tommies and Indian hillmen advance under intense fire and climb the dusty crevices of Hellfire Pass. It was covered with a pall of snuff-colored desert dust mixed with the grayish-black smoke of bursting shells.

It seemed that the whole escarpment side wall was spouting fire.

Two attacks by the British almost mastered the pass, but the seven-day-ration men held out in the isolated one-man forts in inaccessible clefts in the Wadis.

As the molten sun disappeared, the suicide Nazis began signaling to their distant comrades for aid.

The signal system used by the Germans was similar to that of parachutists. The signals indicated that all was well or help was needed at a certain point. In the latter case efforts were made to send supplies or reinforcements under cover of darkness, avoiding British fire behind the boulder-strewn pass.

During the second British attack nearly every German was killed but the Nazis succeeded in refilling the isolated forts with fresh men.

Gifts Boost Blood Bank Fund $345

Additional receipts totaling $345.35 swelled the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank fund to $7,174.80 yesterday.

Largest item among the late contributions was a $100 bill brought to The Post by Mrs. Anita Ellis, president, and Mrs. Marie Gardiner, child welfare chairman, of James Reese Europe Auxiliary Unit No. 5, American Legion.

The women's auxiliary raised its money by holding a dance benefit. Treasury Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 35 contributed $50, the proceeds of a card party. Other newly received Legion gifts include $43 by Vincent B. Costello Post No. 15 and $25 by James E. Walker Post No. 26.

The American Legion, cosponsor of the blood bank drive with The Post, WJSV and the Washington Bridge League, has now turned in $3,130.63 of the $7,174.80 total.

Other late contributions are as follows:

Welfare Club of Arlington, Va., $50; Girls Friendly Society, $5; Ladies Auxiliary, V. S. C., $5; Grant-Weightman P.-T. A., $2; C. C. S. Club of Washington, $13.50, and Alpha Lambda Phi, $16.10.

Hutchinson, medical director of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., Washington, was named program chairman at an organization meeting of the medical section, American Life Convention, yesterday at Hot Springs, Va. Dr. W. F. Blackford, of Louisville, Ky., was elected chairman of the section.

Ford Reported Agreeing to Closed Shop complaints issued against the company.

The seriousness of these complaints, it was learned, and the strong case which the NLRB is said to have against the huge concern—the backlog of years of antiunion efforts—may be the reason for the company's aquiescence to a contract far exceeding anything hitherto negotiated by the union with one of the automobile industry's leaders.

Vehemently Antiunion

Should the company grant a closed shop, or even a union maintenance provision, the act would represent a reversal in position doubly astounding in view of the bitter strike called by the U. A. W. no later than last April.

The strike, lasting ten days, was the result of union claims that the company was continuing its efforts to break the C. I. O. organization, and had declined even to bargain with the union. During the strike, and before it, Henry Ford, the founder; Harry Bennett, personnel director, and I. A. Capizzi, general counsel, repeatedly voiced their determination never to bargain with the union, denied that it had any claim to representation, and denounced the C. I. O. in the most vehement terms.

The strike was ended April 12, on agreement by the company to a Labor Board election. Later, the company unavailingly protested the proposed balloting.

Woman Gone 18 Hours Reports She's Safe

U. S. Considers Rationing and Price Control To Ease Effects of Threatened Oil Shortage

In desperate last-minute efforts to cushion the effects of an "inevitable" oil shortage on the East Coast this fall and winter, the Government moved yesterday to work transportation facilities to the limit, lay plans for rationing the curtailed supply and prevent prices from rising to scarcity levels.

The principal developments:

1. Secretary of Interior Ickes, petroleum coordinator for defense, disclosed yesterday that he was considering ration cards for gasoline and warned that he would do his utmost to prevent "a drop of oil" from being shipped "to any place, anywhere," from the Atlantic Coast.

2. Price Administrator Leon Henderson asked 800 leaders of the oil industry, gathered here for an emergency conference on their serious problems, to set a voluntary ceiling on oil prices at approximately present levels.

3. President Roosevelt sent to Congress a message asking that current ship inspection laws be waived in order, some officials declared, to allow an increase in the legal load of oil on tankers.

4. Francis Biddle, acting Attorney General, hinted to the conference of industry leaders that they need not fear anti-trust law penalties in carrying out readjustments in the industry in the light of the national emergency.

5. Mississippi and Ohio River tugboat and barge operators disclosed that the OPM has asked a survey of available water carriers to bring oil 2,000 miles from the Louisiana fields to the Upper Ohio, where transshipment by rail, truck and pipeline to the East Coast would be undertaken.

Declines to Go Into Detail

Ickes' reference to ration cards came at a press conference given over mainly to discussion of the problem created on the Atlantic Coast by the recent transfer to the British of 50 tankers—about one-fifth of the fleet—from the Gulf Coast-Atlantic Coast run.

In answer to a question, the petroleum coordinator admitted that the card system was "one of the things under consideration," but declined to give details of how it might be worked out, saying that he himself did not know yet.

Commenting on his recent action in blocking an oil shipment from Philadelphia to Japan, Ickes asserted that in view of the East Coast shortage, no oil should be exported from this coast. He emphasized that the British could get their supplies directly from the Gulf ports.

Henderson told the oil men's conference that prices rises in oil, because of the scarcity, would breed an inflationary cycle. He said that in recent meetings with representatives of industry and his office, it was generally agreed that no further substantial increases in gasoline prices in the Eastern area were called for.

Asks Prices Be Kept Down

He asked that no oil company advance prices without first consulting the Office of Price Administration.

Biddle told the group that he was confident that an antitrust suit now pending in the District of Columbia court and leveled against the oil industry, "can be worked out satisfactorily to your industry and to us."

Enforcement of the antitrust laws, he indicated, had changed in the light of the emergency. He cautioned, however, against efforts to circumvent the law.

Another speaker at the conference, Deputy Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies, apparently referred to the President's ship inspection message when he said that "the necessary legislation to enable the heavier loading of tank ships is well on its way, and its passage is expected this coming week."

Proposes Laws Be Waived

In his message the President pointed out that water-borne commerce has been "hampered" by the restrictive provisions of certain inspection laws, and that although they should be strictly enforced during normal times, "the priority of national security and national defense must be recognized" in the present emergency.

He proposed that broad authority be granted to the Secretary of Commerce to waive the laws in the face of an emergency.

Another objective of the proposed waiver, it was said in informed officials, was to cut the required number of experienced seamen on merchant ships in order to alleviate the shortage of qualified men. Lifting of existing passenger carrying limits may also be an objective, it was said.

At his press conference, Ickes scoffed at reports that the railroad industry could compensate for the tanker shortage by carrying oil by tank car.

WPA Slash Burden Placed on Capital

few industrial activities and that most persons who will be laid off are not qualified for Government positions, Hunter declared:

"I don't think the Federal WPA can take into consideration local facilities to care for these people."

Hunter also revealed that some cuts would be made locally in administrative and supervisory posts in addition to project workers, but earlier had announced such cuts were not contemplated where the jobs were essential to carrying out WPA programs.

The Commissioner said he planned to retain all cultural projects—art, music and writing—because of their close connection with national morale.

District WPA Administrator Paul Edwards had announced that these projects would be eliminated here.

"I have not seen Mr. Edwards' list of project reductions," said Hunter, offering assurances that he intended to continue the cultural programs in Washington as well as elsewhere.

Although the District ranks with Connecticut for the heaviest slash between this month and next, it rates fourth in the country for reductions in WPA employment over July 1 of last year, Hunter declared.

Washington faces a 59.4 per cent cut in personnel over July 1 of 1941, running fourth to Connecticut, Rhode Island and Maryland. Maryland's slash from last year will be 64.9 per cent, he added.

Shutdowns Planned

Hunter also revealed that he planned to close down completely all WPA projects in 1,500 counties throughout the country within 30 days.

"Under our schedule of reductions," he said, "some counties would have only three or four project workers and it would be foolish to carry them."

Hunter said the Federal PWA, in spite of the forthcoming curtailment, planned to expand its reemployment and training program. By August 1, he declared, it is hoped to build this project up to 50,000 persons. It now has 32,000, Hunter added.

In line with this, a local WPA training course for typists, stenographers and "white collar" workers opened yesterday at Central High School. The object, it was explained, is to provide workers with sufficient background to help them land jobs in private employment.

Bans Weeding-Out Process

In all sections of the country, Hunter stated, he has issued instructions to close down projects entirely rather than weed out workers and continue programs with a reduced personnel. As far as possible, he said, the projects to be eliminated will be of nonessential character.

The entire WPA curtailment program, Hunter told reporters, was predicated on expanding defense activities which have increased chances for private employment. He said chances for outside jobs are now better along the Eastern seaboard than in any section of the country.

He expressed an opinion, however, that none of the States or cities scheduled to receive drastic slashes will be able to absorb all their jobless in private employment.

Commenting on the District Commissioners' first reaction to announcement of the local 50 per cent employment cut, Hunter observed: "They appeared more concerned over the loss of certain services than over the persons who would be without work."

The Commissioners had pointed out that all 1942 budget estimates had been fixed and if forced to accept the curtailment, extensive revisions must be made in order to carry on scheduled programs.

Train Hits Truck In Md.; 1 Killed

Lansdowne, Md., June 19 (AP).—A truck driver was killed and his helper seriously injured today when a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train struck a truck halted on a crossing in Lansdowne.

The dead man was identified as Charles F. Mason, of Irvington. His helper, Marlin E. Selmey, 19, Baltimore, suffered internal injuries, cuts and bruises. He was taken to St. Agnes Hospital. Railroad officials said the train was a special from Washington to the Delaware Park Race Track. Police said Mason apparently stopped on the railroad tracks to wait for a slow freight to go by.

From the witness stand, Miss Keeth related this story of the flogging:

Dr. Murrell, in a "vicious" mood, told Caldwell to "start talking" soon after the two entered the cabin and the guide said "What do you mean?"

"You know what I mean. Can you take your medicine like a man?"

"Max again said he didn't know what Dr. Murrell meant but said 'if you've got anything to give me, I can take it like a man.'"

The osteopath, holding a pistol trained on Caldwell, made the latter remove his shirt and get on the floor. Then he handed a cat-o'-nine-tails to Miss Rhoads. Using both hands, she whipped Caldwell several minutes, then, exhausted, she stopped to rest. During that intermission, Dr. Murrell handed cigarettes to Caldwell and Miss Rhoads and they smoked.

Several times during the whipping, Miss Keeth testified, Dr. Murrell told Caldwell he wished the young man would "try to resist"—that it would "be a pleasure to kill him."

$2,000,000 to $5,000,000	74
Over $5,000,000	75

Staff experts estimated surtaxes would yield $1,055,700,000. Compulsory joint returns would produce another $304,600,000, or a total increase in individual income tax revenue of $1,360,300,000. This would swell the present $2,223,300,000 return from individuals source to $3,583,600,000.

Stam's Views Predominate

Like the excess profits tax, the approved schedule was a compromise between the recommendations of the Treasury and the views of Colin F. Stam, the committee's staff expert, with Stam's suggestions predominating.

Digging into excess profits for another $1,118,400,000 increase in revenue, the committee increased excess profits tax rates by ten percentage points in each bracket. Thus the minimum profits rate of 25 per cent would become 35. The maximum rate would be raised from 50 to 60 per cent.

Deduction of the regular corporate taxes and surtaxes would be disallowed in computing excess profits taxes, but to prevent a tax on a tax, the amount of excess profits tax paid would be deducted in computing corporate tax and surtax.

Corporations would be allowed an invested capital credit of 8 per cent on the first $5,000,000 of capital, and 7 per cent on capital in excess of that. To reach profits on defense contracts, the committee adopted a special 10 per cent excess profits tax applying on companies whose returns were extremely low during the base (1936-39) period but have recently jumped.

Simple Example

In tax language, the 10 per cent levy applies "on the difference between the rate of return in the base period and the lower of (a) the sum of the excess profits credit plus the unused excess profits credit computed on the proposed law basis, or (b) the excess profits net income in the taxable year less the specific exemption of $5,000."

For a simple example, staff experts said a corporation which made 2 per cent on its invested capital during the base period years and made 4 per cent in the taxable year, would take the difference between the two, or 2 per cent, and apply the 10 per cent tax. This change was estimated to raise $65,000,000.

The committee approved the Treasury's corporate surtax plan, levied on top of the existing corporate income taxes, designed to tap income from billions in partially exempt Government securities held by corporations. This plan imposes a corporate surtax of 5 per cent on surtax net incomes of $25,000 or less, and a 6 per cent surtax on income in exces of that. This would yield $651,800,000.

Committeemen said the increase in corporation taxes would reduce the yield from individual income taxes by about $199,400,000. Deduction of excess profits taxes in computing corporate income taxes would reduce normal corporate tax yields by $514,800,000, they said. With these allowances, the net revenue from all changes voted yesterday was estimated at $2,480,900,000.

One favored estate and gift tax plan, still under consideration, would raise another $117,000,000. Most of the balance to bring the total of the bill to $3,500,000,000 will be raised from a wide range of excises.

Blackout in Prison, Too

London (U.P.).—A light switched on in a cell by a convict at Lewes Prison led to the Governor, Gilbert Hair, being summoned for a blackout offense. A police constable said that he expressed regret and said "We should not be more exempt than the civil population."

How New Surtax Would Work

Here is how a married person with one dependent, earning $3,500, would work out his income tax under the new surtax schedules approved by the Ways and Means Committee.

He would first compute his 4 per cent normal tax, which is unchanged. Under existing law, he would have $2,000 personal exemption plus $400 credit for the one dependent. Also, against the normal tax, he would be allowed a 10 per cent earned income credit, which would be $350. This would give him total exemptions and credits of $2,750. Therefore, he would pay 4 per cent on $750. His normal tax would be $30.

On top of this he would have to pay the new surtax. Against this surtax he would be allowed the personal exemption of $2,000, plus the $400 credit for one dependent, or total exemptions and credits against surtax of $2,400. Deducting this amount from his total $3,500 income would leave $1,100 subject to surtax. This would fall in the first bracket of 5 per cent. Thus his surtax would be $55.

He would add his $30 normal tax to the $55 surtax, making a total of $85. But he still must pay a 10 per cent defense tax on his total tax liability. This would add 10 per cent of $85, or $8.50. So his total tax would be $93.50.

Potshot to Scare Boys Wounds One

A 47-year-old fruit stand operator was arrested on an assault charge yesterday after police reported he fired a .22 repeater rifle into a group of colored boys and slightly wounded one.

Police quoted the man, Samuel Polansky, as saying boys had been stealing fruit from his stand at New York Avenue and Bladensburg Road Northeast, and he fired into a group "to scare them away."

William H. Jones, 16, of 405 M Street Northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital for a superficial abdomen wound and dismissed.

OPM Curtails Nonmilitary Use of Rubber

The OPM yesterday announced steps to provide more steel for civilian uses, but at the same time ordered a cut in the use of rubber that may vitally affect the supply of tires for nonmilitary vehicles.

Confronted with threatened shortages in both crucial raw materials, the OPM ordered that in the future rubber be rationed to processors in amounts almost 25 per cent less than they are presently consuming. At the same time, it revealed completed proposals to expand steel capacity on the Pacific Coast and in the Rocky Mountain area by 1,356,000 tons annually.

The rubber rationing, it was declared, will force the Nation's major rubber companies to cut their current rate of consumption of 817,000 tons annually to 600,000 tons.

Although it was not known immediately exactly how the program would affect the manufacture of auto tires, which consume 70 per cent of all rubber imported, or the manufacture of 30,000 more civilian items made from rubber, it was assumed that a sharp curtailment was inevitable.

The action, the announcement said, is necessary to "assure the completion of adequate stock piles."

"There is no shortage of rubber at the present time," the OPM added, "and imports are presently at the highest rate in history. Supplies in the hands of dealers, also, are at a high level. However, control is felt to be necesary because of shipping uncertainties and the need of building adequate stock piles as soon as possible."

The program will be administered through a general preference order, in which individual processors will be told to cut, on a percentage basis, the amount of rubber they normally use. Handling the program are the OPM, the RFC's Rubber Reserve Co., and the Office of Price Administration. The latter's functions, it was assumed, are to determine the allocations among competiting civilian demands and to insure against price rises.

The plans for steel expansion, the OPM announced, have been submitted by established steel-making and steel-finishing companies to enlarge their facilities in the far West at a total cost of about $100,000,000.

Principal expansions will be made by the Columbia Steel Co., a United States Steel Co. subsidiary, the Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp., and the Bethlehem Steel Co. Six other companies will also enlarge facilities.

The expansion of more than 1,500,000 tons annual ingot capacity, and additional finishing capacity, is just three times more than that recommended by Gano Dunn, former OPM steel consultant, in his special report to the President. Actually, it was indicated, the OPM's total steel expansion program calls for an additional 10,000,000 tons annually.

In another conservation move, E. R. Stettinius, OPM priorities director, issued an order yesterday requiring stainless steel makers to reduce the amount of primary nickel they use to 40 per cent of the total nickel content. Effect of the order will be to force the use of scrap nickel to make up the remaining 60 per cent.

Mediators Hope to End Two Labor Disputes

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Mediation Board efforts appeared close to success last night in settling two of the defense program's most serious labor disputes, one involving a threatened strike at the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft Co.'s propeller division and the second concerning the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Co., sole makers of essential aircraft parts.

Agreements in both cases were expected today according to forecasts of board aides.

Less hopeful, however, was a hot controversy which raged behind closed doors of the A. F. of L. machinists union local in San Francisco, which for six weeks has struck against 11 shipyards holding half a billion dollars of defense orders.

Local in Bitter Dispute

The local, led by Harry Hook and E. F. Dillon, appeared yesterday to be split over proposals of the union's international president, Harvey W. Brown, to return to work.

Brown had gone to San Francisco after promising President Roosevelt that he would seek to end the outlaw strike of the rebellious local. After a five-hour mass meeting on Wednesday night and early yesterday bitterness became acute, the Associated Press reported, also that Brown might be obliged to suspend the organization's charter.

Observers said Brown and Hook had engaged in an angry exchange, followed by bitter wrangling over Brown's proposals that the unionists' grievances be left to the Defense Mediation Board for settlement.

Following the meeting, all officials refused to comment and would not state whether a back-to-work vote had been taken or even whether another membership meeting would be called.

Meantime, the board awaited the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co.'s acceptance or rejection of board proposals that the company sign a master contract, including closed-shop provisions, and thus settle a dispute of the company with the San Francisco machinists and 4,000 other A. F. of L. metal-trades craftsmen.

If the company accepts the board's recommendations, issued Wednesday, it was believed in some quarters that there will be a stronger likelihood that the machinists will agree to Brown's back-to-work call. Although the machinists' are striking against ten other yards in the Golden Gate area besides Bethlehem, the latter conducts the largest operations and is considered the key firm in the dispute.

Lumber Case Revived

Another board case, involving 22,000 lumber mill and logging camp workers in the Puget Sound, Wash., area, was revived yesterday when employers wired the board that they rejected its proposal to conduct direct collective bargaining negotiations with the workers, represented by the C. I. O. International Woodworkers of America.

Mediation Board spokesmen explained that the employers' rejection meant only that the board would be obliged immediately to appoint an impartial commission to investigate the industry and make recommendations on wages and working conditions. This commission was provided for in the original board proposals to settle the dispute. Subsequently, when conditions seemed more hopeful, the board had suggested direct negotiations as an alternative.

The employers' rejection of the proposal to negotiate followed a general back-to-work movement of the employes, who for long weeks had continued their strike in the face of public recommendations of the board, backed by President Roosevelt's emergency declaration and appeals of C. I. O. President Philip Murray. The strike, called in early May, was ended last week. Issues were union recognition, wage increases and vacation allowances.

In the Curtiss-Wright dispute, where it was reported that only the question of wording a union maintenance proposal remained to be settled, about 960 workers are involved. The factory, at Neville Island, Pa., manufactures airplane propellers. The C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee, seeking wage increases, job reclassifications and clarification of union status, had postponed a threatened strike at the board's request.

46,000 Affected at Bohn

In the Bohn Aluminum case, a three-day strike of C. I. O. aluminum workers was ended at the board's request. About 4,600 men are employed in the company's Detroit plants.

Other major labor developments of the day included the signing of a two-year wage contract between Northern coal operators and the C. I. O. United Mine Workers. The signature is the result of negotiations begun early last March to put into effect temporary agreements raising the day wage rate in the North from $6 to $7.

The U. M. W. and Southern operators, whose long dispute led to the 30-day coal stoppage in April, have not yet signed an agreement, despite a Mediation Board proposal making recommendations on the principal issues. Union officials yesterday expressed themselves as hopeful, however, that deadlocked issues would be resolved and negotiations concluded within a few days.

In Minneapolis, a serious inter-union battle appeared to be brewing yesterday as an aftermath of the C. I. O.'s recent granting of a charter to an A. F. of L. teamsters' local.

Following a conference of A. F. of L. teamsters' union officers in 17 central States, the A. F. of L. yesterday sent out several crews to "breaking points" on the Minneapolis-Chicago run with instructions to stop C. I. O.-driven trucks.

The executive board of the new C. I. O. local then conferred to devise means of retaliation.

On the eve of a national convention next week of the American Newspaper Guild (C. I. O.), its executive vice president, Milton Kaufman, yesterday sought to answer charges of "presumptuous and completely unwarranted" interference into the affairs of another C. I. O. union.

Kaufman declared that his recent telegram to local guild officers to support the North American Aviation strike after it had been outlawed by the C. I. O. United Auto Workers president was based solely on "a single simple proposition: there can be no justification for the use of troops against strikers."

Kaufman made the statement in an open letter to the U. A. W. chief, R. J. Thomas, in reply to a letter from Thomas sharply taking Kaufman to task.

Thomas' letter, it was known, has added weight to a campaign by a "right wing" element in the guild against Kaufman's reelection.

Davis Likely to Get Dykstra's Job as Mediation Board Chief

Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, whose resignation as first chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board will be effective July 1, probably will be succeeded by William H. Davis, the board's vice chairman.

Dykstra's resignation, which was accepted yesterday by the President, was occasioned, it was explained yesterday, by the need for the chairman to return to his duties as president of the University of Wisconsin. This obligation has required much of Dykstra's time since he was first appointed to the board when it was created on March 19. During his absences his place was frequently filled by Davis, who has established a record as head of board panels in the settlement of such difficult labor disputes as those involving the bituminous coal industry, the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. and the General Motors Corporation.

President "Very Sorry"

In accepting Dykstra's resignation, President Roosevelt made public an exchange of correspondence in which he declared himself "very sorry" to see Dykstra leaves, "in view of the fine accomplishments" of the board. The President noted his gratitude for "the great contribution you have made in undertaking the organization of the Selective Service System and the Mediation Board, and I wish to feel that the Federal Government may again avail itself of your splendid administrative ability."

Before heading the board, Dykstra served as first director of Selective Service.

Board Expresses "Regret"

News of the resignation was followed immediately by the following unanimous resolution of the Mediation Board:

"The National Defense Mediation Board has learned with regret that the heavy burden of many public responsibilities has brought about the resignation as its chairman of Dr. C. A. Dykstra, who has, from its formation, served the board and the Nation with distinguished competence, integrity and impartiality. We wish to express our deep appreciation of his human insights and his balanced understanding of employer-employe relations which have helped to make this democracy free and strong in a critical hour."

Dykstra indicated in his letter to the President that, although he could not serve as chairman, he could remain on call as a member of the board panel.

While on the board, Dykstra was chairman of panels which considered and settled one of the first cases to be certified, the prolongued and bitter strike which paralyzed four plants of the International Harvester Co.

Subsequently he headed panels on the Standard Tool strike, the walkout at the Allis-Chalmers Pittsburgh plant and the North American Aviation Co. dispute, which flared into a strike while deliberations were pending before him.

Dykstra Chose Test Case

Major accomplishment, however, was his presiding over the strike case involving 20,000 loggers in the Puget Sound area. After board proposals had been issued, but were still unaccepted, President Roosevelt proclaimed a national emergency, vesting a new authority into the board's recommendations.

Dykstra, therefore, chose to make the Puget Sound dispute a test case. Not until last week, however, was he finally successful, when the C. I. O. International Woodworkers of America agreed to return to work under the board's formula for settlement.

Although there was no official confirmation or direct intimation of the view of Mr. Roosevelt, who has power to appoint the new chairman, defense and labor sources considered it a foregone conclusion that Davis would be offered the post.

Relatively unknown to Washington, despite World War I and NRA service here, Davis rapidly developed a reputation as having the magic touch in labor disputes.

In the board's short history, he has been the head of nine panels, with a total score of seven settlements—at least four of them on exceptionally difficult and important cases—one failure, and one case now under consideration.

His first and speediest victory was ending the nine-week Allis-Chalmers strike after previous mediation efforts had resulted in miserable failure. Other important contributions were his recommendations for a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase for General Motors Co. workers, and for a 40-cent-a-day increase for coal miners in Southern fields.

Davis is now heading a reconstituted panel considering the North American Aviation Co. dispute. Aside from this, his only case in which no settlement has been reached involves the American Potash and Chemical Co.

Tanks Shatter 'Fighting Irish' In Mock Battle

By the Associated Press

With the Army in Tennessee, June 19.—Twenty Texans on a "suicide" tank mission cut the Fighting Irish of New York to pieces today in an action as bruising and terrifyingly realistic as any since the Tennessee war games began two weeks ago.

The Texans were in six tanks of the 193d Battalion, a G. H. Q. unit from Fort Benning, Ga., assigned to help the "Red" Fifth Division of Army Regulars push back an overwhelming "Blue" force including the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth Infantry Divisions and the Second Armored Division.

The New Yorkers knocked two of the tanks out of action by belatedly getting theoretical artillery fire on them in the first attack but the rest of the tank platoon retired, reformed and surprised the rest of the infantry battalion from another direction.

The detail commanded by Lieut. Col. Carl G. Douglas, a former Houston National Guardsman, then ripped through several companies, spreading confusion until Sergt. Tom Giobride, a fiery-talking antitank gunner from Brooklyn, brought his gun to bear on them and picked the tanks off one by one as they crashed through fences, churned up a field of new corn and vainly tried to get behind the light gun and attack the Second Infantry Battalion which was held in reserve.

Slain Girl May Have Hailed Cab, Police Feel

fore concluded that it was a taxicab.

It was the impression of those who heard the screams and saw the car that there were two men in it. The police, although not inclined to be dogmatic about it, have been going on the theory that only one man was involved in the fiendish murder of Miss Strieff. Such fiends, they reason, almost always are lone wolves.

The fact that the taxicab with the screaming woman was seen at midnight Sunday also fails to jibe with police reasoning. They are inclined to believe that Miss Strieff was killed not long after she disappeared around 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The body was found in a garage behind 1717 Q Street Northwest at 9:15 o'clock Monday morning, and after the autopsy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said the girl had been dead at least eight hours. However, he did not say that it could not have been more than eight hours.

Sand Compared

The detectives who went out to Travilah Road looked over the driveway where the taxicab with the screaming woman made a turn. They picked up some samples of sand in the roadway there. These are to be analyzed to see how they compare with sand found in Miss Strieff's shoes.

When the body was found Monday morning, it was nude except for a pair of wet shoes and sports socks. Police conceded that the sand in her shoes could have been picked up as she waded through puddles of water on her way to or from the delicatessen store.

A preliminary study of scrapings taken from under Miss Strieff's finger nails, it was learned yesterday, had revealed nothing of value. The investigators had hoped that in a struggle the girl might have clawed some flesh or hair from her assailant.

A piece of thread was found under Miss Strieff's fingernails, but it held little of promise in the investigation.

Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy said that laboratory tests on the girl's blood, tissues and stomach contents would be finished today or tomorrow, and the results made known to the police.

Only one suspect was being held yesterday. All the others were released, one by one, as their alibis were established. One of those released was the man with the black sedan. Police found what they believed to be bloodstains on the rear seat, but a chemical analysis showed that they were not blood.

The remaining suspect is a Richmond man who recently was released from an insane asylum. Two casual acquaintances reported him to the police after they saw him molesting a woman in a taxicab.

Police Capt. Ira Kirk said yesterday that he was not convinced Miss Strieff went to the store of Peter Duncan on Florida Avenue, two blocks from her home, to purchase the stick of butter which she needed as the finishing ingredient for a pie she was cooking.

Duncan, however, told a Post reporter yesterday—and had told others the day before—that he was positive Miss Strieff came to his store just before it began raining hard. His certainty of it is founded on pictures he has seen of her.

Asked If He Sold Butter

When the girl came in, Duncan said, there were several colored children in the store and he was busily attending to them when the girl asked him "Do you sell butter?"

"I said yes," Duncan remembered replying.

"Then give me a stick," he quoted the girl as having said.

That was all she purchased. Which way she turned out of his door Duncan said he did ont notice.

He remembered that she wore the flimsy raincoat and also that a car was double-parked in the street opposite his door. He did not notice whether the car left simultaneously with Miss Strieff's departure from his store.

C.I.O. Aide Won't Face Army Charge; Gave False Name

Cleveland, June 19 (AP).—Paul Martin, president of the C. I. O. Die Casting Workers Union that recently struck at the Aluminum Co. of America plants here, will not be prosecuted for failing to give his right name in making out his Selective Service papers, United States District Attorney Emerich B. Freed said today.

Martin, whose real name is Mehringer, is still on parole from an automobile-theft sentence.

William Mackey, chief of the State division of probation and parole, will decide tomorrow whether Martin's recent trip to Washington, without permission of the State, constituted a violation of his parole. He went to the Capital in connection with Alcoa strike negotiations.

WPA Worker's Strike Against In-Laws Fades

WALTER STANFORD,

By the Associated Press

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 19.—Peace reigned today in the Walter Stanford home after 24 hours of rebellion by the 42-year-old WPA worker against what he said was too many of his wife's relatives moving in on them.

"John," dummy symbol of Stanford's determination to oust his "in-laws," still reclined in a wicker davenport blocking the front steps, but the sign, "Dad on sit-downer till in-laws and out-laws move," was gone and the head of the house was inside cleaning wallpaper.

"We were a happy family until they moved in and we will be a happy family again," said Stanford, who has six children, all at home.

"I am going to win," he added.

"There were the old folks and three brothers and then her (Mrs. Stanford's) sister and her husband moved in, and I decided I wouldn't stand any more of it."

The in-laws were still there, however, and Stanford did not say what plans were being worked out.

City Employes' Strike Is Settled

McKeesport, Pa., June 19 (AP).—A strike of city employes which "blacked out" all sanitation service in McKeesport for four days ended tonight in a compromise agreement, union leaders announced.

The strikers, members of Local 306 of the State, County and Municipal Workers Union, unanimously voted to accept proffered pay raises amounting to $30,000 for the remainder of the current year and go back to work with the promise of city council that the question of further increases will be considered.

O'Conor Paroles Housebreaker

By the Associated Press

James Allen, colored, 19, convicted of housebreaking in Montgomery County and sentenced Nov. 29, 1940 to one year in the Maryland Penitentiary, was granted a parole yesterday by Gov. O'Conor at Annapolis.

Also paroled was Horace Warner, convicted of rape in the Cecil County Circuit Court and sentenced to six years September 29, 1937. Rockford Werking, 53, sentenced October 3, 1930, to 10 years by the Frederick County Circuit Court received a partial pardon.

Mary Sibley Guilty Of Killing Husband

lieved Miss Sibley's story that she tice said that if the jurors bethought the gun was empty and that she did not pull the trigger, their verdict should be not guilty.

Miss Sibley finished two days of testimony in her own behalf yesterday morning. Cross-examining her, Assistant District Attorney John L. Laskey concentrated on the shooting and asked few questions about the two years of Miss Sibley's experience with Rush.

She had already testified in detail about her marriage to Rush, an automobile salesman, in Pascagoula, Miss., in 1928, when she was the wife of Wallace P. Pruitt, jr. Rush beat her, she said, and refused to have their marriage annulled.

"As a matter of fact," asked Laskey, "wasn't it Rush who wanted an annullment and you wouldn't consent to it?"

"You're a liar!" shouted Miss Sibley.

Rush was killed at a parking lot at 1234 Good Hope Road Southeast last September 16. The shooting followed an all-night quarrel, in which Miss Sibley said she loaded the pistol she always carried in her handbag "to keep my brother from getting it."

But she unloaded the gun, she testified, and it exploded when Rush asked her to show it to two women friends with whom they were talking.

Laskey showed the jury how the pistol was made so as to throw out all the shells when it was opened. Then he asked the jurors to try the trigger for themselves. They would find, he said that only a hard pull would cock the gun and fire it.

The jurors toyed with the death weapon for several minutes and sent a bailiff for it as soon as they entered the jury room. Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford depicted Rush as a man of violent temper who abused his bride, yet begged her to return to him when she left him.

Wallace P. Pruitt, jr., 1752 Columbia Road Northwest, whose marriage to Miss Sibley was annulled soon after she married Rush, attended the trial yesterday. He explained that he returned Wednesday from his vacation.

Pruitt predicted that his former wife would "come clear," adding that if she did not he would "get Roosevelt to get her out of it."

Once a candidate for Congress in Alabama, Pruitt said he was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia in 1936. He is now a Navy Department employe.

Suspect Caught In Md. Attack

out through the open front door on the front porch. There her screams attracted neighbors who called police.

Police surrounded the house and State Policeman B. J. Nolan captured a man attempting to flee through nearby woods.

His name was given as Frank Jones, 34, of 2251 Twelfth Street Northwest, Washington.

Meanwhile, metropolitan detectives, Sergt. John Wise and Detective Fred Rawlinson, members of the supersquad investigating the Strieff case, hurried to Hyattsville to determine if Jones had any connection with the Strieff case.

After questioning the man, in a hearing also attended by Hyattsville Police Chief James Hepburn and Maryland State officers, Wise said preliminary questioning indicated Jones had no connection with the local crime.

A search of the Twelfth Street address, in which Wise, Rawlinson and Hepburn took part, produced more than $1,000 worth of property ranging from jewelry to women's underclothing. None of the latter, it was said, was that of Miss Strieff.

Chief Hepburn said he believed property found in the man's home had been stolen from homes in nearby Virginia and the District as well as in Maryland.

Among the man's possessions was an address book containing a number of names and addresses in Northwest Washington, fairly close to the alley behind Seventeenth Street near Q where Miss Strieff's body was found.

Bill of Contrasts Scores At Loew's Capitol Theater

"Man Hunt," on the Screen, and Gay Revue, On the Stage, Both Click With Customers; Fox Movietone News Only Screen Subsidiary

LOEW'S CAPITOL THEATER is batting close to the 1,000 mark, this new week, on both screen and stage.

"Man Hunt," the film feature, is a tense and gripping melodrama of an intrepid English sportsman and the Gestapo that holds out a hopeful and probably futile promise that sometime someone may do what Capt. Alan Thorndike could have done in Germany, but didn't. That "Crazy With the Heat" tabloid musical, on the stage, is a gay and swirling miniature revue, gaited a little more closely to the Broadway tempo than F Street's, but breezy and bumptious diversion for the sophisticates with the broader minds, nevertheless.

If analogies had to be drawn, "Man Hunt" might be said to strike a grim middle ground somewhere between "Foreign Correspondent" and "So Ends Our Night." It reflects the same stark persistence of the Nazi secret police and the heroic fortitude of those singled out for its especial interest.

This Capt. Alan Thorndike is a British sportsman and big-game hunter, who, before the invasion of Poland, makes Der Fuehrer the object of a "sporting stalk." From a rocky ledge, to which he has penetrated through a heavy and supposedly impenetrable guard, he draws a bead on Hitler's heart, as he stands on a balcony of his mountain castle, through the sights of a high-powered precision rifle. Discovered belatedly, the gun is discharged in the scuffle with the storm trooper. Capt. Thorndike is not treated gently. His escape to England and the unremitting vigilance of the secret agents set on his trail provide the basis of as taut a tale as has come along to the silver sheet in many a long day.

Has Its Lighter Moments

The sinister implications of the "man hunt" are effectively softened and the play given a welcome touch of humor by the valuable part played in Capt. Thorndike's London enterprises by an untutored young Cockney girl in whose squalid flat he finds refuge when the Gestapo practically has him by the coat-tails. The picture, however, does something more than trace the personal adventures of its principal characters. It demonstrates with some clarity the length to which the Nazis are willing to go to obtain fictitious evidence against their enemies, actual or potential. It all adds up to an edge-of-the-chair bit of suppressed excitement.

An exceptionally well-chosen cast gives full value to Dudley Nichols' adaptation for Twentieth Century-Fox of Geoffrey Household's novel of "Rogue Male." It does so without bluster of any of the usual extravagances of tightly spun melodrama. Walter Pidgeon, in his most important role to date, portrays Capt. Thorndike as precisely the sort of Englishman Capt. Thorndike would be. He is forceful, natural and convincing in his expression of his country's antipathy toward the Hitlerian assaults upon civilization, as well as of his own personal sentiments toward the Spartan Miss Jerry Stokes, the slightly soiled angel of mercy. In this latter role Joan Bennett assumes a Cockney accent and interprets the character to the hilt, thus establishing herself as more of an actress than ever has been suspected. The third figure of prime importance is perfectly impersonated by George Sanders, as the head of the Nazi bloodhounds. John Carradine, Frederick Worlock, Master Roddy McDowall and Roger Imhof are among the others who do most in the interest of compelling drama.

Mad, Merry and Naughty

Whether it is from the heat or not, the stage revue is certainly a little more than mildly crazy—thanks principally to the comic ministrations of the veteran Willie Howard. The Howard skits are uniformly funny and all are fashioned to the demands of a tremendous amount of double entendre. His funniest is the one about the "lonely heart" bridegroom who gets into an Army recruiting office instead of the marriage license bureau. I suspect some of the lines in all of them have been sent to the cleaners by now. Surrounding the star are Sylvia Froos, with her songs; Peggy and Moro, ballroom dancers of the better sort; Betty Kean, a tap dancer with a sense of comedy; numerous subordinate players, a lively and shapely chorus—not the Rhythm Rockets—and, to wind the whole thing up in a typhoon of torso tossing, that inflammatory Latin, Diosa Costello. Big-time stuff at small-time prices. The Fox Movietone News is the bill's only auxiliary.

Crisis in Previews

Hollywood, Calif., June 19.—Walter Wanger, as we all know, is a friend of our industry, and in the last few years has done a whale of a job promoting goodwill.

JOAN CRAWFORD

He's traveled at his own expense, made speeches, radio addresses, even allowed himself to be kidded on "Information Please," and as president of the Academy he's brought more distinguished guests to the last annual dinners than we've ever had before.

But when he makes a speech before the motion picture theater owners of America and talks about unfair advance criticism of pictures by the press, I'd like to ask what is his definition of unfair? Is it a negative reaction to a picture? When any honest reviewer, of which there are several hundred here who love our industry, sees a preview, he would like to share an audience's reaction to the picture, instead of viewing it from a studio projection room.

Many a time an audience has gone into tailspin over a picture I didn't care much for—and next day I wrote about their enjoyment of it, and not my own disappointment. It is not possible to get a fair reaction to any picture without audience participation. And the producers must know this—why else do they always take their pictures to the outlying districts for their sneak previews before the final cutting?

ᔓᔕ

Joan Crawford spent four days in New Orleans without being recognized. Boy! She must have gone back with that scar on her face. I can't imagine any other disguise that would have done the trick.

ᔓᔕ

Incidentally, in "When Ladies Meet" both Crawford and Greer Garson are in love with a newspaper publisher. The handsome lad will be played by Bob Taylor, but there are plenty of real publishers and editors throughout the country who could qualify for the role, pictorially, at least. How about Norman Chandler, of Los Angeles; the Cowles brothers, of Des Moines—not forgetting Charles McCabe, of the New York Mirror?

ᔓᔕ

Fibber McGee says after he finishes "Look Who's Laughing" he's taking a vacation. "And," says Fibber, "my idea of a jaunt is to make all preparations, pack your car, drive around the block, come back home and stretch in your garden." Now look who's loafing! . . . But Molly maintains you ought to go to faraway places. She's putting in for Alaska.

ᔓᔕ

If "The Yearling" is being shelved, wonder why they tested Frances Farmer for it? . . . Now that Red Skelton is about to remake "Whistling in the Dark," I hope they'll bring out the man who wrote it, Edward Childs Carpenter. He's been away too long.

William Powell and Myrna Loy Really 'Love Crazy' at Palace

By Richard L. Coe

"LOVE CRAZY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by David Hertz and William Ludwig, adapted to the screen by authors and Charles Lederer, costarring William Powell and Myrna Loy, with Gail Patrick, Jack Carson, Florence Bates, Sidney Blackmer, Sig Rumann, Vladimir Sokoloff, Donald MacBride, Sara Haden, Kathleen Lockhart, Fern Emmett, Joseph Crehan, George Meeker, Clarence Muse and Elisha Cook, Jr. Directed by Jack Conway. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Palace Theater.

Love being a mad thing anyway, those polished farceurs, William Powell and Myrna Loy, go at it literally in the Palace's newcomer, "Love Crazy," as daft and merry a film as the chuckle-hungry could wish.

These most compatible of costars have no trails of blood and fingerprints to harass them in this one. The root of their trouble—and it takes a bachelor to state it so baldly—is a mother-in-law. It seems "Mother" dropped in for a call the night Mr. and Mrs. are celebrating their fourth wedding anniversary. Being an uninhibited duo, they plan to do things differently, like serving dinner backwards, at the conclusion of which "Mother" wants a letter mailed. Bill goes down to speed it off, rides up on the elevator with an old flame, gets stuck between floors and returns eons later with women's shoes in his pocket and looking as if he has tangled with Circe.

W. Powell, Spinster

Now, we've been told wives get suspicious of such behavior and though Myrna is something of an exemplary partner, she follows the mass in this emotion. "Mother" feeds the flame. And soon Bill is hard put to maintain his connubial standing. Unlike luckless Ophelia, he but feigns madness to evade his destiny. Such being the state of excitable humans, his associates become so impressed with the, should we say, verisimilitude of his act, that wham, he's popped into the bughouse.

What with luring his wife's new boy-friend into the place and roaming about a fashionable apartment house in spinsterish get-up (padded in the proper spots with balls of wool), our Bill has him an adventure that underlines the terrifying snares which surround even the most guileless of us mortals. And who are the alienists to doubt a man's sanity when, clad in only a sheet, he climbs a tree to retrieve a watch that's just flown away, a timepiece for which he'd give the sheet off his back—and does?

Top-Notch Support

All such crises seem incredibly silly, of course, while you're sipping your breakfast coffee, but handled in the impeccable style of Powell and Miss Loy, they are joyfully amusing. No one but Powell could seem so blandly bewildered, none but Miss Loy so uniquely aloof. Not since the first "Thin Man," have they been so beguiling—and different.

Their associates, too, are superbly equal to the task of making such time-honored bedroom farce crisp. The cool Gail Patrick is willing bait for the near-catastrophe, Jack Carson once again is the man who doesn't get the girl and Florence Bates is smilingly evil as "Mother."

A "Crime Does Not Pay" release on immigration problems, a "Passing Parade" which depicts elementary education trends and the News of The Day bring back reality for a while, but "Love Crazy" guarantees an hour or so of happy, carefree escape—blessed escape! Ever tried it? You'll like it.

Auld Lang Signs!

Hollywood, June 19 (INS).—Joan Bennett is so completely sold on Fritz Lang as a director that she couldn't wait to tell me that she will again star for him in "Confirm or Deny." Not surprising that she is happy after the hit her last Lang picture, "Man Hunt," is making. I had luncheon with Joanie, her father, Richard Bennett, and Myron Selznick, who had just closed the deal with Twentieth Century-Fox. Joan starts next month on "Confirm or Deny" after a brief visit to New York. She plays a newspaper woman and the story by Henry Wales and Samuel Fuller has been adapted by Jo Swerling.

JO-AN BLONDELL

We lunched in the Twentieth Century-Fox commissary and Joan was wearing a flannel nightie affair—a part of her costume in "Wild Geese Calling." After luncheon I visited Walter Pidgeon on the "How Green Was My Valley" set and talked with him and John Ford. Walter said that he argued loudly against Joan playing the part of the English cockney girl in "Man Hunt." "Then," said Walter, "she gave the best performance of her life. I thought she was too sophisticated, too chic," Walter explained, "to be convincing, but how she fooled us."

ᔓᔕ

The Hedy Lamarr-John Howard romance is colder than yesterday's newspaper and Hedy is now receiving attention from Howard Hughes a fact known only to their closest friends. John moves into the Columbia studios and gets the role of the wise-cracking mechanic in "Three Girls About Town"—a role not unlike the ones Cary Grant has made famous. For once Mons. Howard will not wear expensive clothes. Joan Blondell plays opposite him and I have heard that negotiations are on for Binnie Barnes to play one of the three girls.

ᔓᔕ

Glad republic isn't peeved because Judy Canova was "hit over the head by a soft moon" and married Corporal James H. Ripley in Honolulu. Taking the whole thing in stride the studio announces that Judy's next will be "The Corporal Takes a Bride," or could I suggest "Judy Takes the Corporal?" You guessed it—the Martin Williams original yarn is an army opus, a sort of feminine "Buck Privates."

ᔓᔕ

Through the grapevine route I learn that "The Prime Minister," an English-made picture with a younger Disraeli than Arliss played, has been bought by Warner Brothers and is at this very moment reposing in their vaults. Because of the exigencies of the war two separate prints were sent—one by Clipper and one by boat and Jack Warner spent three months trying to get the movie here. John Gielgud, whose Hamlet made history, plays Disraeli; Diana Wynward his wife. Fay Compton plays Queen Victoria. The picture is comparable to England's best and will be released immediately.

ᔓᔕ

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Fannie Brice's closest friends swear that she and John Conti, radio announcer of her show, are planning an early marriage; Alice Faye is selling her valley home and will move into Phil Harris' house which she is now redecorating; Constance Moore and Johnny Maschio also move into their new home in Brentwood this weekend and it has a very attractive nursery.

A Mature Impulse

New York, June 19.

GIFT: During the run of "Lady in the Dark" Victor Mature rode in a cab whose driver told Mature of his children—triplets—and Victor gave him a $5 present for the youngsters . . . When Mature was operated upon recently the hackie wrote him, and explained that taxi driving was only temporary—that he now is a chauffeur, employed by the vice president of the A. T. & T. . . . Recently, before Mature left his hotel to go to Martha Kemp's home for the wedding, the operator informed: "Your car is waiting." Downstairs, Mature discovered that chauffeur, at the wheel of a Rolls-Royce. "My employer had to go away for a few days," he explained, "and he said he wouldn't mind my driving you while he's away" . . . And so Victor Mature, who came to New York for the first time eight months ago, drove to his wedding in a Rolls-Royce driven by a man he had befriended.

VICTOR MATURE

ENTERPRISE: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has completed arrangements for an unusual summer vacation. She will go to New England with a group of about 30 youngsters—and live in their midst . . . listen to their ambitions, discuss their future careers, learn their habits and processes of thought. Then Mrs. Roosevelt will write a book about the Problems of Modern Youth.

ACTION: Paul Stewart, who plays the reporter in "Native Son," was one of the men who campaigned for the Independent candidates in last week's Equity Council election—a bitter election, which resulted in eight resignations, Red charges in Congress, etc., . . . Yesterday, Stewart met Brandon Peters, of the Lambs Club. "What happens at the council meetings over at your place?" Stewart asked him . . . "Oh, something happens there all the time," Peters assured. "Last week a feller made a motion to have peanutbutter sandwiches in the dining room."

EXPRESSION: During a rehearsal of the new Nelson Eddy-Rise Stevens movie, "Chocolate Soldier," Director Roy del Ruth glanced at the script again—and then sent for Keith Winters, the scenario writer . . . "You take charge of shooting this scene," del Ruth told him. "I'll just sit and watch how you get the desired emotions registered." The scene was described in the script this way: "Maria's toy poodle is lying outside the drawing-room door. Karl's Great Dane is lying outside the music-room door. Both dogs are wearing dutiful and appreciative expressions as they listen to their owners' voices . . . the Dane, thinking, no doubt, that practice has gone on long enough, gives a tremendous yawn. The poodle replies with an admonishing growl, obviously saying: 'Your manners get worse every day' . . . The Dane hangs his head, in shame."

LEAP: Joe Frisco registered at a new hotel, and was shown a room on the fourth floor, facing the street. The bellhop opened the window and asked: "Is everything satisfactory, sir?" . . . Frisco walked to the window, and looked down the four stories, to the street below. . . . "No, this won't do," said Frisco, asking for a room higher up. "To commit suicide from here, a guy would have to jump twice."

SUCCESS: After these many years, with new radio favorites emerging and descending, and with Crossley reports wavering in different ranges, Maj. Bowes still gets $15,000 a week for his amateur show . . . "It really wasn't such a difficult accomplishment," Bowes confesses. "All I did was change the old Saturday-night-hook into a bell."

ROMANCE: One of Hollywood's best known comics is being divorced from his wife for this reason: On Friday nights he would don his fishing clothes and tell his wife that he's going to spend the weekend fishing. Instead, he'd go to the Universal Studios, change into a business suit, and fly to Frisco to meet a young lady. Monday morning he'd fly back to Hollywood, buy some speckled trout, change back into his fishing clothes at Universal, and return to his wife . . . The marriage was disrupted when the comic's wife—as happens in so many Hollywood comedies—examined one of the trout and discovered that it was an unusual catch, for it bore a stamp: "Lakeside Fish Market."

NUMBERS: Ernest Hemingway received $130,000 from Paramount for the movie rights to his book, "For Whom the Bells Toll." "By this time," one of his friends told Hemingway, "for you, a writing job is easy—like putting one and one together" . . . "If you use figures, it's 1, 2, 3 and 4," Hemingway corrected. "I wait 1 year before collecting all my dough—for a book which has taken me 2 years to write—after spending 3 years getting shot at, while collecting material. Then I pay most of it to the Government, in 4 installments."

Axis Victory Might Affect U. S. Catholics

By the United Press

Boston, June 19.—Douglas Miller, former United States Commercial Attache at Berlin, suggests that a victorious Hitler could to some extent influence the 21,000,000 Catholics in the United States through "brutal pressure" on the Pope.

Miller, who resigned his Berlin post in 1939, after 15 years service, so speculates in an articles to appear tomorrow in the July issue of the Atlantic Monthly. The article is an excerpt from his new book, "You Can't Do Business With Hitler," published by Little, Brown & Co.

"If Hitler wins in Europe," writes Miller, "he will control the Pope, the Vatican, the overwhelming majority of the Catholic Church and its central executive organization."

Miller believes the present Pope will do everything in his power to preserve the ancient liberties of Catholics living uder dictators.

"But how far will the Catholic Church be able to protect itself?" asks Miller. "It has no weapons of force. Hitler is not open to reason or argument. He understands the logic of the sword alone. I fear that by the exercise of brutal pressure he can make the Pope an involuntary prisoner and hamstring church activities."

Miller, now an economics professor at the University of Denver, is on leave of absence while making a study of Nazi economy for the Rockefeller Foundation. Speculating on the future of American Catholics, he asks:

1. What will happen to the structure of Catholicism if money is not allowed to be sent to Europe from the United States, one of the church's largest sources of funds?

2. Can Hitler and Mussolini, by putting pressure upon the church in Rome, assure themselves that such pressure could be relayed indirectly to Catholic bodies on this side of the water—not only in the United States but in Latin America, as well?

3. Will the Catholic Church, in order to save its European property and protect the lives of its leaders, have to consent to a political compromise which would endanger our safety insofar as American Catholics follow their church?

4. Would Hitler even go so far as to hold the church up to ransom?

"These speculations, Miller says, "raise alarming possibilities for the future."

Wanted: Home With Garden For Carol and His Consort

(This is the fifth of a series of articles about former King Carol of Rumania and Mme. Lupescu in exile at Havana.)

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

Havana, Cuba, June 19.—Havana is a city abounding in palaces. At least to American eyes, the columned, cream-colored houses, with their lofty rooms and delicate grille work, look like palaces.

Erected during the "dance of the millions" in the 'twenties, when all North Americans were rich brokers and all Cubans were fabulous sugar daddies, they give the whole city an opulent, grandiose air.

But so far, His Majesty Carol II and Mme. Lupescu have been unable to find one suited to their needs. They have been house-hunting, like any other refugees, since arriving here. They wish a house within a 15-mile radius of the city.

His Majesty, who has been pictured as a royal bounder, insisted to me that he was, in fact, a confirmed home-body, with a strong attachment for every man's castle. His love of nature, on which he expanded, influences his desire for a house with a large garden.

A Passion Windsor Shares

Like the Duke of Windsor, whose throne also was lost for love, His Majesty has a passion for the pastoral art.

His genuine interest in and for the home in which he lives was voiced by the King when, before we reached Havana, I asked him if it were true that he had already leased a house there for a reputed $800 a month.

"No, no, indeed not," said Carol with a look of amazement that such a report could have gotten about. "I wouldn't think of renting a place sight-unseen. I am too fond of my home to let others choose it for me!"

His Majesty and his two-person court will remain at the Nacional Hotel until at least the end of June, probably longer, unless they find a suitable house in the meantime. It is possible that they will go to Cuba's beautiful and most fashionable watering place, Varadero Beach, for a few weeks to escape the midsummer heat.

The routine of the little court is simplicity itself. The former King and madame have consistently and insistently refused any attempt on the part of anyone to show them special favors and courtesies.

As a matter of course, the Hotel Nacional proposed to obtain a personal maid for madame. This she rejected, as did the King an offer of a valet. When the hotel management sent two maids to the royal suite to help Mme. Lupescu unpack, she thanked them prettily and said she could manage very well by herself. However, his majesty said that as long as the women were on hand, they could unpack his bags, and never mind the valet.

The royal day begins with breakfast served in the suite, for which his majesty is laying out $540 per month.

They're Abstemious

No member of the royal party is visible before luncheon. Invariably the trio lunches and dines on the breeze swept terrace of the Nacional. Invariably, the King and his aide, Urdarianu, wear white or cream linen suits. Invariably, madame appears in simple sportswear.

Save in their devotion to the water-wagon, the three are indistinguishable from any other swank guests in Havana. His Majesty consumes ginger ale by the gallon. Mme. Lupescu is devoted to charged water. Occasionally since their arrival here the three have split a bottle or two of champagne or chablis over dinner. Their general abstemiousness leads Cubans to the dark suspicion that they are secret disciples of Ella Boole.

The royal appetites are excellent, but the trio orders from the hotel menu. They have yet to ask the chef to prepare any special dish for them.

The three linger over their dinner, enjoying the music of the hotel orchestra and occasionally asking for a favorite piece. His Majesty smokes an after dinner cigarette in a long, dark amber holder. Madame takes hers straight.

Their conversations are animated and gay. Madame loves to dance and dances very well. But His Majesty does not dance at all, which indicates that he is a thoroughly retired momentarily suffering from lumformed playboy. The colonel, alas, is momentarily suffering from lumbago. So Madame sits quietly with her menfolk.

Havana's gay and fascinating night life, that lures thousands of tourists here annually, hasn't gotten a single tumble from His Majesty or Mme. Lupescu. The colonel, I can report, has been nibbling.

It is obvious that Madame is too proud and too smart to put herself in the way of rebuffs from any highminded matrons in her vicinity. On board ship, the only persons with whom she made friends was a charming 6-year-old child from Chicago, Sandra Arden Ell, daughter of a Chicago attorney, Leon J. Ell.

Sandra, with her mane of blonde hair, was in the S. S. America's small shop when His Majesty and Madame stopped to buy a few trinkets. Mme. Lupescu spoke to the child and bought her a fuzzy, white stuffed teddy bear. From then on Sandra was welcome at the royal table in the dining salon.

(Tomorrow: Carol and Lupescu confront Cuban society with a ticklish problem.)

Vichy Cleared To Admit Ill For Treatment

By Taylor Henry

Associated Press Staff Writer

Vichy, France, June 19.—Drastic measures have cleared room in the crowded hotels of this once-quiet health resort—now capital of unoccupied France—for the return of the halt and the ill to take the curing waters.

Before the resort season opened on June, 15, government agents went from hotel to hotel warning persons considered "unnecesary" to leave town within 24 or 48 hours.

First persnos affected were members of Vichy's Jewish population, who have been the object of a police recheck of residence permits.

Vichy's waters have been a haven of international dyspepsia since the spa was found by Louis XIII. The aristocracy of Europe has been bringing its stomach troubles to Vichy ever since Madame De Sevigne toward the end of the seventeenth century made herself the spa's star publicist by her letter-writing.

Besides ordering "unnecessary" residents to leave town for the two-month watering season, the government has freed other hotel space by moving banks and insurance companies out of town.

Still, the government has a serious problem in making room for the dyspeptics, because all the 221 hotels of Vichy not requisitioned for government ministries, banks and embassies have been jammed with government employes' families and with journalists. The aptly named Ambassadors' Hotel now houses 18 out of Vichy's 41 foreign missions.

One of the main social activities is hunting better places to eat, although the food situation is not as bad as it might be.

FPC Asks Daylight Time Immediately For Southeast

By the Associated Press

The Federal Power Commission said yesterday it would urge immediate adoption of daylight saving time throughout the southeast as a means of combatting a power shortage in that area which produces aluminum and other materials vital to defense.

A large area of the southeast now is on a program restricting nonessential use of energy in homes and commercial establishments, so that more power may be delivered to plants with defense orders.

Interior Secretary Ickes has urged daylight saving time on a Nation-wide scale, as a power conservation measure.

No details were given on the daylight savings plan for the southeast.

Indies Would Fight Japan to End, Diplomat Says

Los Angeles, Calif., June 19 (AP).—The Netherlands East Indies "will fight to the last man" if Japan resorts to military means to enforce her trade demands, says Dr. J. R. van der Schrieck, attache of the Netherlands Legation in London.

He arrived on the liner Matsonia from Honolulu, after traveling 50,000 miles—40,000 of them by air—in the last three months on a mission to the western Pacific.

"We want to trade with Japan in an orderly way," he told interviewers, "but we will not aid a potential enemy. My personal opinion is that Japan will take no military action against the Indies, and that negotiations for a trade agreement will soon be resumed."

Dr. van der Schrieck will go to Washington by plane and later to London.

Marines to Participate In Army Maneuvers

The Navy officially announced yesterday that the first division of United States Marines, from the barracks at Quantico, Va., and Parris Island, S. C., would participate with the Army late this month in joint maneuvers near New River, N. C.

The Army previously had announced that "elements" of the First Division, with headquarters at Fort Devens, Mass., would constitute the military forces taking part in the combined maneuvers.

Ability to Feed Europe Will Win, Wickard Says

Syracuse, N. Y., June 19 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard declared today the United States was going to help Great Britain with "all the means at its disposal" because when we fight Hitlerism, we are fighting for ourselves."

"The people have decided," he said, 'and there isn't any use arguing about it any longer. We are going ahead—regardless."

The Cabinet member, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, predicted the war may finally come down to the issue of 'who can feed the hungry people of Europe—the democracies or the dictatorships."

"In this case," he declared, 'the answer is—the democracies."

U. S. Closes Case Today Against Bookniga Corp.

With testimony of the refusal of Bookniga Corporation to register as a foreign agency, the Government today will conclude its evidence against three of the firm's officials who are on trial in the District Court for criminal conspiracy.

Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Parker rested his case yesterday, but chose to reopen it when Leo A. Rover, of defense counsel, declared that no failure of the corporation to register had been established.

The company officials—Morris Liskin, president; Raphael Rush, vice president, and Norman Weinberg, secretary, are accused of conspiring to have their firm evade the laws against alien agents. The Government contends their company was a unit of a propaanda machine operated by Russia for ten years in this country.

Donley Elected Kiwanis President

Atlanta, June 19 (AP).—Charles S. Donley, 55, Pittsburgh transportation consultant, is the new president of Kiwanis International, it was announced today.

Dr. Charles B. Holman, of St. Louis, and Fred C. McAlister, London, Ontario, Canada, were elected vice presidents, and Donald B. Rice, of Oakland, Calif., treasurer. Cleveland was selected as the 1942 conventinn city.

Baering Down On the News

By Arthur (Bugs) Baer

If you have the might to make war that makes you as right as salt in the kitchen.

By that I mean that a short neck doesn't hamper a tall man.

Peace on earth and good will to men are elapsed policies. They don't even cover a dented fender.

As I look back now I can see that the steps toward war are as ponderous and as deliberate as the progress of an elephant on a rope bridge.

I'm not trying to explain this war because nobody has told me about the last one yet. All that I know is that they got us with a penny postcard and didn't spend a lot more on us afterward.

Wars are not spontaneous outbursts. They creep up on you stealthily in the back like your first full dress necktie.

Public Spirit

The resignation of Clarence A. Dykstra as chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board deprives the Government of a man who combines zeal for public service with ability as an administrator. The two qualities go together too seldom. But, then, few men in our country have had such an opportunity to graft a talent for administration upon a devotion to civic welfare as has Dr. Dykstra. A native of Cleveland, he served as an educator in various colleges before taking up the job which brought him into national prominence. This was the city managership of Cincinnati. For seven years Dr. Dykstra held this position, and in that time sought not only to build up a model municipality but also to turn the country's attention to what Lord Bryce called the weak spot in our democracy, namely, municipal service. He left Cincinnati to become head of the University of Wisconsin, but when war broke out, and new agencies called for new administrators, the President enlisted his service as director of the National Selective Service Administration. It was a great task, but Dr. Dykstra acquitted himself with marked success. He has duplicated that success with the Mediation Board, and now can leave the chairmanship to return to his academic duties knowing that this new organization has been well started on its way to become a key agency in national defense. Dr. Dykstra can take satisfaction in his accomplishments in the public service at a time which calls upon everybody to do his part during the national emergency.

Pact With Turkey

The road to war in Europe is strewn with nonaggression treaties. Austria had such a pact with Germany, and where is Austria now? Poland's security was seemingly buttressed by nonaggression treaties with Germany and Russia. The German treaty still had five years to run when Poland was attacked. And Russia shared in the ultimate partition of that unhappy republic. Similarly the nonaggression treaties which the little Baltic nations had with Russia did not save those countries. Nor did the pact of eternal friendship which Hungary had signed with Yugoslavia early this year help the Balkan kingdom when the Budapest government saw an opportunity to take advantage of the Nazi attack on Yugoslavia.

There are many other instances of the same tragic kind. Unhappy is the nation which has a nonaggression agreement with a totalitarian power! Such a nation is on the spot. It is a victim marked for extinction. That is why June 18, 1941, may go down in Turkish history as a day of mourning. For on that day Turkey and Germany concluded a treaty in which they agreed to "bind themselves mutually to respect the integrity and inviolability of their territories."

This does not mean that Germany is about to attack Turkey. There is, as a rule, no such immediate relationship between a nonaggression pact and the aggression that sooner or later follows. The immediate purpose of such pacts is to isolate some third nation. In Turkey's case that may be Russia, to whom Turkey had for a long time looked for the direction of her policy. But Turkey is also allied to Great Britain. The German-Turkish nonaggression treaty, therefore, may prove either a blow at Russia by protecting Germany's southeastern flank in the event of a Russo-German clash, or a blow at Great Britain whose alliance with Turkey has now become so attenuated as to be meaningless.

British circles express relief over the fact that the German-Turkish agreement does not go any further. But it goes far enough. In a separate declaration appended to the treaty it not only provides for increased economic relations between the two countries, thus tending to bring Turkey within the economic orbit of the "new order," but it also pledges the two countries to a radio and press peace. That means that the freedom of expression which the Turkish press and radio have hitherto enjoyed in dealing with Germany may now become a thing of the past. The real significance of the pact is not, however, to be discovered in a reading of its terms. Everything depends on how it will be carried out. And that will depend on how the international situation develops.

Fumbling With Murder

Washington is thoroughly aroused over the horrible murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff and the failure of the police to make any headway in solving the crime. If this were an isolated example of lawlessness in the Nation's Capital and incompetence on the part of its police force, there would be less occasion for alarm. But every well-informed citizen knows that the day-to-day crime record of the Capital is a national disgrace. When an appalling and spectacular murder is added to this toll, it is not surprising that the public rises up and demands a change in the conditions which make such lawlessness possible.

The Strieff murder has brought home to thousands of Americans the humiliating fact that life, even in the Capital of this great democracy, is simply not safe. To our lasting discredit, also, it has revealed that the Capital has no government capable of meeting grave threats to human security. A well-governed community would have met this challenge by swift and effective measures. Elected officials of such a community would not have dared to dawdle or procrastinate while fiends are on the loose. In Washington, however, this most revolting of crimes has baffled the police and brought about only a confused backing and filling from officials. The pervert who sent Miss Strieff to her doom (and he may be responsible for other devilish crimes in the neighborhood where this murder was committed) is probably amusing himself by thumbing his nose at the poor, incompetent District of Columbia while he waits to strike his next victim.

The foremost problem of the moment, of course, is to find the slayer. But it would be a grave mistake to assume that the roots of lawlessness in Washington go back only to laxity on the part of the police. Even in the face of the present clamor for action, officials who control the destiny of the District seem to be stymied. On Wednesday the Commissioners announced an investigation of the Police Department "to weed out the dead wood" and find out what the special needs of the police are. On Thursday that plan was postponed because some criticism had been heard on Capitol Hill. At first it was assumed that the local authorities were merely stepping aside to clear the way for a more sweeping Congressional inquiry. But the House District Committee has not decided to take over the job. Indeed, it failed to get a quorum yesterday; so the whole issue must await action until next Monday.

Crime thrives on precisely this type of confusion and uncertainty. Nowhere in Washington is there any authority to act swiftly. What is even more deplorable, the city appears to have no official energetic or bold enough to lead the way out of this morass of inaction. While the people demand a speedy arrest and a house cleaning of officials who have failed to enforce the law effectively, aged and ailing men fumble the problem at the District Building. It is time for the President himself to give attention to this crisis in local government. The gravity of our local problem should induce the President to review the serious handicaps under which the Board of Commissioners is functioning. And certainly it should spur Congress to a thorough investigation of the tragic deficiencies of law enforcement in the Capital.

Spotting Nazi Planes

During and, in fact, long before the war the Nazis made skillful propaganda use of scientific threats. They were supposed to have half a dozen brand-new mechanical inventions that would render armed opposition useless. It was even rumored that by some devious method of remote control they could make planes, tanks, automobiles stop dead in their tracks. Instead, the war has revealed that, for the most part, German technical genius has been devoted to perfecting and enlarging upon scientific weapons already known to other countries. And now it appears that the British, not the Germans, have come forward with a scientific contribution of first magnitude. For the secret radio-spotting device announced by British officials several days ago is apparently far ahead of the German equivalent. It has been largely responsible for the increasing number of Nazi bombers that are being shot down. Last month, for example, 156 German night bombers were brought down, a new high and nearly twice as many as were bagged in April. This seems a clear indication of the efficacy of Britain's radio locators, which reportedly measure the distance and direction of approach of enemy raiders and enable the air command to dispatch or direct R. A. F. fighters to meet the invaders.

The British are naturally just as reluctant as the Germans to reveal even the existence of such potent defensive weapons. But the lack not only of sufficient radio technicians but of mechanics of all kinds was apparently one of the chief factors impelling the British to make their impressive disclosure. They have called for at least 25,000 Americans to join the newly formed Civilian Technical Corps and have opened an office in New York for volunteers. Their bid can, of course, be answered without substantially depleting our enormous reserves of technically trained men. But the British appeal is particularly significant from our standpoint, for it shows clearly that the nation with the greatest backlog of technicians is best equipped to meet the increasingly complicated scientific demands of modern war. We need no further example to support the contention of Federal authorities that the more training shops we set up to cope with the rising demand for defense workers, the better protected we shall be if and when we get in a shooting war.

"Still Champeen!"

Although it has had little or no influence upon the history of the next thousand years, the affair of Messrs. Joe Louis and Billy Conn had been preceded by almost as much build-up and ballyhoo as a major military invasion. Not, indeed, since the second encounter of Mr. Louis and Herr Schmeling had any heavyweight bout been given such extensive and favorable advance notice in the newspapers and popular magazines. This probably had something to do with fetching the gate receipts figure up to the rather fashionable neighborhood of a half a million dollars, and with diminishing the odds on another victory by Mr. Louis to a ratio that seemed at last to insure a reasonable return on the capital so invested.

It was not, however, until the fight was under way that very many doubts arose as to whether Mr. Louis' fists still constituted the giltedged security that the investors have hitherto and properly considered them. Before the bout there had been rumors that Mr. Louis was, as they say, slowing down; that four years of high prosperity had given him a too genial and charitable outlook on life; that he had gradually developed an attitude of live and let live most incongruous and unbecoming in a heavyweight champion; that he had lost the old killer instinct, as the boys like to call it. It was also reported that Mr. Conn possessed some mysterious magic in his hands and legs that more than compensated for his 25-pound disadvantage in weight. But, outside of Pittsburgh and Pompton Lakes, N. J., these reports were not taken very seriously.

It all goes to show that skepticism can be as dangerous as credulity. It is the almost universal opinion of those who witnessed the business at the Polo Grounds, as well as of the two principals, that nothing but a certain incautiousness on the part of Mr. Conn in the thirteenth round prevented him from relieving Mr. Louis of the title by way of a clearly earned decision. It would seem that in the later rounds the audacious notion of planting a knockout punch on the greatest of all knockout punchers actually entered Mr. Conn's head. Thus he became a crude type of the tragic hero who, according to the classical formula, is destroyed by his own excessive ambition. He made his fate without deserving it. At any rate, that is how it must have seemed to most of the millions who listened to the broadcast blow-by-blow reports. After those dramatic tenth, eleventh and twelfth rounds many must have shared in the hope that the great Joe Louis was going to lose by a knockout. The novelty-loving masses hate to live too long with the same set of celebrities.

Not A Precedent

The National Defense Mediation Board has made clear that its recommendation to the Bethlehem Steel Company in the San Francisco shipyards dispute is not to be interpreted as a precedent for approval of the closed shop in defense industries. In this instance the Pacific Coast master agreement had been accepted by all the shipbuilding companies in the area, except Bethlehem. The principle of the closed shop had thus been established through collective bargaining. Obviously the board could not ignore that fact in working out recommendations that will be fair to employes and employers alike.

So the significance of the recommendation is not that it proposes acceptance of the closed shop in a plant holding large defense orders. Rather its significance lies in the fact that the board is using its influence to sustain and extend an agreement arrived at around the conference table. Even though the closed shop in defense industries is not in keeping with the policy of using all our man power to the best advantage in the present emergency, it is difficult to see how the board could have reasonably avoided the conclusion it drew in this case. For collective bargaining is also a cardinal American policy, and the national welfare could not be promoted by undermining that basis of orderly labor relations.

British Labor

Will you permit me to direct the attention of American labor leaders and unionists to one or two items contained in the inspiriting article by Mr. G. D. H. Cole, of England, published in The Post of June 14? Dealing with the attitude of British labor toward the emergency, he says:

"Of all the hundred or so trade-unions directly concerned with war production I can think of but very few instances in which there was any reluctance on the labor side in agreeing to the changes needed in the interests of higher output. In 99 cases out of a hundred the necessary changes were made without difficulty—often without even going through the procedure laid down by emergency law as a safeguard for trade-union interests. The workers through those summer months labored for prodigiously long hours, often under exceedingly difficult conditions, and it is beyond doubt that their labors averted defeat.

"The labor leaders and the great majority of their followers alike believed firmly that the defeat of Hitler mattered immeasurably more than anything else."

That is the record of labor in Great Britain. Let it be noted that in no case was it necessary to utilize the British army to settle a labor dispute. But let it be further and most emphatically noted that the patriotism of the British working man, his readiness to put all labor troubles aside and to devote himself at all costs to the task at hand were the paramount motives and incentives that enabled him to keep the German out of his country.

Must we confess that these motives and incentives are lacking in the American working man? Surely it cannot be so. Every industrial strike in this country at the present time is pie for Hitler and a handicap to the effort that the country is making. May every American read this record of British labor and go and do likewise.

American Colors

Perhaps a good resolution for Americans to adopt now that Flag Day has passed would be that of deciding to wear only the American colors, although still in sympathy with all of the unfortunate peoples whose lands are ravaged by war today, and whose badges many have been wearing. The best way that we can extend aid to those peoples is not to take a political position or by wearing the colors of the belligerents, which, in itself, is an act of propaganda. What we should do is to contribute materially to the many funds which have been established for the purpose of rendering material aid to the starving, ill and ravaged peoples of Europe and Asia.

Let us wear the American colors, which should represent faith, hope, and, above all, charity.

A Creed For Americans

Having written the inclosed few lines for school boys and girls whom I teach in this city, I now submit them to you for whatever good they may do or value they may have in fostering real Americanism, which we are trying to protect in these trying times:

Have respect for a Divine Spirit,
And love for your fellow men.
Glory in the freedom of your soul;
Be a searcher and believer in truth;
Be strong in loyalty to what is right.
Grow in patience and in tolerance;
Love that liberty that allows you to be your best self.
Develop a healthy growth of mind, body and spirit.
Believe in yourself.
Love those beautiful and fine things which money cannot buy, but which come from God.

Eire And The War

Your correspondent, Maurice P. O'Connor, in The Post of June 14, should give the facts on which he bases his rather incredible assertion that "there are, in another portion of Ireland which flies the British flag, nearly half a million Irishmen who at this moment are virtually disfranchised because of their religion." Perhaps the reason the other portion of Ireland was not allowed to purchase arms here was not because it "refused to enter the war" but because there was doubt upon which side those who are so "skeptical about the highfalutin war aims of England" would use such arms. If that portion of Ireland is "determined 99 per cent to keep out of war," what do they want with arms for war?

Disagrees With Lindley On Value Of St. Lawrence Project

My attention has been drawn to an article in The Post of June 13, wherein Mr. Ernest K. Lindley set forth arguments for speedy completion of the proposed St. Lawrence waterway and power project. I do not find in fact that Mr. Lindley advanced definite arguments. Rather, it is my opinion, he made a series of general statements, which in no way had conclusive bearing on the real issues presented by the President's insistence that construction of the project is "vital to the defense of the North American continent."

Mr. Lindley said indorsement of the project by Mr. William S. Knudsen and his associate in the Office of Production Management, Mr. Sidney Hillman, was "a stout blow—perhaps the stoutest" that "has been struck" for the St. Lawrence project.

No one would deny the political effect of indorsement of the project by Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman. Those gentlemen hold high place in the defense councils of the Administration and must be regarded as reflecting the President's views. Neither could one lightly regard such testimony as will be given by Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox on the defense value of the St. Lawrence project.

But to characterize indorsements given in advance of Congressional inquiry into the merits of the project as "perhaps the stoutest blow for the St. Lawrence waterway and hydroelectric development" is to assume that the Congress will be influenced by the political status rather than the character of testimony officials of the Government will give.

This is a project of such vast proportions, entailing such great expenditures, and involving international problems of fundamental character, that undoubtedly the Congress will seek exact information regarding the bases of indorsement of it as a defense measure by Messrs. Knudsen, Hillman, Stimson and Knox. Unlike Mr. Lindley, it is improbable members of the Congress will regard mere indorsement of the project by those gentlemen as a "deadly blow to the contention that instead of furthering national defense, the St. Lawrence project would divert men and materials and machines which could be put to better use."

I should assume that the political adroitness represented by such a general commendation of high officials of the Government would invite rather than divert searching inquiry and exhaustive effort to obtain exact information from those charged with the defense of the country. Mr. Lindley's apparently naive, but actually clever statement that Knudsen, Knox and Stimson, "all Republicans," are not "New Dealers who would take a stand out of loyalty to the President," should not, and I am certain, will not, forestall close examination of the views of each of them on the St. Lawrence project.

Mr. Lindley reflects President Roosevelt's view, when he argues that the time required to construct the St. Lawrence project is no more an argument against its defense potentialities than the time required to build battleships.

"It," he says, "we are justified in building a two-ocean Navy which cannot be completed for another four or five years—and by then may have to be increased still more if it is to protect us in both oceans—it would not seem lacking in foresight to build a seaway and hydroelectric project which will require no longer time for completion."

No logical parallel can be drawn between the Nation's determination to provide national security by building a two-ocean Navy whose efficiency as a defense instrument would be a physical fact, and the construction of a waterway whose natural characteristics and methods of construction would not only be vulnerable to attack and destruction, but because of such vulnerability would, by the testimony of military experts, be a defense liability, rather than an asset. We are building a two-ocean Navy, not for immediate defense, but for long-term defense. We now know the hazard of further dependence upon the British fleet. We propose to provide our own defense in both oceans, and that fact destroys the parallel set up by Mr. Roosevelt and reflected by Mr. Lindley.

It is apparent that Mr. Lindley, like other proponents of the seaway, encounters difficulty in balancing the time element involved in its construction with our immediate defense necessities. He argues that cruisers could be built in Great Lakes yards, freeing coast yards for needed freighters.

Mr. Lindley is in error in assuming that cruisers could be built in Great Lakes yards. The proposed 27-foot waterway would not provide sufficient draft for such vessels, even if the Navy would countenance construction in an area so vulnerable to attack and providing but a single channel to the sea.

Assuming Mr. Lindley to be correct—which he is not—when could cruisers be built in the Great Lakes yards? President Roosevelt says four years hence. Mr. Lindley suggests two years hence. Who actually knows? But we do know that freighters are needed now.

"The united and emphatic stand taken by members of the OPM charged with the heavy responsibilities of developing the defenses of the Nation is a heavy blow to the opposition," Mr. Lindley concludes.

It may be so regarded by the journalistic mind, but it should not be by those charged with the responsibility of passing upon the merits of the project. They, indeed, should expect, and should insist upon, testimony from those who have given such indorsement of a character in keeping with their responsibilities as ministers of defense.

The Post Impressionist

Guardians Of Mediocrity

This month many young persons suffered humiliation and many older persons experienced defeat, simply because they did not understand one of the phenomena of our civilization. Numbers of them, though not afflicted with more than average stupidity, will have the same trouble again and again, and will go through life branded as failures, simply because they do not know how to outguess the examiners.

Of course, the great majority of those we regard as dunces in school go on to positions of moderate or more than moderate dignity, from which they can afford to laugh tolerantly at the schoolmasters. Nevertheless, even the most successful of them are scarred by juvenile disappointments. Wherever they are, whether in the truck driver's seat or the executive's office, they carry with them a sense of frustration which causes them to snort at the sight of a man wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Naturally, whether you are trying to pass the college boards or win a prized job in the Government, the most important element of success is to know your subject. But, unfortunately, knowledge alone is not power. Before the tribunal of pedagogy, a man must be calm, determined and alert, and, above all, he must be acquainted with the rules by which this particular court operates. He must be able to speak the same language as his inquisitors, even if it is not his natural language.

Some persons are quite convinced that they were not cut out to take examinations. Passing tests seems to them to be an art in which only a few, the talented few, are favored. They may be proficient to the thousandth of a gram or the ten-thousandth of an inch, but when they are seated at desks and the use of their hands is confined to pushing pens, their minds become blank. They are in the same class with those who speak with tongues of silver but turn to clods when introduced to the typewriter.

One reason for this stupefaction is a belief that the mind of the examiner is on an exalted plane which cannot be reached by ordinary mortals. This idea is mistaken. The truth is that a pedagogue, however learned he may be, usually becomes as dull as his students or his job applicants when he attacks the task of finding out what they know. It is his duty to put himself on a median level, if he is not already there, for he is supposed to put the stamp of approval on the average man. Protecting mediocrity is his job.

What the examinee must remember, then, is that however clumsily the examiner has expressed himself, the chances are that what he wants to ask is something fairly commonplace.

One type of examination, that encountered most often in later life, is the product of many minds. The job seeker must conform to the notions of several persons all at once. The resultant confusion can be terrifying to anyone except an experienced and stout examination taker. The victim must make himself realize that if he cannot make sensible answers to contradictory questions, neither can his competitors. Moreover, if the language of the proposition is beyond his understanding the first time he reads it, the worst thing he can do is to conclude that something complicated and abstruse is expected of him. The answer that has been decided upon as correct is most likely something that any dumbbell knows.

The examination, therefore, is reduced to human factors after all. The problem is to judge the examiners. Are their minds on business or pedagogy, or to what proportions are these pursuits mixed in their words? How intelligent are they, themselves? What degree of intelligence do they expect in the persons to be examined? What are their personal mental standards—are they interested in truth alone or do they compromise with truth, or do they live by catchwords? What mental standards do they look for in those they will approve?

This last consideration is of great importance. Many persons fail because their standards are really higher than those of the examiners. One of the fixtures in my office took an examination for a better-paid position. The work he was doing, and doing satisfactorily, required a good deal more responsibility and more intelligence than the job contemplated in the examination. But it was the questions which should have demanded only general intelligence that tripped him up. He was confronted with a number of sentences, to be graded in the following fashion: (a) terrible; (b) can be improved upon; (c) can't be improved upon. He thought nearly all of them could be improved upon, and it is entirely possible he could have demonstrated his point if given a chance. But he was asked only to grade them (a), (b) or (c) and he graded most of them (a) and (b). He got 60—his standards were higher than those of the examiners.

Perhaps it is too much to ask of anybody that he be able to judge the average literary taste of a panel of professional educators. But the fact remains that the examinee failed not in knowledge or general intelligence but in the special facility for sizing up his examiners.

I am not approaching this subject as a sorehead. I have always passed my exams, largely because I know the things I have written here. But I have sometimes felt a little guilty at passing when more capable persons have flunked out. If we can't have a revolution which will bring tests of ability closer to the abilities they are supposed to test, it seems to me in all fairness that every school should have a required course in how to pass examinations.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

If Labor Ran The Country . . .

THERE WAS A TIME a few years ago when I might have said in a glib, unthinking way that a government of laborites—meaning professional unioneers—would be a fine thing for this country. I mean an abrupt change from our accustomed make-up and balance to an outright labor Administration under a labor President and with a labor majority in Congress.

Since then I have learned lessons about the intelligence, political and personal ethics of our unioneers which convince me that there is not a single individual in the whole movement who can run a union, much less the United States, without ripping the Constitution to tatters. It is not merely that the leadership is infested with low-grade, ignorant union politicians of the Tammany or Jersey City type, racketeers, convicts and Communists to such an extent that the average is far below that of the Republican and Democratic Parties at their worst.

PEGLER

THAT FACT is alarming enough, but to that fact we must add the truth that wherever the laborite finds himself full of power, he immediately proceeds to abuse it like a lower-case Mussolini or Hitler. Or if he isn't burly enough by nature to abuse the power himself, he permits others to abuse it in his name, as Dave Beck, of Seattle, has abused the power delegated to him by that pious and earnest but ineffective old monument, Dan Tobin, of the Teamsters. Mr. Tobin is a living summary of all the civic, domestic and religious virtues, but, for efficiency's sake, he appointed Beck as his Col. House or Harry Hopkins, and Beck, thus muscled and armed, proceeded to establish a dictatorship as arbitrary as any in Europe. He remains Mr. Tobin's appointee, because the old man let him grow too big and tough and might lose his own position in a showdown.

IN A PARALLEL case a labor President of the United States would appoint regional gauleiters to shove the people around, tax them at will, govern by decree, limit the number of delicatessens, laundries and pubs in any given area and determine who must positively not be hired and fired. Also, in a parallel case, the citizen would appeal to the public courts only at his grave peril, for the unioneers are all dead set against the courts, although you may be sure that Mr. Tobin, for example, would appeal to them within the hour were I to call him a crook, as I ardently do not.

The union movement is so laced together by ties of loyalty, politics, venality and mutual interest that a labor President and a labor Congress could not give the whole community a fair Administration without violating their first loyalty, which is given to the unions. Or if the President and a scattering among labor's Congressional majority had the conscience to attempt to serve the country impartially, the rest of labor's Congressional strength would gang up on them, picket the White House with goons in lock step and four deep and declare war on any foreign power whose ambassador sneaked in the back way to talk over serious matters with the incumbent Mr. Big.

THE LEADERSHIP of the organized unions has produced no man as yet who could be trusted with the dangerous responsibility of high national office, except he be surrounded and outranked by officials of normal mind to veto his errors. John "Wrong" Lewis was one of the strongest leaders, and he made a good press for himself with a coterie of politically callow bleeding-hearts of the fourth estate in the early days of the New Deal. But events have shown him to be erratic, dictatorial, and a man who made words pass for wisdom until he finally talked himself out of the picture with a campaign speech that sounded like the Fourth of July oration of an old-time county chairman.

But even at his height Lewis did not trust all his own rank and file to vote their choice or pay their dues willingly, and that fact may be taken as a faint indication of the fate the common citizen would have suffered under him as President.

IN THE MATTER of graft and exploitation of office for profit the union leadership taken as a whole suffers much even by comparison with the old parties. One reason has been that the law has presumed the unioneers to be a sort of consecrated man and the union a holy organization no more to be challenged in its private affairs than a church. Another is that because the union was ignored by the law the leader has been free to rob and persecute members, nonmembers, businessmen and, more recently, the whole community, with only his conscience for a cop.

I believe that seven or eight years ago a great many Americans would have said it was time to give labor a chance to run the country. But nowadays the proposal would be howled down in wild alarm, and most angrily by workers who know by experience what a calamity that would be.

The Once Over

Strike Duty

Dear Ma.

Well I am back from duty running a airplane plant and I am sorry because it was a great releaf from long walks, kitchen police work and them manoovers witch always last a couple of days longer than the schedule calls for on account of the army has to go out and look for lost generals, kernels and empires. A job running a factory aint much trouble as most of the work is confined two posing for newsreal pictures with ex-strikers and showing only good humor all around. The strikers where I was sent did not want no trouble with us and I gess they just struck so they could see just how serious Washington was taking the preparedness pogrom.

From all I seen after we arrived the workers did not need much prodding in order to return to work and get four and five times more money than I get for working a hole lot less time. I gess a man just gets kind of restless when he is living a normal life and sleeping at home without no hardships to speak of.

Of coarse we do not take no pride in being sent to interfere in strikes, even if it gets on our nerves to read about folks outside the army dong so much squawking about hours and pay. From what I seen and heard most of the trouble is dew to a few adjitators who can throw their voices farther than most union men and who have more time to stirring up trouble than most workingmen has. I seen some of the strike leaders close up and if they are 100 per cent Americans I am a Chinese mandolin. They look more like Moscow revolutionists than Moscow revolutionists do. And the government could stop most of the strikes and please most American workers two if it would stop beating around the bush and just draft these guys into the army as potato peelers witch is where they belong.

I get awful sore when I think of the Communists causing so much trouble to the arsenal of the democrats pogrom now when I remember that I was in Washington in civilyun life a couple of years ago when it was the fashion to throw official lunches for some of these birds. It is the consensis of opinion in my outfit that nine out of ten workers on the defense pogrom are as good Americans as we who is in the army and that there wood be no more trouble if Roosevelt rounded up these Reds and put them in charge of any good top sergeant like Sergeant Mooney for a few weeks. He wood cure them or else.

We no sooner got back to camp than the skipper started right out to give us the works again. I gess he figured that a army gets all out of practice and forgets how to walk if it is on strike duty a few days, so we have been drilling and hiking ever since. My feet is so soar I almost wish there wood be another strike so we could be sent to it for a rest.

I wood be pretty deprest if it was not for our division band. The modern army band may not be as brassy and as inspiring as it used to be but you get bettter music. Our band is full of fine musicians and we got a clarinet player from Roxy's, a slide trombone star from the Capitol, a drummer who was champion at the World's Fair one hole season and three fellows from a simphonix orchestra. They can make My Country Tis of Three sound like a rhumba witch is not a bad idea considering musical tastes today.

Your loving son OSCAR.

Our Future Course

Problems Posed By The Robin Moor

WHAT CAN WE do about the sinking of the Robin Moor? It is "we" as a Nation, as a national entity—not "we" as the sum of 140,000,000 individuals, with individual timidities or truculences, wisdoms or unwisdoms, fears or rashnesses. It is a policy for a Nation that we must arrive at, a Nation that we hope will continue to exist, and have future generations, whose fate should be our concern.

First, the facts, very briefly: An American ship, flying the American flag, with an American crew, carrying American passengers, and carrying an American cargo which an agency of the American Government had examined carefully to make sure it contained no munitions—this ship was sunk by a German submarine. It was sunk at a point thousands of miles from Germany and from any war zone. It was sunk at a point where it had a right to be under any rule or precedent of international law. It was sunk in waters which had been declared to be American continental waters by the 21 American republics acting in conference. The sinking included a circumstance which was a stark violation of international law, and of a specific pact which Germany had signed in 1930. The pact provided that no ship—even a ship carrying contraband, which the Robin Moor did not—should be sunk unless there was complete provision for the safety of passengers and crew.

THE STATEMENT that the Robin Moor did not carry contraband needs explanation—though not any qualification. It contained no contraband as contraband is defined by American laws and regulations. It contained no contraband as defined by international agreement. It contained some steel rails—and steel rails have been designated as contraband by both Germany and Britain. But neutral countries can hardly be required to accept any definition of contraband that any warring nation chooses to make. If this were admitted, Germany could say that anything at all is contraband; it could say that the shipment of ladies' brassieres which the Robin Moor carried is contraband.

To become involved in hair-splitting about contraband will not help to arrive at decision. Doubtless there will be such hair-splitting, carried on by exchanges of notes between our Government and Germany, as there was in similar situations before we entered the great war. But this will be no more conclusive or useful now than it was 25 years ago.

THE OFFENSE of Germany in the Robin Moor case need not rest upon any definition of contraband—contraband need not figure in it. The other aspect of the Robin Moor case, the sinking without giving the passengers and crew assurance of safety, is an unquestionable violation of international law, as well as of humanity and morals. Germany has treated an American ship in a way for which there is no defense, which the United States cannot possibly tolerate.

What shall we do? Consider first the easiest way. The easiest way would be to call upon Germany for an apology, and a promise not to do it again.

Conceivably the Nazis might give the promise—though this seems doubtful. The fact that the Nazis sank an American ship, and the defiant attitude the Nazi government took immediately after, suggests that Hitler may have changed his policy about America. He may have arrived at a point where he has some larger purpose in which it suits him not to placate America but to flout her; not to keep us out of the war, but to bring us in.

BUT SUPPOSE we get the promise, could we rely upon it? Is there any human being who does not know by this time that Hitler makes promises not to be kept but to serve his strategy? He makes promises not merely as a way out of difficulty, he makes promises as part of an affirmative technique of the world program of "Mein Kampf." To make promises, to get statesmen and peoples to act in reliance upon his promises, and then to reap advantage—that is as much Hitler's technique as the use of ruse in war. Any statesman who, after seeing how Hitler deceived a dozen other countries, would now rely upon a promise of Hitler, and base a policy upon that reliance—any such statesman would deserve impeachment for the culpable negligence of gullibility.

That easy way of the timid or fatuous—to get a promise from Hitler and rely upon it—cannot be our course about the Robin Moor.

We are obliged to rely upon ourselves, upon our own strength. Our only practicable course is to declare that American merchant ships shall be safe wherever on the seven seas they have a right to be; and that their safety will be assured by the American Navy.

TO MAKE SUCH a declaration and act upon it, is not necessarily to commit any act of war against Germany. If any American naval vessel, engaged in protecting American shipping, is attacked by a German submarine or raider or bombing plane, that would be an act of war by Germany. And if thereafter, any American merchant vessel should be attacked as the Robin Moor was attacked—that, too, would be an act of war by Germany.

Hitler's Next Move

By Ernest K. Lindley

Three Conjectures

THE WAR is at an extremely mysterious stage. The heavy concentrations of Nazi troops along the Russian border have been verified through official sources. For several weeks German air attacks on England have perceptibly lessened. For ten days the number of British bombers over Germany seems to have exceeded, for the first time since the war, the number of German bombers over England. The first lord of the admiralty asserts that the Nazis have been forced to shift the weight of their attack from the North Atlantic because of improved defense of the northwest sea approaches.

On the surface this all adds up to a transfer of the main theater of war from west to east. Expert observers are reluctant to jump to this conclusion. The Nazis are ingenious in managing a "war of nerves," and their military resources are vast.

THE OLD THEORY that Hitler would fight on only one front at one time has been severely qualified by our military experts. This grew, as a precept, out of World War I, and applied to Germany within its old boundaries, hemmed in by powerful land forces. Today there is only one land front of importance left in Europe. Hitler has the ground forces to wage war against Russia simultaneously with an attempt to invade England. And one reason that some experienced military men believe he will really invade Russia is that this is the only way that he can keep busy a large part of his forces. Idle troops, they hold, deteriorate rapidly.

It was widely presumed that Hitler also had air forces sufficient to fight on a major land front and at the same time keep England and the North Atlantic sea lane under heavy attack. But there has been a slackening of assaults on England, even though a major land offensive is not being conducted.

Is the Luftwaffe really short of gasoline or lubricating oil? Or is it less numerous than was thought? Or is Hitler merely reorganizing and reequipping his forces for a heavier assault on the British Isles and the North Atlantic sea lanes? To these questions no authoritative answer is available.

Nor is there more than conjecture to explain the mobilization of forces along the Russian border. At least three guesses—each from a shrewd and experienced observer—can be recorded, however.

THE FIRST is that Hitler's present demands from Russia are minor: some more small economic concessions, plus perhaps a revision of spheres of control or influence in the Baltic. Or perhaps nothing more than to assure that the Russians stay quiet while he attempts to invade England or puts a squeeze on Turkey.

The second is that what he really wants is a right of way for his troops for a grand envelopment on the east of the British position in the Mediterranean and Middle East. This right of way might be by ship across the Black Sea to Georgia, and thence into Iran and Iraq. The Persian oil fields are highly important to British operations in the Mediterranean—much more so than the Kirkuk fields of Iraq with their pipe lines through Syria and Palestine to the Mediterranean. The one British refinery for Iraq oil, at Haifa, produces only ordinary gasoline and fuel oil. This refinery has been subjected to aerial bombing.

Higher-grade gasoline for airplanes, as well as larger supplies of ordinary gasoline and fuel oil, come from the Persian refineries. In Iraq the Germans would be at the gates of India, and from Iraq they could push westward and southward overland to Suez and Egypt.

An even more convenient right of way would be by land all the way—across the Ukraine and North Caucasus.

THE THIRD and more far-reaching hypothesis is that Hitler has given up hope of knocking England out this year and is preparing for a long war. This means that he must have the resources of Russia, either by conquest or by a very great infiltration of German technicians and managers. The simplest and surest way probably would be by conquest. If he succeeded in fairly short order, as most military experts think he would, he would then, it is argued, be immune to blockade and able to put up with increasing damage to industry and transportation in western Germany.

If Hitler controls Russia, it is argued further, he can offer a peace which would be difficult to refuse, since the futility of trying to dislodge him on the continent would be apparent.

The curtain of mystery may soon lift—perhaps even before this gets into print. But these theories are set forth as those of three intelligent guessers in a period of uncertainty.

Another Pact

By Barnet Nover

Turkey Signs On The Dotted Line

IN THE OLD DAYS treaties tended to be clear-cut formulations of national policy. Their provisions were not always scrupulously adhered to. But they were made to be kept and usually were. A nation's pledged word could be taken at face value. Treaties could be read as written.

NOVER

That is no longer true. Treaties in the old-fashioned sense are still being made. But many treaties recently negotiated and signed were nothing more than counters in an elaborate game of deception and intimidation. They belong in the category of propagandist devices rather than diplomatic instruments. What they say is more often than not completely at variance with what they actually mean.

IT IS IN this category that the German - Turkish "friendship treaty" of June 18 belongs.

The language of this pact, considered in a vacuum, is perfectly harmless. The two nations "bind themselves mutually to respect the integrity and inviolability of their territories." They agree not to take any measure that "is aimed directly or indirectly against the other contracting party." And they pledge themselves in the future "to communicate with each other in friendly manner on all questions affecting their common interests in order to bring about understanding on the treatment of such questions." The treaty is to run for 10 years.

If these pledges mean what they seem to mean, Turkey need no longer worry over the possibility of a German invasion. She is now secure behind her frontiers. For, in addition to this treaty with Germany, she enjoys an alliance with Great Britain, a guarantee of nonaggression from the Soviet Union, and treaties of friendship with Iran and Iraq.

THAT ISMET INONU or Sukru Saracoglu, or any other Turkish statesman, sees the German pact in such a bright light is most unlikely, however. The treaty of nonaggression with the Third Reich is not a victory for the Ankara government but a defeat; it does not add to Turkish security but reflects the weak and exposed position she now finds herself in. At the very best it is for Turkey, a desperate device with which to gain time. And there is a strong possibility that the treaty is or will prove to be the first long step which Turkey has been forced to take on the road that will ultimately lead to the destruction of her independence. The Turks know only too well what has happened to other nations that signed nonaggression treaties with the Third Reich.

The latter possibility is borne out in an examination of the circumstances preceding the signing of the Turkish-German Treaty and of the implications behind the terms of the supplementary notes on economic matters and radio and press relations which were signed at the time of the signing of the pact.

TURKEY is Britain's ally. In signing the treaty with Hitler the Turkish government did not renounce her alliance with London. On the contrary, the preamble of the present treaty specifically states that it was being signed "without prejudice to present obligations of both countries." Yet it would be absurd to deny that in agreeing to a pact of friendship with Britain's enemy, Turkey has not further weakened the already tenuous link uniting her with the British camp. The treaty is, therefore, a blow to the British.

In the world of today no nation can carry water on both shoulders. To the extent that Turkey is now willing to be friendly with the Reich, her friendship with Great Britain is weakened. Nor is that fact altered in any degree by recognition of the plight in which Turkey found herself as a result of the German conquest of the Balkans and the occupation by the Axis of the Aegean Islands lying off the Anatolian coast.

For Turkey, the alternative to making terms with Hitler was to court the fate of Yugoslavia and Greece. Turkey has avoided the fate of Yugoslavia and Greece, but in doing so has not had to go as far in meeting Germany's wishes as did Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria. Yet, while the Ankara government has successfully avoided adhesion to the Axis, she has not succeeded in avoiding adhesion to the "new order" on its economic side.

The supplementary note exchanged by Von Papen and Saracoglu contains a pledge to "further economic relations between Germany and Turkey." Another supplementory note expresses the wish of the signatories "that the press of both countries, as well as the radio on both sides, in their publications and transmissions will always take account of the spirit of friendship and mutual confidence that characterizes German-Turkish relations." The long arm of Dr. Goebbels will now reach over to Ankara and Istanbul.

MORE IMPORTANT than the British alliance as a factor determining Turkish policy in the past has been Turkey's relations with Soviet Russia. It is very probable that the failure of Turkey to implement her alliance with Great Britain was, at every stage, due to Russian objections. It is not so clear that Russia sponsored the Turkish pact with Germany, approved it beforehand, or was even consulted. There is a strong possibility that the pact was even designed by Germany to break the ties which have hitherto connected Turkey with Russia and, in so doing, make it possible for Hitler to put increased pressure on the Soviet Union. Certainly the steam in the Russo-German boiler is rising. A showdown nears. The Turkish treaty may very well prove to be the prelude to an impending climax in the relations between Hitler and Stalin.

Army And Navy Will Censor Mail At British-Leased Bases

The Army and Navy yesterday announced they would censor all mail passing through the postoffices at Atlantic bases recently leased from Britain in order "to protect defense secrets."

The statment pointed out that inasmuch as British and American interests dovetail in the bases, the censorship system has been set up in agreement with the Brith government.

At a result of the agreement, mail from any American postoffice to an American base in British territory will not undergo examination by British censors, but instead will be checked through Army and Navy officials.

The announcement here emphasized that the censorship will be carried out only at the bases, for incoming as well as outgoing mail, but that no part of the censorship activities is carried on within the continental limits of the United States.

Examination of the mail, the War Department said, is essential in order to safeguard the interests of both the United States and Great Britain by preventing the transmission of information which would be helpful to unfriendly forces.

The Navy Department stated that the censorship was "in the interest of preserving security."

Under the agreed on procedure, all mail to Army bases which does not include the Army postoffice number will be subject to British examination. The bases involved and the postoffice numbers are as follows: Newfoundland, 801; Bermuda, 802; Trinidad, 803; Jamaica, 804; St. Lucia, 805; Antigua, 806; British Guiana, 807; Bahamas, 808.

Roosevelt Expected to Name Air Traffic Coordinator Soon

By Turner Catledge

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt is expected soon to appoint a coordinator of air traffic to deal with the increasing problem of congestion of aircraft, military and civilian, in the navigable air above the United States.

An executive order creating the office is understood to have been ordered prepared by the President and its announcement, under present plans, is to be accompanied by a Presidential proclamation assuming jurisdiction over all navigable air space above the continental United States, its possessions and Territories, and possibly that above a certain radius around the off-shore naval and air bases leased by this Government and under Federal control.

A tentative plan for the new office and its duties was worked out by an interdepartmental committee representing the Army, Navy, Civil Aeronautics Administration, Civil Aeronautics Board and the Select Committee of the House to Investigate Air Accidents. Col. Robert Olds, of the Army Air Corps, and Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, chairman of the House Air Accidents Investigating Committee, laid the proposal before the President at a White House conference several days ago.

Representative Nichols yesterday confirmed reports of the scheme for a national "air traffic cop," adding that the necessity for such an officer was already well established.

"The problem of air traffic is really becoming serious," said Nichols, "especially in the bottlenecks around airports."

Nichols said the Navy flew on one set of rules, the Army on another, the commercial airplanes on another and sportsmen pilots on very few rules at all, so far as they related to traffic.

The Gallup Poll

56% of Voters Favor Referendum on War As Proposed by Congressional Group

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., June 19.—The campaign for a national referendum, or vote of the people, on the question of war is being pushed by isolationist groups in Congress. Claiming that the American people have had no opportunity to vote officially on this "greatest of all issues," these groups propse a national roll call in which all eligible voters would participate.

The country has been divided on the war referendum idea, with a slight majority in favor, as shown in periodic checks by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The size of the majority has varied from time to time, running from as low as 51 per cent when the war broke out, to as high as 60 per cent in the beginning of 1940. The latest survey on the subject, completed early this month by the American Institute of Public Opinion, shows the following:

"Should a vote of the people be required before Congress can send men to fight overseas?"

Yes	56%

Only a small proportion of voters—6 per cent—expressed no opinion on the issue.

The referendum proposal was first placed before Congress by Congressman Louis Ludlow of Indiana, who has sponsored it at nearly every recent session. At one time a House resolution to bring the bill to the floor for consideration failed by only a few votes, and the bill has continued to be the center of wide controversy and interest both in and out of Congress.

If a national referendum were taken today on the question whether the United States should go to war now, there can be little question that it would show a large vote against entering the war.

The Institute's latest measurement of war sentiment, as published May 16, showed the following vote among those with opinions:

"If you were asked to vote on the question of the United States entering the war against Germany and Italy, how would you vote—to go into the war or to stay out of the war?"

May 16
Stay Out	79

A new survey on this question is now being conducted to test the effect of recent developments in the Administration's foreign policy.

On highly controversial issues, the methods and findings of the American Institute of Public Opinion are attacked by both sides, and particularly by the side which is reported at the time to be in the minority. This, of course, is natural and, in a democracy, even desirable. Criticism is needed as much in the field of public opinion measurement as it is in any other field.

If there is any desire on the part of Congressional leaders or others in the country to test Institute findings on the attitude of the people toward war issues, it is possible to do so in a very quick and inexpensive way.

Let a bipartisan committee of Congressmen, or a committee of political scientists, select at random (or by lot) one or more communities of proper size from each area of the country.

Let all the eligible voters of these communities vote in what might be described as an advisory referendum. The bipartisan committe can word the questions in any way which it thinks will most accurately reflect the true attitudes of the people toward the various issues concerning defense and foreign policy being debated today issues such as whether the United States should enter the war, whether it should convoy, and whether it should give aid to England and how much. Local election boards in these communities can count the ballots and make known the results.

Although the Institute does not believe, from a scientific point of view, that this is the most reliable way to measure Nation-wide sentiment on any given issue, it stands ready to have any or all of its findings put to the above test, provided that an impartial committee has charge.

School Children Fill Pools On First Day of Vacation

Washington's children splashed into the city's wading and swimming pools in the public playgrounds by the hundreds yesterday. It was the first day of summer vacation, and the first thought of District boys and girls was to get to the 1941 versions of the ole swimmin' hole.

Meanwhile, an estimated 2,000 children, from Sunday schools and churches in Washington went to Glen Echo amusement park for their annual picnic and outings.

St. Alban's and the Sunday school classes of St. Patrick and St. David's Chapels sent a total of 750 boys and girls to Glen Echo. Other Sunday schools brought about 1,300 youngsters there for the outing.

Most of the District playgrounds had waiting lines of children, anxious to get into the water the moment the pools opened at 6 a. m., and by the time the news got around a bit, there was little room left unoccupied in the glorified swimming holes.

Bathing apparel varied extensively this year.

Many of the young ladies wore the latest word in 1941 swim suits; some of the younger boys borrowed big brothers' trunks, three or four sizes too large, and a few overjoyed but suitless enthusiasts jumped in the pools with all their clothes on.

Au naturel suits, in the manner of a decade ago, were taboo, and there were no knotted clothes to untie with watchful superintendents and life guards about.

Playground officials announced that the firemen's hydrant baths would be a little late in beginning this year. First fire hoses will be turned on Washington's hot youngsters July 1.

The swimming pools which were opened yesterday were at the Rosedale Playground, Seventeenth and Cramer Streets Northeast, and the Georgetown Playground, Thirty-third Street and Volta Place Northwest.

Wading pools were opened for the summer at the following playgrounds: Chevy Chase, Forty-first and Livingston Streets Northwest; Georgetown; Rosedale Garfield, Second and F Streets Southeast; Hamilton, Fourteenth and Hamilton Streets Northwest; Happy Hollow, Eighteenth and Kalorama Road Northwest; Hoover, Second Street and Delaware Avenue Southwest; Langdon Park, Twentieth and Franklin Streets Northeast; New York Avenue, First Street and New York Avenue Northwest; Palisades, Dana Street and Sherrier Place Northwest; Parkview, Warder and Otis Streets Northwest; Raymond, Tenth Street and Spring Road Northwest, and Virginia Avenue, Eleventh and Virginia Avenue Southeast.

Caniff and Burma Visit Post; She's Jealous of Local Gals

Cartoonist Gets New Chore; He's Now $1-a-Year Man

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

And so the creator of spine-tingling, enthralling "Terry and the Pirates" turns out to be an affable chap from Ohio's Miami Valley who is as pleasant to talk to as Burma is to look at.

Milton Caniff, now a $1 a year man, dropped in at The Post yesterday en route back to New York to start earning that dollar. For the last few days he has been in town getting instructions as to the material that will go into the strip he will do for the national defense program.

Under supervision of the new Office of Civilian Defense, headed by New York's Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Caniff's strip will show how the population should behave in event of emergency. It will—but to say more might be saying too much about a defense measure.

Main thing is that the 33-year-old Ohioan's new chore won't interfere with Terry, Burma & Co. They'll go on as ever, to the delight of an estimated 20,000,000 admirers.

Caniff's strip has been flourishing since he started it in October, 1934. At first it appeared in two papers. Now it's in 135, and translated into seven languages.

He will do his $1-a-year bit for the Government at his house in Pomona, N. Y., which is a few miles from West Point. Which brings up the fact that when the Annapolis "Log" took a poll a couple of years ago, it was found "Terry and the Pirates" was the most popular comic strip among the midshipmen and The Post's Mary Haworth their favorite columnist (adv.).

John T. McCutcheon, famous cartoonist of the Chicago Tribune, gave Caniff's adventure picture-story its name. Other facts: For nearly seven years he has been drawing 36 panels a week—24 for the dailies and 12 for Sundays—which makes a total of—'steen panels. . . . His contract provides that he keep nine weeks ahead. . . . He answers fan mail. . . . He is a southpaw.

Caniff, a 6-footer with bluish eyes, was born in Hillsboro, Ohio, just outside Cincinnati. He worked his way through Ohio State University as an artist on the Columbus Dispatch. Shortly after graduation he went to New York to work for the Associated Press, transferring to the Chicago Tribune syndicate after a few years to start Terry and Burma on their way.

He is married. The wife reads to him—fiction, articles, anything—as he draws.

"It's soothing," says the cartoonist.

Caniff would not say how he is going to get Ryan and the Dragon Lady out of the predicament in which he left them months ago.

Bill Cunningham's Column: New Army Gets the Works in Maneuvers

By Bill Cunningham

Those war maneuvers in the Cumberland country of Tennessee, from which your correspondent has lately returned, are the biggest and most serious in the military history of the United States, and they're only the overture for the mammoth show that will follow.

Your Uncle Sam's Army, from this point, isn't fooling. There are already so many generals and staff officers in the area that practically every city from Memphis to Knoxville is occupied with headquarters. And this is only the start. By fall, most of the new United States Army east of the Mississippi River will be massed into a vast area ranging from Virginia to Arkansas, rehearsing real war and rehearsing it hard.

The troops currently in the field are getting a stiff dose, but they're standing up to it and asking for more. There's nothing easy about it. That is tough country, and they're in it with all their gear, living, eating and sleeping under actual field conditions. They've got their artillery with them and their planes overhead. Their Signal Corps are stringing lines and short-waving radio messages. Their engineers are bridging streams where any such is necessary. Their officers are in there roughing it with them.

Acid Test of Officers

What it actually is going to be, is an acid test of all officers. The men, of course, are being hardened by actual field experience, but many an officer will be benzined before this general series is over, and the principal casualties will be amongst the National Guardsmen.

This is an old and sore point in our military past and was the occasion of much bitterness during the World War. Critics have usually charged that the West Pointers formed a jealous hierarchy and wanted nobody else to have a break. But Gen. Marshall, called by many competent authorities "the most brilliant chief of staff since George Washington" isn't a West Pointer, but a product of the Virginia Military Institute.

It's been pretty generally decided by official observers that one of the major strengths of the German army is the mental and physical fitness of its officers of all grades. The Nazis have waived all rules in that division but one: An officer must prove that he can lead and handle his men. That vital point established, his age, or any other characteristics are considered inconsequential.

That is what these vast maneuvers will be cutting down to. The men are in training; the officers on trial.

To date, it's been no joy ride. Three entire divisions of around 20,000 men each have been sent into rugged country to take it as they find it. They've been finding it very hot and very dry. The thermometer has soared as high as 90 and has stayed there while these troops have marched through hilly country under full field equipment. Thunder showers have pelted them and steady rain has soaked them.

But the dust has probably been the worst hardship. The country roads and trails back in those hills aren't paved, and the dust clouds have been so thick from the marching columns and rolling trucks that the cars were forced to use their headlights in the broad light of day, and the soldiers all but choked for something to breathe.

Whole companies of them, as they came to a stream, have marched in up to their waists just to wash their faces. Some have stood waist deep in full uniform just to cool off, while shaving the stubble of two or three days. Some haven't had their uniforms off for as long as a week, for, in the field, a soldier has no time for silk pajamas. He sleeps in his clothes. "The field" means ready for action, either moving or fighting.

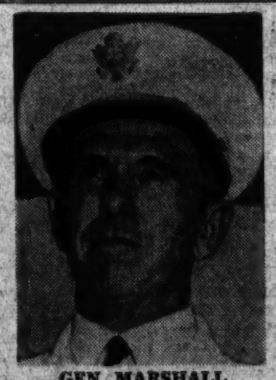
Fighting Machine on Its Way

The first sparring saw the three divisions opposing an imaginary foe moving in from the East to attack the State of Tennessee. This was primarily a problem in the movement and manipulation of troops, a test of communication systems and lines of supply.

Then the routing was changed, new positions were taken and the Fifth and Twenty-seventh teamed to oppose the Thirtieth in a sham campaign between actual "armies." This was more of the same, but with the added punch of having men, not imagination to hunt out and try to counter.

The third phase brings the famed Second Armored Division, our first panzer unit, smashing into the area from the direction of Georgia, and it will be the task of the three then to combine and technically stop the motorized caravan, which theoretically will come shooting and blasting its way.

This theoretical training is the only sort our Army can receive. Italy and Russia used the Spanish war as a training laboratory. Hitler used Poland for his full dress rehearsal. We have nothing comparable and want nothing comparable, but, faced with the necessity of matching reality with theory, at least, it will be thoroughly dealt with.



GEN. MARSHALL

The first of our new Army is seriously at it, down there, getting the continuation of its training the hard and dusty way. The honeymoon is over. Barring the fact that the weather is warm enough to make sleeping in the open no particular hardship, this is just about as tough as the new soldiery could be handed it. The rest are on their way.

Grazing Unit Going 'West' to Aid Defense

The Grazing Service of the Department of the Interior, which has 67 employes here, has been ordered to "go West" in response to the Administration's request to find Government space in Washington for defense activities, it was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The vacant space will be occupied immediately by the newly organized office of the Petroleum Coordinator for National Defense, it was said.

Richard H. Rutledge, director of the service, recommended the transfer of the service, which has 2,074 field employes.

John Q. Peterson, chief of information of the service, said the announcement yesterday came as "a great surprise." Peterson has recently bought a new home and, with the exception of five years spent in the West, has worked here for the past 18 years.

Fred Fowler, an accountant, said he had "hardly had time to think the transfer over," but thought it would be a good thing for the Grazing Service. Whatever they do, declared Fowler, "I am with them body, heart and soul."

Director of Personnel Depue Falck, said he had not had an opportunity to ask how many of the workers want to go. But, he added, "a great many of our people are from the West." He said those who went would go at the same jobs and salaries.

One of the problems which will be encountered in the transfer was voiced by Mrs. G. R. Amall, an auditor in the General Accounting Office. Her husband is an auditor in the Grazing Service and has been in Government work here the last 20 years.

Mrs. Umali would like very much to go West, she said, but did not know if she could get a transfer from her Civil Service job or not. One advantage she pointed out was that out West the cost of living would not be as high as Washington.

Location of the new headquarters of the Grazing Service will not be announced until leases now being negotiated are closed, Secretary Ickes said.

Ripe Peaches 75 Cents Each In London

By Eddy Gilmore

Associated Press Sports Writer

London, June 19.—The coming of warm weather and ripening of fruit brought some rare bargains in London's crowded markets today.

One store had a shelf of peaches which a Georgia grower wouldn't bother to send to market, and the price was 75 cents each.

"Yes, sir," said a clerk, "we've sold quite a few. There's nothing like a fresh peach, you know."

Lots of strawberries—knotty little specimens—were on display at another store for sale at $3.80 a pound.

A shop offered unrationed cheese from Wisconsin at $1 a pound.

"It's straight from America," the clerk said, "and shoppers like it mighty well."

Tomatoes have come down.

You could get them at many places for $1 a pound.

String beans sold for 90 cents a pound.

Asparagus, which has been difficult to obtain, was on the market at $1.50 a bunch.

"It's a large bunch," said a clerk, "enough for two people."

Canned grapefruit, which also has been hard to find, was offered at 50 cents a can, but the seller said you had to take two cases.

The plebian gooseberry retailed at 10 cents a pound, the only trouble being that, at the four markets we visited, there were none in stock.

Incidentally, you can buy a champagne cocktail for $1.25 and a razor blade for 6 cents, providing you can find someone who wants to get rid of either.

N. Y. Newspaper Guild Condemns Subversion

New York, June 19 (AP).—The Newspaper Guild of New York (C. I. O.) adopted by a three-vote margin tonight a resolution condemning the tactics of Communists, Nazis and Fascists which it said threatened to nullify labor's gains. The vote was 385 to 362.

Filipinos Pledge Loyalty to U. S. In Event of War

Manila, June 19 (AP).—Millions of Filipinos, led by their President, Manuel Quezon, today reaffirmed their loyalty to the United States in event of war and pledged their all, even their lives, to the defense of democracy.

Loyalty day—a new holiday for the islands—was the occasion for the island-wide expression of allegiance. In cities and villages the populace paraded and pledged fidelity anew.

Highlight of the observance was the address of the commonwealth President. Stricken for months by illness, Quezon was unable to deliver it personally so it was transcribed and broadcast from Manila.

In effect, Quezon assured the United States it would face no internal trouble in the islands if involved in war, approved the recent fireside address of President Roosevelt and urged support of the commonwealth's defense activities in the words of Roosevelt's declaration of a state of unlimited national emergency.

Young People Convene Today In Westminster

Churchmen from Maryland, Virginia and the District will converge on Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., today for the eighteenth annual officers and teachers conference and the annual young people's conference.

The parleys will be jointly sponsored by the District of Columbia Sunday School Association and the religious work department of the Central Y. M. C. A.

During joint sessions at the opening fellowship dinner tonight on the Westminster campus, the delegates will hear greetings from Dr. Fred G. Holloway, host college president, and others.

Dr. T. Guthrie Speers, minister of the Brown Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, will address a joint worship session tonight at 7:30 p. m., when young people's leader Leslie L. Bowers, jr., will preside.

Dr. Charles E. Resser, association president and Smithsonian paleontologist, will lead a retreat at 8:45 p. m.

Highlights for tomorrow will include a forum on "Building the Sunday School," led by the Rev. Philip Cowell Jones, associate minister of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City; recreation in the afternoon, and King Solomon's Court and a candlelight service later in the evening.

Rush Holt Weds School Teacher In Gridley, Ill.

Gridley, Ill., June 19 (U.P.).—Former United States Senator Rush D. Holt, of West Virginia, and Helen Froelich, a Washington, D. C., school teacher, were married here today at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a small group of family friends. The Rev. W. C. Lyons, of Gary, Ind., read the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chase, Washington, brother-in-law and sister of Holt, attended the couple.

Holt, 36, served one term in the Senate after his election in 1934. He was 29 years old at the time, several months under the 30-year age qualification for Senators, and had to wait several weeks to take his seat. He was defeated last fall for renomination.

Mrs. Holt is 27. She was an instructor at National Park Seminary, fashionable Washington girls' school. Her father, William E. Froelich, is Mayor of Gridley.

The Holts plan a honeymoon in Alaska, the Pacific Coast States and Mexico. They will live at Weston, W. Va.

'Cooking Cool' Recipes For Hot Summer Days

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

WHEN the hot summer days "get you down" you will be grateful for dishes that do not require much hustling around at the serving hour. You're bound to wilt if you boil and steam vegetables, roast meats and bake cakes, and fry and broil foods on hot days, immediately before serving the meal.

But there is an avenue of escape for the cook if she will do her boiling and stewing, and baking and roasting in the cool of the morning on her insulated range, and then store it in the refrigerator to be crisp and chilled for the serving hour.

Martha Ellyn.

The mercury hasn't started doing aerial acrobatic stunts as yet, but they are bound to come. So it is time while we are enjoying comfortable days, to be thinking about appealing foods that will make a Hottentot feel as cool as an Eskimo.

If you are of the school that believes every meal should have at least one hot dish, there is always that old standby—soup. But there are times when even a jellied consomme will lend a refreshing touch.

The refrigerator is one piece of equipment that is always appreciated by the cook. But in the summer time it is especially valued because of the many delightful dishes that can be prepared in it, or stored in it after they have been cooked. The following are some ideas for "cooking cool."

Cold Meat Platter

A cold meat platter is easily assembled ahead of time and can be kept chilling in the refrigerator until dinner is ready. Arrange cold cuts of meat on a platter with bright red slices of canned jellied cranberry sauce. For a novel accent, making cunning nosegays of radish roses, ripe olives and carrot sticks. Cranberry sauce is a handy garnish for meat because it is cheerful looking, refreshing to eat and convenient to use. Chill the can of cranberry sauce in refrigerator and when ready to serve merely slice it down in rounds.

A jelly mold base made of cranberry sauce, reinforced with crisp shredded cabbage, celery and walnuts is splendid for a summery supper-time meal. Make the salad in the cool of the morning and store in the refrigerator until needed. Molded cranberry vegetable salads are food with any meat or fish. The recipe for making this type of salad follows:

Molded Cranberry Vegetable Salad—Crush one 17-oz. can jellied cranberry sauce. Add ½ cup hot water and heat thoroughly. Soak 1 envelope plain gelatin in ¼ cup cold water for 5 minutes and add to hot cranberry sauce. Fold in 1 cup finely shredded cabbage, ¼ cup chopped celery and ½ cup chopped walnuts. Place in 6 individual molds and chill until set. Serve on crisp lettuce with desired salad dressing. Serves 6.

Pie Without Baking

Desserts may come and desserts may go, but some persons—especially men—call for pie to top off a meal. An apricot no-bake pie is one that does not require baking, but is equally as delicious as if hot from the oven. Make it this way:

Apricot No-Bake Pie—Crush ½ pound filled wafers. Remove ½ cupful to use as a topping. Pat remainder over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie pan. Cream ½ cup butter, 1 cup confectioners' sugar and 2 egg yolks. Beat the 2 egg whites until stiff, then combine with creamed mixture. If combined by using the beater there will be no tendency toward curdled appearance of the mixture. Spread this mixture over the crumbs in the pie pan. Next spread a layer of apricot pulp, made by cooking about ½ pound dried fruit until it is a pulp that is very thick. Whip one cup heavy cream, adding 1-16 teaspoon salt to cream. Spread over apricot layer and sprinkle with the reserved crumbs. Chill about 12 hours before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

A chicken salad in molded egg ring is glorious enough for any occasion. It should be remembered when making such a dish that the ingredients should keep their identity—that is—keep the egg slices and chicken meat in large enough pieces to be eaten comfortably with a fork. Here is the recipe for making this delicious salad:

Chicken Salad in Molded Egg Ring—Soften 2 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Dissolve in ½ cup boiling water. Add 1½ cups mayonnaise, juice of 1 lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 drops Tabasco sauce and 1 teaspoon grated onion. Separate the yolks from the whites of 12 hard cooked eggs. Force the yolks through sieve and chop the whites. Place the egg yolks first in an oiled ring mold and next half the gelatin mixture, then ½ green pepper, chopped and ½ cup chopped parsley in layer, and cover with the chopped egg whites and the remaining gelatin mixture. Chill until set. Unmold on a large platter. Fill center of ring with a chicken or vegetable salad. Garnish with lettuce or water-cress, tomatoes quartered and ripe olives or radishes. Serve with Piquant French dressing. Makes 5 cup mold.

Frozen fruit salad is a refrigerator dish that is sophisticated enough to serve at any occasion. Made into an oblong mold in the refrigerator tray or into individual molds it makes an attractive service as well as a flavorsome one. The recipe for making it follows:

Frozen Fruit Salad—Drain the contents of on No. 2 can of pineapple. Reserve the juice. Cut the pineapple in pieces. Drain the contents of a No. 2½ can of white cherries. Pit them. Drain the contents of a No. 2½ can of apricots. Cut the apricots in pieces. Melt in a double boiler, 1 tablespoon butter and add and stir until blended, 1 tablespoon flour. Add the pineapple juice, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 egg. Cook and stir these ingredients until they are smooth. Cool them and fold in 1 cup heavy cream whipped. Fold in the fruit. Freeze in refrigerator. Serve with cream mayonnaise. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Chicken Mousse with Deviled Eggs is another refrigerator dish that can be prepared ahead of time. The recipe follows:

Soften 4 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold broth. Dissolve thoroughly in 2 cups boiling chicken broth. Chill until syrupy or almost jelly-like consistency. Combine with 2 cups finely chopped or ground cooked chicken, 1 cup finely diced celery, ¼ cup finely diced sweet pickle, ¼ cup finely diced green pepper and 1 pimiento chopped. Add 1 cup mayonnaise, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, dash of cayenne and 3 to 4 tablespoons lemon juice. Add thickened gelatine mixture. Fold in 1 cup heavy whipped cream. Add more seasonings if necessary. Mixture should be rather highly seasoned, since it is served quite cold. Pour into a mold rinsed with cold water. Chill. Unmold. Garnish with greens and deviled eggs. Slice to serve. Yield: 5 to 6 cup mold.

Deviled Eggs—Cut six hard-cooked eggs in half crosswise or lengthwise. Remove yolk and put through a sieve. Add 1 tablespoon cream or mayonnaise, ½ tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice, ¾ teaspoon mustard, ¾ teaspoon Worcestershire, ⅝ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Beat until smooth and fluffy. Refill shells. Garnish with chopped chives, parsley, paprika, caviar. Add other seasonings such as onion juice, caviar, anchovies, ham, sardine, cheese to the yolk mixture if desired.

In every notebook of good things to eat there should be a recipe that would be equally good for porches, parties and all summer festivities. A lime ring with melon balls is such a concoction. The light green of the ring contrasts in an attractive manner with the red watermelon balls. Make it this way:

Lime Ring With Melon Balls—Dissolve 1 package lime-flavored gelatin in 1 pint hot water. When it begins to set, whip 1 cup irradiated evaporated milk or cream until very stiff. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and fold into gelatin. Pour into a ring which has been rinsed in cold water. Put in a cold place until set. When ready to serve, unmold on a cold platter. Fill center with watermelon balls. Top with a sprig of mint that has been dipped in confectioners' sugar to make the edges frosty. Yield, 8 servings.

A hot food for every meal is the thought of many persons. That is easily accomplished, for there are many delicious and nourishing soups ready to be poured from the can. Refrigerator rolls may be made in the morning, stored in the refrigerator until time to pop them in the oven to bake for the meal. Hot beverages, too, will supply a hot note to the menu. Given on this page is a suggestion for a menu that primarily uses refrigerator foods.

Chilled consomme
Egg ring with chicken salad
Chilled vegetable sticks
Buttered peas, refrigerator rolls
Apricot no-bake pie

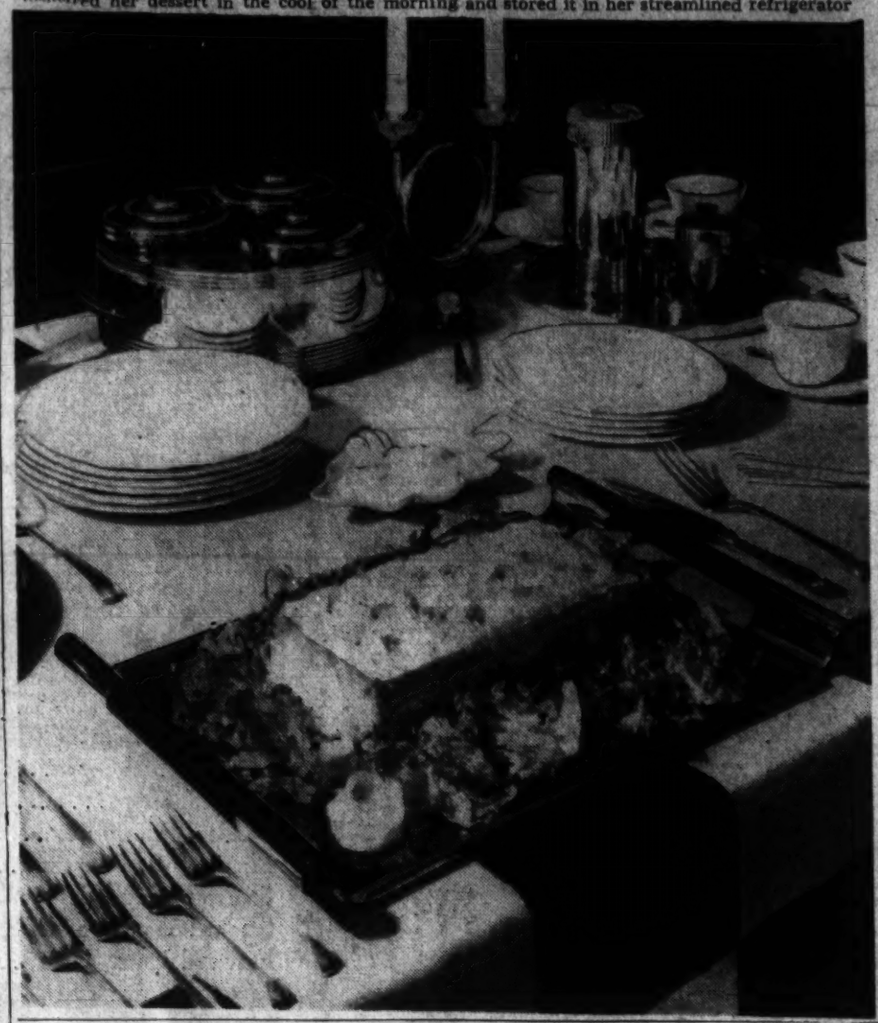
New Idea in Service Bar

If your house boasts a playroom, or your living room is very informal, you will be interested in this novel idea for a service bar (what playroom is complete without a way to serve food?) which Virginia Vale designed for her house.

At one of the many Hollywood shops which make unfinished furniture, she had built a high, carrying bar, somewhat of the appearance of a small soda fountain. She finished the top with clear shellac and floor wax. To the front she pasted—helter skelter—a whole scrapbook of Christmas cards, theater programs, amusing letters, funny magazine covers. She then shellacked the surface and was "open for business."

Refrigerator Cookery Revolutionizes Meals

Summer hospitality loses gaiety if the hostess appears too tired to enjoy her guests. Meals which will be ready to serve without a last minute rush are important to preservation of poise and graciousness. When the refrigerator is used to prepare dishes ahead of serving time, much last minute confusion is avoided. Pictured below is a buffet table with a frozen fruit salad ready to be served. The cook, at right, comes through smiling because she has prepared her dessert in the cool of the morning and stored it in her streamlined refrigerator



Kidney Chops For Epicures,

VEAL KIDNEY chops though highly praised by the epicure are, luckily enough, cosmopolitan in nature so any family can enjoy them often at home.

Brown Chops Thoroughly

To braise veal chops, dredge them with flour and brown them on both sides in hot fat. The browning is one of the most important steps so be sure that the meat is well browned on all sides before the liquid is added.

After the chops have developed a rich, brown color, season with salt, pepper and paprika. Pour a small amount of sour cream over the chops, about one cup for six chops. Cover the meat and cook until done. It will take from 45 to 60 minutes for chops one-half to three-quarters of an inch thick to get done.

Tomato juice may be added rather than sour cream if more convenient. It, too, adds savoriness in complementing the delicate flavor of veal.

With so much emphasis being placed on our need for vitamins, it seems appropriate to mention that meat specialties, including kidneys, provide vitamin A and the three important components of vitamin B—thiamine, riboflavin, nicotinic acid. Veal kidney chops suggest a nonchalant way of giving an extra serving of health.

New Potatoes in Zestful Sauce

New potatoes are one of the good foods that come with the springtime. When they are prepared in curry sauce they take on added goodness. Following a recipe for preparing them:

New Potatoes in Curry Sauce—Scrub 4 pounds of new potatoes and then cook in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Drain, peel and sprinkle well with finely chopped parsley. Put into a deep baking dish. Melt ¼ cup butter, blend in ¼ cup flour and when smooth add 1 quart rich milk. Cook until smooth and lightly thicken. Mix ½ teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons curry powder and add to sauce. Cook 5 minutes longer and pour over potatoes. Cover closely and keep hot in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until ready to serve. Yield: 10 servings.

Booklet Tells Of 'Vitamins That Count'

NUTRITION authorities warn us that we are not getting the vitamins we need for positive health. Dr. Thomas Parran, jr., Surgeon General of the United States Health Service is one authority who has said that 40 per cent of the people of the United States are not getting an adequate diet, and that they lack especially vitamins, A, B, C and calcium.

MISS BURNS

Vitamins, and the part they play in our health, are known in a general way to most of us, but just how we can select and prepare the food which will best provide these essentials is not such common knowledge. In order to make this information available in simple language and in form for ready reference, Miss Bernice Burns, Home Economist Electric Institute, has prepared a comprehensive booklet "Vitamins That Count," telling what vitamins and minerals do for us, and why they are both essential.

The Three Thieves

The author shows that vitamins and minerals must be protected from the three thieves—air, water and heat. She give suggestions how to accomplish this and the don'ts to observe. Not only does this authority tell where you will find vitamins and minerals, but also how to plan meals high in vitamins and minerals.

A feature of this booklet is a simple guide to the vitamin and mineral content of some common foods. Methods are also recommended for cooking to conserve both vitamins and minerals.

To the Washington homemaker who is interested in knowing how to buy food wisely and prepare it in a way to obtain the greatest amount of nourishment, the Electric Institute of Washington, is offering this booklet free of charge. Telephone or write the Electric Institute, Pepco Building, Tenth and E Streets, Northwest for this booklet.

Tomato Dressing Ideal for Lettuce

TOMATO FRENCH DRESSING is just that needed flavor for pointing up some salads. It is especially ideal for lettuce salad. Make it this way:

Mix together in jar or bottle, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon clery seed, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon onion juice, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1/3 cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, ⅓ cup vinegar, 1¼cups salad oil, 1 clove garlic (peeled) and 1 cup tomato juice.

Cover and shake vigorously for 2 minutes. Discard garlic and store dressings, covered, in refrigerator. Shake well before using.

Let Troops Halt Crime, Advises Rep. Kennedy

Use of troops to reinforce the District Police Department was suggested at the Capitol yesterday as House members continued to press for a Congressional investigation of the city's current crime wave.

Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee, announced last night that the request of Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, for a special investigation of the Washington police force has been made the first order of business for the committee's regular meeting Monday.

Earlier in the day, the committee's failure to assemble a quorum for a special executive session had prevented consideration of the Hebert proposal. Ten out of 21 members were present.

Action Put Off

Meanwhile, the District Commissioners were awaiting completion of the proposed Congressional investigation before announcing plans for their own probe of the police force.

"This investigation on our part will not be dropped," Commissioner Young declared. "We are going ahead with it just as planned, but we'll probably wait until Congress has acted. We want to find out what is wrong and just what we need to do an efficient job here."

The request for assignment of troops to police duty in the District was made by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, in a letter to the Commissioners.

Kennedy said he was receiving a number of letters and telegrams from the parents of Government workers from his district asking whether it was safe for their daughters to remain in Washington.

Rapid Growth of City Cited

Predicting that the rapid growth of the city's population will make the crime problem "even more acute," Kennedy suggested that the Commissioners request the President to assign soldiers and sailors to the police force.

Troops could regulate traffic, police railroad and local transportation facilities, places of public assembly and areas frequented by men in uniform, he said, thus freeing the regular police force for more intensive patroling of residential areas.

Representative Young (Democrat), of Ohio, declared on the House floor yesterday that Congress has been "shocked" by recent crimes in Washington and must take action to assure protection of young women who come here to work for the Federal Government.

"I hope the House District Committee will put aside everything else," he said, "and concentrate on these unsolved crimes."

Board Urges Police Retire Jett and Cannon

Detective Sergts. Henry M. Jett, 60, and Charles Cannon, 48, were recommended for retirement from the Metropolitan Police Department yesterday by the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons.

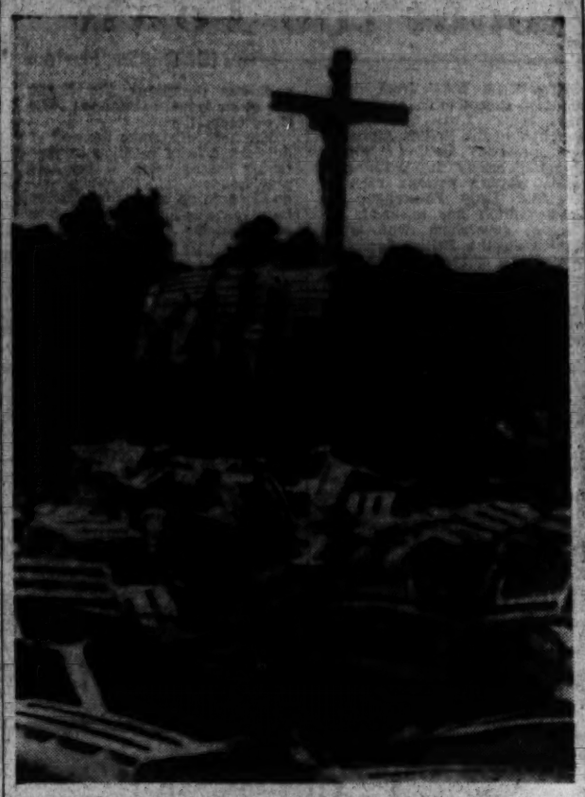
Both men, according to physicians who testified before a Retiring Board, are unfit physically for further police duty. Jett, it was said, is suffering a heart ailment, while Cannon is troubled with a stomach disorder.

Jett, who was attached to the automobile squad, is a veteran of 35 years, having been appointed to the force, September 25, 1906. He served in the Fire Department before that time.

He has been commended more than 20 times for meritorious service and he holds a captain's commission in the United States Army Reserves. He lives at 3114 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

Cannon was made a policeman in December, 1924. His last assignment was in the Sixth and Tenth Precincts. He lives at 929 Kennedy Street Northwest.

Truck and Car Crash Kills 3



DEATH STRIKES AT PILGRIMAGE CROSS—Three persons were killed and one was injured last night when an automobile and produce truck collided at the Pilgrimage Cross on the Richmond Highway, U. S. No. 1, 16 miles north of Fredericksburg, Va. The truck is shown where it careened off the road after the crash. Crates are strewn about the area.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 19 (AP).—Three persons were killed and another was injured seriously in a collision of an automobile and a produce truck, 16 miles north of here on U. S. highway No. 1 tonight.

William Watson, 24, relief driver, and Lonnie Thomas Wilder, jr., 26, driver, both of Tifton, Ga., occupants of the truck.

A woman, identity undetermined. State police said they could not say whether she was riding in the truck or automobile.

A man, also unidentified, suffered a broken neck and was taken to Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg.

When the collision occurred the truck left the road and careened into a parked lumber truck. The automobile bore a Richmond, Va., license.

Traveling south immediately behind the automobile was a car driven by R. H. Evans, of Arlington, Va. Evans' car was slightly damaged by a flying fender torn from the car ahead.

Hearing Held On D. C. Prison Goods Bill

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee yesterday conducted a brief hearing on legislation to exempt goods made in District penal institutions from the ban on interstate commerce in prison-made goods and prepared to report the bill Monday to the full Judiciary Committee.

The prison goods bill, which became law last October and comes into force in four months, does not affect goods made in Federal or District of Columbia institutions for use by the Federal Government. The pending bill clarifies the law by including goods made for the use of the District Government.

Commissioner Young, Corporation Counsel Keech and Ray L. Huff, superintendent of penal institutions, appeared in behalf of the legislation.

Funds for 100 More Policemen May Be Included in D.C. Budget

Addition of 100 men to the District police force may be authorized by the Senate Subcommittee on District Appropriations, it appeared yesterday as discussion of the Police Department and local crime situation dominated hearings on the city's 1942 budget.

The House has granted an increase of 54 men over the department's present authorized strength of 1,437. Asked by Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, subcommittee chairman, whether a greater increase is necessary, Maj. Ernest W. Brown replied:

"Most emphatically, yes."

The police superintendent said any additional personnel over the increase authorized by the House would be asigned exclusively to foot patrol duty. He recalled that he had requested an increase in the force of 100 men in his original budget estimates, that the Commissioners had cut it to 20 men, then increased it to 50, and that the House had finally approved addition of 54 men.

Commissioner Young, who was present at the hearing, indicated that the Commissioners would now be prepared to back the request for 100 more men. William G. Wilding, assistant auditor, estimated that addition of 46 men, over the 54 already approved, would cost $96,000.

Maj. Brown told the subcommittee that if the 1930 ratio between Washington's populatipn and its police force were to be maintained today he would be asking for 282 more men, instead of 100.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, a subcommittee member, stressed the fact that Brown's request for 100 more men had been made months before the recent crimes which have focused public attention on the police force here.

Asked by O'Mahoney about "dead wood" on the force, Brown said there were now ten men in the department whose retirement had been recommended and a number of others who might be shifted to new assignments.

"Generally speaking, you have a very competent force!" O'Mahoney asked.

"Yes," Brown answered. He said, Washington during the past 10 years "has had a good record, but this year we're a little low until we've cleared up these last three cases." (The reference apparently was to the unsolved Strieff, Simon and Abramowitz murders.)

Repercussions of the 50 per cent reduction in District WPA rolls ordered for July 1 were seen frequently in yesterday's hearings as heads of the Health and Sanitation departments told the subcommittee their budget estimates must be revised.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, head of the Health Department, said the WPA order "has upset us definitely," stating that his department is scheduled to lose all of its 280 WPA workers.

Summer Season Finds Capital Far From Dull

Col. Flanagan Arrives in Town From His Canadian Estate, With Many Parties for Him in Prospect

By Hope Ridings Miller

DUE IN TOWN late today is Col. James W. Flanagan, former Texan, who owns a magnificent estate near Toronto, Canada, and has entertained many Capitalites there from time to time. Col. Flanagan will be the guest of Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, who will give a cocktail party and dinner in his honor. A number of other fetes probably will be given for him, as he has shoals of friends here. Representative and Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller are among those who have visited his Canadian home. Senator and Mrs. Pepper were there a short time ago and enjoyed such a glittering round of parties that Mrs. Pepper says she still wonders whether she wasn't dreaming.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Col. Flanagan came to New York a few days ago to attend the dinner for the Associated Canadian Organizations in New York where the Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King was guest of honor, and Vice President Wallace was one of the speakers. The South African Minister and Mrs. Ralph Close were among those going from here to attend the fete. They will be back in town today.

Senator and Mrs. Pepper were also on hand for the dinner, which took place Tuesday night. The Senator returned to Washington the following day, but Mrs. Pepper stayed over at the Waldorf-Astoria until early yesterday and then got back in just about enough time to take a deep breath before going on the radio as the first speaker in the new "Personality Plus" program on a local station.

To get back to Col. Flanagan—his forthcoming Capital visit will be the second this year. He came down for the Inauguration as a guest of Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones and had a ringside seat at a round of official festivities.

Many Parties Before Carnival

All roads this evening will lead to Wolf Trap Farm, the Virginia home of Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, where the third annual "Have Fun" carnival will get under way at 6:30 p. m., and go on until all hours. I understand that more than 1,000 tickets have been sold; that a record number of officials and social celebrities have been drafted into active service as barkers, taxidancers, bartenders and what-else-have-you, and that the evening promises to be one of the most successful benefits of the season. Proceeds will go toward the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, which Mrs. Shouse has been interested in promoting for several years.

From 5 o'clock on, Washington and nearby Virginia will break out in a rash of cocktail parties arranged as preludes to the carnival. Representative Katherine Byron will be among those entertaining, as will Mrs. George Pulver, who will gather in a small company at her home in Georgetown. Prof. and Mrs. Edward C. Acheson will be cocktail hosts at their home near Vienna, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Downs will entertain quite a large company at their Virginia home.

Capital Colony At Maine Resort

Summers plans, a bit delayed this year, are coming to light at long last as scores of Washingtonians are packing their bags to join the annual exodus to beach and mountain resorts.

From Bar Harbor, Me., comes word that quite a colony of Capitalites are expected there in the next few days. Already there, and with her estate, Weehame, opened for the summer months, is Miss Edith MacCulloch Miller. Dr. and Mrs. James F. Mitchell, Mrs. Nathan C. Wyeth, and Mrs. J. B. Cochran, and Mrs. John R. McLean are others who will be in Bar Harbor in the next few days.

Leaving for Maine several days ago were the former Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter Evans Edge and their daughter, Miss Camilla Edge, who made her bow to Washington society at a tea on June 12. Mrs. Edge and Camilla are already established at their summer place, Small Point Beach, for the season, but Mr. Edge is en route to Matapedia, Canada, where he will spend several weeks fishing for salmon. Later, he will join his family in Maine for the remainder of the summer.

CAPITAL CALENDAR: Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ralph Bard will entertain at a cocktail party on June 27 . . . Mrs. Edward Beale McLean will have a number of friends dining with her Sunday evening . . . Col. Edwin C. McNeil will be host at a cocktail party this afternoon for officers of the Army Judge Advocate General's office, and their wives . . . Mrs. Oscar R. Rand, wife of Lieut. Col. Rand, will entertain at luncheon on Monday at the Army-Navy Club.

The Windsors Have William S. Church As Their Guest

Commander and Mrs. Charles C. Windsor and the latter's son, David Chew Stephenson, have visiting them at their apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel William Stitt Church, son of former Congressman and Mrs. Ralph Church, of Illinois.

Mr. Stephenson will leave next week for Philadelphia to visit his aunt, Miss Elizabeth Chew, at her home, Cliveden, in Germantown, Pa., and also his uncle, Oswald Chew, at Radnor, Pa. While there, he will attend the dance that William C. Bullitt will give for his debutante daughter, Miss Anne Bullitt, on June 27, at Tenllyn, Pa.

Bloedorns Fete De Brins at Dinner

The Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Brin were honor guests at the dinner party given last night by Dr. and Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn.

Also in the dinner party was the Rev. Robert White Dean, of the Catholic University Law School.

J. P. Freys Feted After Celebration Of Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Frey, who celebrated their golden anniversary last week, were honor guests at a reception given recently by Mrs. G. F. Seitz and Mrs. E. E. Barry. Sharing honors with the couple was their daughter, Mrs. Hattie Vernson, of Cincinati.

Assisting at the party were Mrs. Earle M. Dawson and Mrs. Helen Albertson. Mrs. Frey was presented with a beautiful Corday bag by members of Circle One, Wesley Church. Among the guests were Mrs. Luther J. Neff, Mrs. Harry Hoskinson, Mrs. J. B. Korning, Mrs. W. L. King, Mrs. Nathan B. Eddy, Mrs. H. T. Swarenberg, Mrs. Iris Baker, Mrs. F. W. Newcombe, Mrs. C. S. Cole, Mrs. Joseph C. Gardner, Mrs. C. E. Graham, Mrs. W. F. Mosmal, Mrs. Mary E. Schwartz, Mrs. Leona Meador, Mrs. Fletcher Warren, Mrs. A. G. White, Mrs. E. G. Brandenberger, Mrs. L. E. Boykin, Mrs. Neil Andrews, Mrs. E. B. Fletcher, Mrs. M. W. Hendry, Mrs. E. A. Quinn, Mrs. C. A. Quinn, Mrs. C. A. Gentzler, Mrs. H. W. Hartman, and Mrs. H. C. Sanborn.

Peru Aide's Wife Visits in New York

Senora de Mackehenie, wife of the Second Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy, is in New York with her parents, Senor and Senora Aurelio Miro-Quesava. Senor Miro-Quesava is editor of the Peruvian paper, El Commercio, one of the oldest in South America. It has been owned by his family for three generations.

The visitors recently arrived from South America for a three months holiday. They will spend part of it in Washington.

Daughter-in-Law Arrives to Visit Lord, Lady Halifax

Mrs. David Wood, daughter-in-law of the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax, is at the embassy here for a stay. She recently arrived in this country after a visit with her husband, Lieut. Wood, of the Household Cavalry, who is with British troops in the Middle East. Mrs. Wood is now waiting for passage back to England.

Another member of the family, Lady Feversham, daughter of Lord and Lady Halifax, is expected in Washington shortly. She landed on the Clipper in California earlier this week.

Miss Beth Kean Is N. Y. Bridesmaid

Miss Beth Kean, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert W. Kean, of New Jersey, served as bridesmaid yesterday at the wedding of Miss Frederica Pearson Ripley and Seth Barton French, jr., at St. James Episcopal Church in New York City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. H. Ripley, of New York and Newport, R. I. A reception followed at their home. Mr. French is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Barton French of New York and Baltimore.

Clara Chaconas Is Married to Dr. Aschenbach

Vases of white lilies and larkspur adorned the altar of the Nativity Church for the wedding of Miss Clara Chaconas and Dr. Ernest H. Aschenbach at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, with the Rev. Lawrence A. McGlone officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Zografides and the late Peter K. Chaconas. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. George H. Aschenbach. Miss Elizabeth Healy played the organ throughout the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Constantine Peter Chaconas, the bride wore an aquamarine ensemble with a matching hat. A shower of orchids fell from her prayer book. Mrs. David Bendann, wearing a rose silk suit, served as matron of honor. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of flowers. Dr. John Imhoff, of Jersey City, served as best man. Ushers included George Chaconas and Dr. Frederick Feusahrens.

A wedding breakfast followed at the Mayflower. The bride's mother wore a navy blue ensemble and Mrs. Aschenbach chose a white crepe frock for the occasion. After their honeymoon in the west the couple will live at 1620 Fuller Street. The bride was graduated from Trinity College and attended Catholic University. Dr. Aschenbach was graduated from Catholic University and received his medical degree from Georgetown University.

Marjorie Dalberg And L. T. Steele To Wed July 15

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Marjorie Blair Dalberg, daughter of Melvin H. Dalberg, of Washington, and Mrs. Walter L. Chesman, of St. Augustine, Fla., to Louis Thornton Steele, son of Mrs. Edith F. Greenwood, of Boston, and the late Harlow Leroy Steele.

The bride-elect attended Miss Fuller's School at Ossining, the Lenox Schdol in New York and the National Academy of Dramatic Art in Washington. She has appeared in several plays, the latest of which was with Alexander Woollcott in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Mr. Steele attended the Westminister School, Phillips Academy and Bowdoin College and is now connected with an advertising firm in New York. The wedding will take place on July 15, at Miss Dalberg's home, 2126 Connecticut Avenue.

Schwarzes to Spend Summer in Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Conrad Schwarz will spend the summer in Williamsburg, Va., where the former will teach at the College of William and Mary. Mrs. Schwarz is the former Miss Myrtle Mildred Cooper, daughter of Jack Garnett Cooper, of Fordsville, Ky. She became the bride of Mr. Schwarz June 12.

The former Miss Cooper is a descendant from the family that founded the Jamestown colony and pioneered the settlement of Kentucky. She studied at the Universities of Kentucky, Southern California and Virginia, and at the College of William and Mary and Columbia University. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Delta Kappa Gamma and Pi Lamba Theta. She writes stories for children and paints in water color.

Mr. Schwarz studied here at George Washington University and the Corcoran School of Art and presided over the Society of Free Lance Writers for several years. He has taught art in Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., and Minnesota State Teachers' College. He is the son of Dr. Osias L. Schwarz, of Washington, author of "General Types of Superior Men" and "Unconventional Ethics."

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

ALL THE WAY from India, non-stop except to change planes, has come Lady Feversham, daughter of the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax. She is stopping briefly in Washington while waiting passage back to England. Lady Feversham has been visiting her husband, the Earl of Feversham, who is on duty with the British forces in India. She arrived in California by Clipper only Tuesday and yesterday was sampling her first mint julep at a small cocktail party given by Robert Coe of the State Department.

THIS WILL BE Lady Feversham's first reunion with her parents since war began. Her three brothers—she is the only daughter—are all with Britain's armed forces. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. David Wood, arrived in Washington a few days earlier than she from a visit to her husband in the Middle East. Both are eagerly awaiting the return of Lord and Lady Halifax from Cambridge, Mass., where the former received a degree from Harvard.

Lady Feversham, who resembles her distinguished father, yesterday wore a simple yellow print and had a dark ribbon tied about her brown curls. She barely had time to unpack after her days and nights in the Clipper, and was describing the hectic life of air travel to friends at Mr. Coe's cocktail party.

The host will leave the end of July for a brief vacation in Wyoming before going to his new post, London. The bombings evidently hold no terror for him, for he says he is looking forward to his job at the American Embassy there.

YESTERDAY EVERYBODY gathered on the terrace of Mr. Coe's home on Foxhall Road. Among those who dropped by was Tony Rumbold, who has just returned from a stay in England. Mrs. Rumbold went to New York to meet him and spent five days waiting at the airport for the Clipper, which was delayed because of the weather.

Here and there at the party were Mr. and Mrs. George Howe, busy moving to their new home near Olney, Md. . . . Mrs. Philip Bonsal, wife of the acting chief of the Division of American Republics of the State Department—he was busy yesterday seeing the first survivor of the Robin Moor to reach Washington; Mrs. Robin Pell, in a yellow dress and matching cartwheel hat; Mrs. Edward Page, who chatted with Stephen Morris; Mrs. Hawes Moore, in a becoming print and wide-brimmed black hat; Samuel Reber, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and one or two others.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Hamilton Wright will leave the first of the month for a trip to South America. On her return she will join her daughters at their summer home, Norlands, in Maine.

Miss Emma Perley Lincoln has cards out for a tea on Tuesday at the Newspaper Women's Club in honor of Mrs. Edward H. Everett and Mrs. Everett Buchan.

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles H. Edmonston, of Washington and Baltimore, are at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va., on their honeymoon. Mrs. Edmonston is the former Miss Elmina Rebecca Tilden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Tilden.

Miss Kate Weaver, of the Wardman Park Hotel, has gone to the Lakeside, Eagles Mere, Pa., to spend the summer.

Col. T. J. Smith, of Connecticut Avenue, is spending the season at the Admiral, Cape May, N. J.

Miss Elizabeth Baron Erwin, of Steubenville, Ohio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmet McDonald Erwin, is the guest of her cousins, Mrs. Helen Stokes Van Norman and Miss Louise Van Norman, of Fairmont Street. Miss Erwin's mother was, before her marriage, Miss Ruby Maline Stokes, of Washington. Recently graduated from high school, Miss Erwin will enter Sweet Briar College in the fall.

Mrs. Sarah Sachs will be "at home" on Sunday in honor of her son, Harris Sachs, who will leave later this month to join the Naval Air Force at Pensacola, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. Jefferson Wright have as their guest Miss Sally Maria Stevens of Memphis Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gerald Irvine announce the birth of a son yesterday at Columbia Hospital.

The Misses Jeanne and Marjorie Simmons celebrated their eleventh and thirteenth birthday anniversaries, respectively, on Wednesday afternoon with a garden party. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde O. Simmons, of Lyon Village, Arlington, Va.

Waddens Give Dancing Party for Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden entertained at a dancing party in their apartment on Calvert Street in honor of their daughter, Miss Edwina Pou Wadden, on Wednesday evening.

Miss Wadden, who is the namesake of her grandfather, the late dean of Congress, was selected to receive the American Legion Medal for scholarship and service in the graduating class at Alice Deal Junior High School.

Miss Olga Grace Bedell Engaged to Maj. Burgee

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joseph Bedell, of Washington announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Olga Grace Bedell, to Maj. Miel Day Burgee, headmaster of Charlotte Hall Military Academy, Charlotte Hall, Md.

The wedding will take place soon.

Irene Dodge, B. H. Burrell Are Married

The wedding of Miss Irene Dodge and Benjamin Harrison Burrell took place last evening at a candlelight ceremony in the Baptist Temple in Alexandria. The bride was escorted to the aisle by her father, the Rev. Ryland Thomas Dodge, who then took his place at the altar to officiate at the ceremony. He was assisted by the Rev. Wesley Dodge, cousin of the bride, and the Rev. E. S. Gruver. Mr. Burrell is the son of Frederick Burrell, of Alexandria.

Palms, ferns and white flowers adorned the altar for the ceremony. The bride wore a white chiffon and lace gown with long full sleeves and ending in a sweeping train. Her full length veil, and face veil, fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. E. S. Gruver, of McLean, Va., and Mrs. Henry Jackson, of Charlottesville, served as matrons of honor. They wore pink chiffon dresses and carried pink roses intermingled with larkspur and wore wreaths of flowers in their hair. The remaining attendants were Mrs. H. H. Dodge, of Chester, Va., Mrs. Donald Seaton, Miss Fay Wakeman and Miss Betty Jane Warfield. Two were gowned in aqua chiffon while the others wore yellow frocks. They carried yellow roses and wore gardenias in their hair. Miss Martha Ann Haislip, in a white organdy frock trimmed with pink ribbons and carrying a nosegay, served as flower girl.

Richard Burrell, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Ryland Dodge, James Dodge, both brothers of the bride; H. H. Dodge, Charles Dodge and David Thomas. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents in Alexandria. Mrs. Dodge wore a blue taffeta gown brocaded in pink.

After their wedding trip to New England the couple will be at home at 1417 King Street, Alexandria, Va. The bride was graduated from National Art School. Mr. Burrell attended Roanoke College and Columbus Law School.

Wise-Phillips Attendants Named

Miss Mildred Ann Phillips, of Laurel, Md., and Franklin B. Wise, of this city, have announced the attendants for their wedding, which will take place Saturday afternoon, June 28, in the Calvary Methodist Church in Annapolis. Miss Phillips is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rembert Phillips, of Barclay, Md., and Mr. Wise is the son of the late State Auditor of Delaware and Mrs. James Wise.

Mrs. Guy Bowdle, of Dover, Del., will be matron of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Ruth Phillips, sister of the bride, and Mrs. John M. Warren, Miss Florence Hill, and Miss Eleanor Frizzell, all of Laurel.

Dr. Wilbur D. Barton, jr., of Baltimore, will be best man, and ushers will include two of the bridegroom's brothers, Paul S. Wise, of Cleveland, and Capt. James A. Wise, of Denton, Md.; Guy Bowdle, of Dover, and Ernest Lundell, of Washington.

The bride-elect attended the Maryland State Normal School. Mr. Wise is a graduate of the University of Maryland. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

J. P. Moores Will Live Here After Bridal Trip in North

Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Moore, who are on a wedding trip to New England, will return the latter part of this month to make their home in Washington. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Henriette Coyne, daughter of Mrs. Bartholomew B. Coyne and the late Mr. Coyne, formerly of Maplewood, N. J. Mr. Moore's parents are Capt. and Mrs. Bernard J. Moore, of 2955 Grand Concourse, New York City.

St. Anthony's Church here was the scene of the ceremony on Saturday at 10 a. m. The Rev. John A. Ryan officiated. Given in marriage by her brother, Bartholomew B. Coyne, jr., the bride was gowned in ivory satin, worn with a tea-rose straw picture hat. Her bouquet was of roses and baby's breath. Mrs. Eugene J. Butler, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. Her frock of turquoise blue linen, was worn with a matching hat, and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses and baby's breath.

William Brown of Washington was best man, and ushers were William Brown and Eugene J. Butler, of Washington, and Dr. John Cinelli, of New York. Following the ceremony there was a breakfast at the Shoreham Hotel, and the coupel left immediately afterward on their wedding trip.

The former Miss Coyne is a graduate of the College of St. Elizabeth, Convent Station, N. J., and she attended the Catholic University of America. Mr. Moore is a graduate of Manhattan College and Catholic University Law School.

The Plainer the Golf Outfit, the Better the Game, Is Best Rule for Women When Dressing for Links

For rain or shine, this "Zelan" water-repellent jacket of fine cotton poplin makes a practical golf outfit. It is designed with an easy swing professional action back, and with zipper closings for tee-bands and extras. The finish not only makes the fabric resistant to water and spottings without impairing its soft feel or porosity, but actually gives it a softer hand. The jacket is available in eggshell, sea green, tan, ice blue, baby pink and baby blue

Mrs. Thomas Brandon Medalist, Advises Practical Clothes

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

IN THIS streamlined age of the woman golfer, clothes for her are not a hit or miss proposition. Wherever madame, or mademoselle, shoots her game—whether in Hawaii, California or right here in Washington—she dresses for the weather and local propriety.

Mrs. Brandon

Mrs. Thomas O. Brandon, a recent medalist in the Woman's District Championship at the Manor Club, finds that Washington women dress on the conservative side. Having played on courses North and South, East and West, she noted that Southern California (where anything goes) is the only place where shorts and slacks are not actually frowned on.

The elements play a great part in golf dress in Seattle, according to Mrs. Brandon. "Women wear very heavy waterproof shoes, jackets and skirts to shed the rain, and their outfits are not really very attractive," she admitted. In Hawaii, rain is an item too, but apparently the women do not let a little thing like a shower stop them. Mrs. Brandon explained that the women there wear two-piece washable dresses that dry out immediately with the heat after a storm.

For Sturdy Garments

As for Mrs. Brandon's own preference in golf clothes, she believes "the plainer the outfit the better the game." Fragile clothes have no place on the golf course in her estimation.

"It pays to buy good sturdy clothes in fast colors that will stand up under the weather," she said.

Apparently the one-piece dress is ruled out of the golfer's wardrobe, whether amateur or professional. In describing the type outfit suitable for different parts of the country, Mrs. Brandon stressed freedom of movement as the most important factor. Two-piece costumes and action backs take the lead for practicality.

For sultry Washington summers, Mrs. Brandon prefers the two-piece outfit of skirt and blouse. She likes to combine the two parts of the costume in the mix-match method of Southern

Two-Piece Costumes Most Popular On Courses

California colors, and also goes in for their casual manner of wearing the shirt outside.

Forgoes Full Skirts

Comes cool weather, Mrs. Brandon changes to two sweaters and a skirt—a pullover, a cardigan and a gored wool flannel skirt. She cautions that the skirt should not be too full. A sweep of wind and a full skirt can play havoc with the swing. Buttons, too, can be as annoying as a heckler shouting "fore" at that crucial moment.

Accessories on the course are worn more for practicality than to complement an outfit. The gloved hand is optional, and if worn at all, only on the left hand. Mrs. Brandon suggests medium weight woolen golf socks to absorb the perspiration, even in warm weather. Shoes should have broad flat heels and removable spikes as they wear down quickly and must be replaced. Although Mrs. Brandon likes to play without a hat, she thinks it is an important item and advises the visor or riding type.

Europe Still Uses Make-up

DESPITE the shrieking of bombs and sounds of the daily anti-aircraft guns, women in warring European capitals continue their visits to beauty salons. A new lipstick or a change of nail polish strengthens their courage to face recurring dangers.

So reports Peggy Sage, originator of a brand of fingernail polishes, who was in town this week. Miss Sage gets her information from London, Paris and Berlin clients and her salon representatives, who arrived in New York from time to time.

"In London," says Miss Sage, "Women's first requests when they arrive in my underground beauty salon are for pedicures. (The salon has been moved underground for duration of the war.) A pedicure is their first line of defense against fatigue and exhaustion. Also it gives them a few minutes rest before rushing out to clean up the aftermath of the latest blitzkreig raid."

According to Miss Sage's informers, English women will forego rouge, powder and shampoos, but they insist upon lipstick and nail polish to brighten up their dark uniforms.

"As for German women—well in Berlin," said Miss Sage, "they seem to be hog-wild on the subject of cosmetics. They grab up every ounce of lipstick, rouge, powder, nail polish available. Many of them sneak to the smart hotels for manicures. And when German soldiers arrive in France they are loaded down with orders for all the cosmetics they can get. These they send back to their fraus."

All the cosmetic manufacturing plants and beauty salons are still running full time in Paris.

Girl, Now 5, Has Fought With Other Children Ever Since She Was Old Enough to Play; Mother Must Constantly Placate Neighbors; Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been reading your column for so long that it almost seems I know you personally; but I never know what your answer will be! Maybe you can help me with my problem. My little daughter has been fighting with other children ever since she has been old enough to play. I have tried every means of helping her to adjust herself, but I have had no success.

She is 5 years' old and we live in a "row house," which makes for neighborhood complications, with the doorbell ringing to admit complainants; neighbors not speaking, etc. She throws stones and sand at other children, sometimes hitting them. And if they were to strike back and injure her, I certainly couldn't say anything, because of her "brat's" reputation. I have never quarreled with any neighbors over her; but I have had to "suffer in silence" many hurtful remarks.

I don't like to defend her actions, because if the other mothers got angry, they wouldn't let their children play with her at all. When I have "sentenced" her to her own backyard, she refuses to play there—but instead, yells and throws stones and makes matters worse. I am hoping she may outgrow such behavior. But can you advise me what to do, for the good of all concerned, in the meantime?

WORRIED MOTHER.

Straining at Gnat, Swallowing Camel

DEAR W. M.: In giving so much thought to the neighbors' place in the turbulent situation created by your child's misbehavior, you have been putting the cart before the horse. You have been straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel. You have been trying to cope with "effects," instead of getting at "causes." You have failed to see the problem in perspective. It is dangerously optimistic, a mistaken attitude, to suppose your child will just naturally outgrow her wrong-headed conduct; and that your major question is how to keep your neighbors pacified until she does.

It is fairly common knowledge today that "the child is father to the man;" that, "as the twig is bent, so the tree inclines"—that behavior patterns, for good or ill, are established in childhood and thereafter serve to make or mar one's whole existence. The longer your child is allowed to persist in her fighting, yelling, stone-throwing, generally "negative" performance, the less likelihood is there of reclaiming her to the habitual practise of a healthy, happy, "positive," prepossessing brand of behavior."

So my advice to you is to tackle the problem at its source, by procuring for your child special diagnostic attention that will throw light on the sort of help she needs in overcoming these bad habits. "Bad acting" in children is sometimes an attention-getting device; a form of "ego assertiveness" employed by youngsters of abundant vitality who haven't been trained in better means of expressing themselves. Again, it may reflect unsuspected ill health or malnutrition; a fretful discontent with themselves and the world. Or it may stem from a poorly managed, distrait family life, which has the child constantly on "high tension."

In any event, one is dealing with a strictly specific problem, demanding first-hand special study, when probing for the cause and cure of a preschool age child's problem of chronic belligerency. Speculations and generalizations offered by one who doesn't actually know a great deal about the child—in relation to his family, his playmates and his home background—are apt to fall wide of the mark. Before giving 1-2-3 recommendations for "re-educating" your child in "good" behavior, one would need to have talked with her and with you; to have checked on the state of her health; to have an analytical "slant" on your respective personalities and mental types, and to understand something of your emotional relationship to each other.

The fact that you are at a total loss to know how to meet the situation shows that you personally need practical, psychological counselling in child management—such as an expert in child health and training would give you, in handling this case. If the child were younger, one might urge nursery school training,—which has been the salvation of many a spoiled "only child"; owing to the constant supervision, intelligent individual attention and detached administration of justice children come up against there.

But your daughter is now too old for that. And in the crowded kindergarten classes of the public school system, her problem probably would be at once overlooked and magnified. Several years of private school training might hold the answer,—but it is comparatively costly, ranging from about $250 a year upward for day students. Therefore, your likeliest source of help is the Child Guidance Clinic of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, 1464 Columbia Road Northwest, ADams 1033. Perhaps two or three conferences with one of the Institute's child psychologists would see you through the worst of your difficulties, and give you the knowledge you need for keeping the child on the right track thereafter.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Double-Deck Beds, Answer to Space Saving Problem

Double-deck bunk beds provide the answer to many sleeping problems. Decoratively, they open the way to unusual room treatments. Practically, they permit maximum comfort in minimum space. Children love them and adults find them useful, especially for summer homes.

Bunks can be purchased in units, ready to use, or if the man of the house is a home craftsman they can be made without too much effort in the basement workshop. Poplar and pine are the simplest materials to use. Chestnut and oak require more skill to work, but make stronger bunks.

The important thing, of course, is to provide good springs and mattresses, whether the bunks are bought or made. Mattresses alone are not enough, if the beds are to provide real sleeping comfort. A bunk bed equipped with a resilient mattress over the right type of bedspring will be as comfortable as any bed in the house.

A boy's dream of having a nautical bedroom can be easily fulfilled when bunks are used. A rope mat on the floor, sailcloth for draperies and a few seagoing decorations will complete the picture.

Memo to Designers

A few less clothes, please, to be worn on beaches,

On bicycles, boats and dude ranch reaches,

And just one good dress to look smart on the street,

When the sun dispenses its ninety-odd heat.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

An unfortunate incident threatened to break up the patriotic ball Mrs. Abraham Lincoln De-Peyster gave last night as her final gesture in the current social season. Guests were asked to wear uniforms and decorations, with the result that Col. Huntington Halltree, octogenarian, who was in the dress uniform of the now defunct Truthtown Corsairs was mistaken for a doorman by glamour boy Rutherford Rhumba and ordered to call young Rhumba's roadster.

Col. Halltree immediately challenged young Rhumba to a duel and the two were fencing with oyster forks in the dining room when friends intervened.

Contributing to the round of gayety preliminary to the summer exodus of Truthtown socialites was Mrs. Hawksberry Weathercock's dinner Tuesday night for Count Amour and Archduke Pyrex. The count vied with Philander Plunkette, who holds the Truthtown divorce record, in paying court to the recently widowed Mrs. Saffron Midas whose husband was the tinted potato chip tycoon. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, who made his first appearance following the stroke he suffered on reading of the proposed income tax scheduler, was being welcomed on every side by friends. Carrington Stepp, man about town and gourmet, was heard telling Mrs. Weathercock it had been "a lovely party."

Changing World

For the first time in its history Turret Hall, the ancestral home of Mrs. Badminton Bellwether, Truthtown's ranking dowager was opened Wednesday night to the hoi polloi. The occasion was a benefit for national defense.

True Spartan that she is, Mrs. Bellwether graciously endured the sight of photographers, reporters, press agents fashion writers, minor Government officials and other non-Social Register guests roaming over her baroque palace. A staff of private detectives almost as large as the guest list guarded the treasures that Mrs. Bellwether and her husband, the late marinated shrimp czar had collected on their travels.

One of the guests who made an early departure was Clancy De-Haven Bleakhouse, expatriate dandy, who recently returned to this country after living for 40 years in Paris. After one look at Mrs. Bellwether's guests, Mr. Bleakhouse departed in a rage. "To think that America should ever come to this!" he exclaimed.

The Art of Conversation

"Hasn't it been a warm day?"

"Yes, very."

"Don't you find the summers here difficult?"

"Yes indeed."

"I suppose you swim?"

"Well, No."

"Do you do much motoring?"

"Well—a little."

"Well I wonder how the strike situation will turn out?"

"I wonder, too."

"Anyway, I'm glad the President has acted with a firm hand."

"Oh yes."

"I'm really concerned though about the Mediterranean, especially if Hitler strikes at Gibraltar."

"That's right."

"I'd give anything to know what Hess told the British, wouldn't you?"

"Who?"

"Rudolph Hess—the Nazi who flew to England."

"Oh yes."

"There seems to be a great many weddings this month."

"Yes indeed."

"I suppose a great many of the bridegrooms are draftees."

"I suppose so."

"By the way, have you seen the pickets in front of the White House?"

"Well yes."

"It certainly is a strange sight, isn't it?"

"Yes indeed."

"Say, there's a man over there who reminds me of Donald Duck. You know the—"

"Oh yes indeed! Which one?"

"He's turned his back now but—"

"I see which one you mean. I'd know Donald anywhere. Say, wasn't it awful what happened to him this morning?"

"Well I—I just don't keep up with many of the funnies. Now I used to read Winnie Winkle—"

"Oh, wasn't it terrible about the twins—the trouble they've had naming them?"

"What twins?"

"Didn't you know Winnie Winkle had twins?"

"No!"

"Yes! Why she had twins a LONG time ago! And then you see they had all this excitement about naming them—"

"Marvelous! Do tell me all about it!"

Movie Stars Mix Gloves for Contrast

Hollywood, Calif.—Whatever gave you the idea that sleeves and gloves came in pairs? Not in Hollywood, they don't. Here is Ginger Rogers wearing one white and one black glove with a black and white dinner dress designed for her role in "Tom, Dick and Harry."

Gloria Swanson, in "Father Takes a Wife," is wearing an evening coat which is also a divided affair; one half, including sleeve, is tangerine; the other half, also including sleeve, is amethyst. (The two halves, incidentally, are separate, each with a draped panel over the sleeveless shoulder. Gloria can wear one half or both.

Women Map Defense Training Plan for Girls

By Lucia Giddens

Several dozen women yesterday launched into a training course for leadership of girls in the defense program, with the District Girl Scout organization providing the outdoor setting, the speakers and the challenge.

At Rockwood, an estate owned by the Girl Scouts, three miles south of Great Falls, the group gathered for the first day's session to prepare for directing girls in community service, conservation, health and recreation, homemaking and morale.

Miss Eleanor Durrett, District director of the Girl Scouts, led the discussion on "Girls Prepared for Today." She pointed out that in crises, women's and girls' jobs are largely the traditional ones, "but sharpened to meet the occasion."

Although these jobs center in the home and in community service, skills and morale must meet greater demands, it was pointed out. "Skills in these areas are not enough; spiritual values and democratic methods of doing things must be developed," it was added.

Group Samples Outdoor Actitvities

Sampling the outdoor activities in which they will direct girls, the group built a fire and cooked part of their lunch.

Miss Durrett stressed the fact that in any activity which girls undertake in such a program, service, tolerance, thrift and the sharing of responsibilities can be promoted by the adult leader, if democratic methods are used.

Miss Ruth Sheldon, home economist, Washington Gas Light Co., discussed foods at the afternoon session.

Each member of the group chose one field in which to develop special emphasis—health and safety, outdoor activities or community service.

The course, which is called "Group Leadership in the Present Emergency," will hold another five-hour session today, at which Miss Barbara Korff, of the American Women's Voluntary Services, will speak on "What Girls Can Do To Take Care of Themselves" and Miss Durrett will talk on "Our Community and Our Countryside."

The two remaining sessions of the course will be held on July 17 and 18, with another similar series starting July 24.

Will Be Day Camp Apprentices

Women enrolled in the course will have an opportunity to do apprenticing at the day camp which the Scouts conduct at Rockwood for girls who do not go on long camping outings away from home. The staff of the day camp is joining in the course.

The leadership course has enrolled not only women who are active in Scout work, but some who are preparing for directing other groups of girls.

Among those in the course are Mrs. L. J. Barnard, Mrs. J. D. Brennan, Mrs. T. B. Brewer, Mrs. S. Hardy Burgess, Mrs. Miles J. Byrns, Mrs. W. C. Dieter, Mrs. L. F. Freiburghouse, Mrs. D. Garrity, Mrs. Bailey Lang, Mrs. Eugene F. Lang, Mrs. J. D. Murphy, Mrs. J. E. O'Brien, Mrs. A. D. Overdorff, Mrs. T. J. Pekin, Mrs. Sanford Rosenthal, Miss Eleanor H. Saunders, Mrs. J. F. Scanlon, Mrs E. E. Schnellbacher, Mrs. C. B. Sculley, Miss Virginia Smith, Mrs. Marguerite Sullivan and Mrs. H. L. Welsh.

Members of the day camp staff taking the training are Mrs. Adolphus Staton, director of the Brownie program; Mrs. Joseph Kurz, director of camp in Rock Creek Area No. 1, and her staff; Mrs. Alfred Jacobs, Mrs. J. F. Finley, Mrs. F. C. Pippett, Mrs. W. B. Brown, Mrs. Max Blasser, Mrs. Harriet Pollard, Mrs. Earl Engleman, Mrs. Lee Caldwell, director of camp at Fort Dupont, and her staff; Mrs. Claude Jones, Mrs. Margaret Colson, Mrs. W. M. Ragsdale, Mrs. Lorin Armiger, Miss Muriel Anderson and Mrs. Austin Tucker.

Miss Ross Heads D. A. R. Red Cross Committee

Miss Nellie Grant Ross has been appointed State chairman of the new Red Cross Committee of the District Daughters of the American Revolution, in charge of the work to be done by the District chapter this season.

Activities will be carried on this summer without a recess, both at the District Chapter House of the Red Cross and at the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts Avenue, headquarters of the production unit. All members interested in sewing have been asked to report at the chapter house on Thursdays between 9 and 12. Those desiring to make bandages may report at the Walsh house between the same hours on Thursdays.

Mussey Tent Will Elect Convention Delegate

Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, at its next meeting, July 7, will elect a delegate to the fifty-first national convention of the organization to be held in Columbus, Ohio, September 14.

Invites Public To Benefit Fete

Mrs. Roosevelt and Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador, will head the list of sponsors at a garden party to be given by the Washington branch of the Daughters of the British Empire from 4 to 7 p. m. tomorrow at the British Embassy for the benefit of the British War Relief Society.

The embassy grounds will be open to the public, along with the ballroom, diningroom and the first floor hall, hung with portraits of British royalty.

Among the sponsors of the party will be Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Frank C. Walker, Mrs. Frank Knox, Mrs. Claude R. Wickard, Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Ralph H. Close, Mrs. Richard Casey, Mrs. Leighton McCarthy, Lady Campbell and Mrs. Nevile Butler.

Junior aides assisting the committee will include Katharine and Oonah Butler, daughters of the British Minister; Miss Cynthia Eden, cousin of the British Minister for Foreign Affairs; Nancy Holleran, Jane Levis, Rapee Beard, Eunice Winegar, Joan Lynch, Hilary Knapp, Anne Howell, Peggy Sweet, Anne Underwood, Gilleen Briggs and Anne Dickinson.

The skirl of bagpipes will be heard through the gardens and the flash of Highland plaids will be seen when a group of pipers play their melodies. Other music will be provided by Welsh singers and an aviator-accordion player who flew in last war for the Royal Flying Corps.

A number of other entertainment features are being planned. There will be an information booth about the extent and character of the British War Relief effort.

The marquees made for the Washington visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth will be set up on the lawn for refreshments and red, white and blue flowers will decorate the tables. Photographs of the embassy gateway, with its new coat of arms, will be available as souvenirs.

No cards of invitation will be required. In case of rain, the party will be held Sunday afternoon. Tickets will be on sale at the embassy entrance, 3100 Massachusetts Avenue, and at the British War Relief Shop, at 1423 F Street Northwest.

Five More Doll Teas Scheduled

"Doll adoption" teas have been set at five additional locations, it was announced yesterday by Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the Washington Council of Church Women.

For collection of dolls in various sections of the city to be given out later in the summer in a homemaking project for girls, the following teas have been scheduled, in addition to those already announced:

Southeast area, June 24, 3 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m., Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, Fourth and B Streets Southeast, Mrs. James Coffey, Cheverly, Md., chairman.

Chevy Chase-Cleveland Park-Bethesda area, June 25, 3:30 to 5 p. m., Cleveland Park Congregational Church, Thirty-fourth and Lowell Streets, Mrs. E. A. Back, chairman.

Dupont area, June 27, 10:30 to 11:30 a. m., Foundry Methodist Church, 1500 Sixteenth Street Northwest, Mrs. Oscar L. Pyle, chairman.

Crittenton Home Board Elects

Mrs. J. C. Freeland has been elected president of the board of managers of the Florence Crittenton Home, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers elected at the last meeting were Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, first vice president; Mrs. Fred G. Mitchell, second vice president; Mrs. George H. Price, recording secretary; Mrs. John E. Chase, treasurer; Mrs. Ralph Fleharty, assistant treasurer; Mrs. A. J. Somerville, corresponding secretary.

Three Honored At Luncheon By Mrs. Gaydash

Mrs. George G. Gaydash entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday in honor of Mrs. Minnie L. Briggs, Mrs. G. Chester Collison and Dr. Florence Everhart, members of the committee which served with her as art chairman of the District of Columbia branch, National League of American Pen Women, in the past year.

Mrs. Gaydash, assisted by Mrs. Paul C. Whitney, wrote poems for the placards.

Guests included Miss Helen E. Bliss, Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Ugo Carusi, Miss Regina Crawford, Mrs. Chester E. Davis, Mrs. Lee Barcy, Mrs. E. Richard Gasch, Mrs. Paul P. Llewellyn, of Rectortown, Va.; Mrs. Agnes McCall Parker, Miss Margaret Roberts, Mrs. William Walter Smith, Mrs. Theodore Hance Tiller, Mrs. Paul Taplin, of Barre, Vt., and Mrs. Paul C. Whitney.

Housekeepers' Group to Elect

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley heads the list of officers to be elected by the Housekeepers' Alliance Thursday, June 26, at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Frederic Newburgh, 7105 Chatham Road, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. Wiley, who is a past president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, past president of the Women's City Club and chairman of the National Woman's Party, was the "pioneer clubwoman" of the Alliance and was chosen as one of the two to be so designated from the District Federation in connection with the Golden Jubilee celebration of the General Federation recently held in Atlantic City.

Other officers on the unopposed slate include Mrs. Lyman F. Kebler, first vice president; Mrs. Newburgh, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, third vice president; Mrs. A. N. Baggs, fourth vice president; Mrs. J. H. Graves, fifth vice president; Mrs. William Trouty, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Harris Hoar, corresponding secretary; Miss Ellen W. Collins, treasurer; Mrs. Tilman B. Parks and Mrs. R. King Stone, auditors; Mrs. Lisle S. Lipscomb and Mrs. Theodore Holdcamper, directors to the District Federation, and Mrs. J. E. Atkinson and Mrs. L. C. Ashcraft, alternates.

Zeta Tau Alpha Delegate Named

Mrs. Franklin Steinko will be delegate from the Washington alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority to its seventeenth national and sixth international convention, June 23-28, in Biloxi, Miss. Miss Dorothy Rock is alternate.

Beta Alpha Chapter at George Washington University will be represented by its president, Miss Anne Murany, and treasurer, Miss Zetta Walker.

Mrs. Steinko will drive down with her husband, who has been the official convention reporter and parliamentarian for Zeta Tau Alpha for the past eight years.

Miss Rock will go with Mrs. John F. Warlick, who is planning to drive her party, including Miss Elizabeth Eidhammer and Miss Elizabeth Gladman, through the Great Smokies on their way South. Another Washingtonian at the convention will be Miss Beatrice Clephane, chairman of the National Finance Committee.

On July 8, the Washington Alumnae Chapter will entertain the Beta Alpha Chapter at a post-convention meeting at the home of Miss Clephane, 6000 Connecticut Avenue, when convention reports and movies taken by Mr. Steinko and Miss Rock will be presented. Miss Clephane will be assisted by Mrs. Linton Smith, Miss Mary Elizabeth McGehee and Miss Mildred Norvell.

Miss Frazier To Be Hostess

Miss Sadie Lou Frazier has been appointed to act as hostess to visiting club members at headquarters of the Business and Professional Women's Club, 1644 Connecticut Avenue, during July and August.

Miss Crienna Mahoney, chairman of the fellowship committee, is assigning its members to welcome newly-arriving defense workers who belong to B. and P. W. Clubs in their home States.

At the club's informal "at home" this week, Mrs. Laura Waters, president, reported on the new movement of the United Women's Organizations of the District of Columbia, which will sponsor a series of information programs to combat subversive propaganda. The B. and P. W. Club members discussed ways in which it might cooperate.

Delaware Society Picnic

The Delaware State Society will have a picnic at Hains Point at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow, it was announced by Sheldon W. Fairchild, president.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

MRS. RAYMOND CLAPPER will interpret "The President's Foreign Policy and National Defense" to a Middle-Western audience on a June night soon.

She will address a meeting in Appleton, Wis., June 30, under the sponsorship of the county Democratic organization. The invitation to speak came as a substitute for an idea which she and a friend considered earlier in the summer. They felt that citizens in the interior of the country might welcome more information straight from Washington, so they thought of getting in a car and going out, to stop on the roadside and talk to farmers and housewives.

An official in the Democratic organization, hearing of her urge, routed the speaking invitation to her, and it is likely that more may follow. Mrs. Clapper is on the executive board of the Washington unit, American Women's Voluntary Services, and a former president of the League of Women Voters in Montgomery County.

AUXILIARY PROGRESS—With 1,530 members enrolled, the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion Auxiliary has exceeded its membership quota for the year, according to Mrs. Ellen Louise Warren, membership chairman. The national organization has a total of 503,270 members.

Prizes were presented at this week's meeting of the department for outstanding work in membership. Mrs. Warren's cash award of $5 went to Lincoln Unit for being the first to obtain 100 per cent of last year's membership. Police and Fire Unit won the senior membership award given by Mrs. Helen M. McCabe, department president, and Lincoln Unit won her junior membership award.

Post Commander Bogen's "Victory Trophy" offered to the unit having the largest number of new members by December 31, 1940, was won by Sergeant Jasper Unit.

The national president's citation to all units reaching 100 per cent of last year's membership by December 31, 1940, was won by Lincoln, Victory and Spengler units.

Mrs. Lillian Bridges of Victory Unit won Vice President Ada Riley's award for securing the largest number of new members in the Central Division from October through March 31, 1941.

Mrs. Leah Fuller of Lincoln Unit won Vice President Beatrice Jacobs' rhinestone braclet for being the first membership chairman in Southern Division to obtain 100 per cent of last year's membership.

The unit membership chairmen of Lincoln, Victory, Spengler, Nash, Jasper, Killeen, Walker, Police and Fire and Kenna Main units won Mrs. Warren's personal birthday award for having reached 100 per cent of last year's membership by March 31, 1941.

The Capital Transit Unit was organized this week, with Mrs. McCabe, department president, installing the newly elected officers. Other department officers assisting were Miss Mabel Staub, department secretary; Mrs. Mary Corwin, past department president and parliamentarian and chairman of constitution and bylaws; Mrs. Ellen Louise Warren, department membership chairman, and Mrs. Nettie Peters divisional chairman for the Southern division.

Mrs. Warren presented Mrs. Peters with an award at the department executive committee meeting for having obtained the highest percentage among the three divisions.

D. A. R. ELECTIONS—Mary Bartlett Chapter of the D. A. R. has just elected Faustine Dennis, of the staff of the Library of Congress, as its regent. Miss Dennis, although she has plenty of Revolutionary ancestors who qualify her for membership in the D. A. R., does not have to go back into ancestry for distinction in war service. She herself did volunteer work in France during the World War, and is a past national president of the Women's Overseas Service League.

Chapter officers, who will serve with her this year, include Mrs. John R. Grunwell, vice regent; Clara B. Hadley, chaplain; Mrs. Gregor Macpherson, recording secretary; Mrs. Georgia Ifft Harmon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur F. Williams, treasurer; Mrs. Rosalyn Nash, registrar; Mrs. W. D. Marshall, historian; Mrs. E. M. Willis, parliamentarian, and Miss E. Beall Gott, auditor.

Emily Nelson Chapter will close its season with a pilgrimage to Rossborough Inn, on the campus of the University of Maryland, where its meeting was held in the historic old hostelry, erected in 1798.

New Officers of the chapter include Mrs. Frank L. Mason, regent; Grace E. Carr, vice regent; Mrs. Margaret R. Duvall, treasurer; Mrs. Regina R. Robey, recording secretary; Mrs. Pearl W. Norman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward L. Everett, chaplain; Mrs. Irene M. Dilsaver, registrar; Mrs. John J. Ragan, historian, and Mrs. Bertha S. Davis, color bearer.

Centers Listed for New Registration July 1

Selective Service Headquarters for the District yesterday announced plans for the July 1 registration of all local male citizens who have become 21 years of age since the first registration last October.

The National Guard Armory Sixth and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, will be used as a central registration place for transients and those temporarily residing in the District. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local draft chief warned that this is not intended as a registration place for commuters who work here and live in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

School registration centers will open at 7 a. m. on the morning of July 1, Gen. Cox said, and will remain open until 9 p. m. He said that a man on the July 1 registration day has the right to decide his place of residence. However, he said, once decided, it establishes once and for all th local board which will have jurisdiction over the registration.

Gen. Cox said that local board offices will not be used as registration centers. William H. Hargrave, department commander of the American Legion, has been appointed by Gen. Cox as chief registrar for the District. His assistants will be Commander W. A. Corley, Heywood Saunders and Donald G. Stanley.

A list of schools to be used on July 1 as registration centers together with the local board number for that area follows: 1, Western High; 2, Woodrow Wilson High; 3, Deal Junior High; 4, Calvin Coolidge High; 5, Paul Junior High; 6, McFarland Junior High; 7, Powell Junior High; 8, Adams; 9, Grant; 10, H. Petain Visits Youth Center

Vichy, June 19.—Continuing his visits to the various regions of unoccupied France, Marshal Petain today inspected numerous centers of the French youth movement in the Limousin district. A feature of the visit was a mass for French war prisoners at the village of St. Leonard. The chief of state was introduced to one mother who had three sons in German prison camps.

"That is too many," the marshal told her. "But I, like you, am most unhappy, for I have 1,500,000. All the war prisoners, as you know, are my children."

Soprano to Sing For Service Men

LUCY MONROE,

the "Star-Spangled Soprano," will appear as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra at the second of this season's "Sunset Symphony" concerts, Wednesday, July 2. Enlisted men and selectees of all the services will be admitted free. The orchestra will feature a patriotic program. Miss Monroe, who has probably sung "The Star-Spangled Banner" more often than any other living person, will sing the national anthem again

Economists Hit One-Man Rule of Money

By the Associated Press

Opposing continuation of President Roosevelt's emergency monetary powers, Edwin Walter Kemmerer, economist and Princeton University professor, said yesterday that authority to revalue the dollor "is not the kind of power that should be placed solely in the hands of one man."

The statement was prepared for the Senate Banking Committee regarding House-approved legislation to continue for two years the President's authority to cut the gold content of the dollar as much as an additional 9 cents and to maintain the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund.

Kemmerer declared that continual depreciation of the dollar "would mean monetary chaos, both national and international."

"Such a tremendous power (I submit, should only be exercised by Congress and the President combined, through due legislative process and after full public hearing," he said.

In a prepared statement, Harry Scherman, of New York, author of several books on money, suggested that the Administration withdraw its request for continuation of the monetary powers.

Scherman said that the revaluation power would permit the President to depreciate the dollar approximately 15 per cent and inflate the currency by $4,000,000,000.

"The $4,000,000,000 so-called 'profit' would be in addition to our currency supply," he said. "Just like so many greenbacks run off the printing press."

The 15 per cent devaluation authority, the witness declared, would not permit the United States to compete with other nations in any general depreciation of currency.

B. H. Beckhart, money and banking professor at Columbia University, told the committee that "whatever be the shape of the post-war world, and whatever be economic trends and policies, the United States should not in my opinion further devalue its currency."

Schulte Criticizes Milk Price Rise

mium of 43 cents, plus the 46-cent increase that is being asked and they would be receiving $4.06 a hundred, said Schulte.

This compares with $1.98 in Chicago, $2.08 in Detroit and correspondingly low amounts in other cities, the Indiana Representative said.

Arguments of Maryland and Virginia producers that labor and feed costs are higher here than elsewhere don't stand up, he continued, citing figures for other milksheds.

"If this 1-cent increase is granted," he told The Post, "the only thing to do, as I see it, is to investigate the dairy division of the Department of Agriculture."

The division will conduct a public hearing on proposed amendment of the Washington milk marketing order beginning next Monday at 9:30 a. m. in the Departmental Auditorium. Principal change asked is the penny increase in the producers' price.

Schulte announced recently that he would introduce a bill setting a 12-cent ceiling on the retail price of milk in the Capital.

Meantime, the surplus commodities office of the Board of Public Welfare yesterday made public figures showing that approximately 2,700 needy individuals and families are now buying 5-cent milk regularly. Actually 4,561 persons have been certified as eligible, but more than 1,800 are on the inactive ilst.

In addition, there are approximately 3,500 individuals and families who would be permitted to buy low cost milk but who have not, for one reason or another, obtained certification cards.

Thus, only about one-third of the total number of eligibles—persons on public relief or certified for WPA jobs and awaiting placement—are benefiting by the surplus milk program. Daily sales are averaging 3,000 this month. If every person eligible bought the maximum amount daily to which he is entitled, depending on the size of his family, the volume would be 12,000.

4-H Delegates Inspect Stock At Beltsville

Delegates to the 4-H Clubs' fifteenth encampment here spent yesterday afternoon inspecting the prize stock at the Beltsville experimental farm.

The 173 boys and girls who represent 1,500,000 4-H members in the United States and its territories are living in a tent city on the Mall near the Tidal Basin. Most all of the representatives are teen-age and have won their visits to the Capital through outstanding farm work.

The delegates gathered yesterday morning in the auditorium of the Department of Agriculture and listened to a panel discussion of moral issues in the present crisis. It was led by J. O. Howard.

In the afternoon, the delegates boarded buses and rode out to the Beltsville Experimental Farm. There they were shown the prize herds of Guernseys and Holsteins and were told of the Government's experiments with stock breeding.

M. L. Wilson, director of extension work for the Department of Agriculture, announced that two national 4-H scholarships of $1,000 each have been awarded to Erna R. Wildermuth, of New Mexico, and John W. Pou, of North Carolina. These fellowships provide for a year's advance study at the Department of Agriculture.

N. Y. Police to Enroll Air Raid Wardens

New York, June 19 (INS).—Every police station in New York City will be turned into a recruiting station tomorrow to enroll more than 60,000 air raid wardens.

Mayor La Guardia, National Civilian Defense director, instructed 150 high ranking police officers today in the methods of registration and investigation of applicants.

Farewell Dinner Honors McCoach

tives Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia and George H. Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, the members of Congress most closely affiliated with McCoach in District legislative and fiscal affairs, were the legislators praising the former District head.

Overton expressed regret that Engineer Commissioners, "particularly ones with such ability to grasp problems and to deal with them," were called back periodically to Army duty soon after becoming familiar with District needs.

Randolph wished the honor guest "Godspeed in every day of your life" while Mahon commented on his "swell job on the budget."

Speaking humorously Commissioner John Russell Young declared he was "brokenhearted at Dave's leaving, and not only because he did all the work while I was the idea man."

In serious vein Young declared, "The people of the District will regret his leaving for a long time to come."

Charles H. Tompkins, well-known local constructor, traced McCoach's career as an Army officer and engineer, and recalled that construction work here had doubled in the time of his commissionership.

Others paying tribute to the former District head included John Locher, head of the Washington A. F. L. organizations; Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Brig. Gen. Thomas M. Robbins, U. S. A., assistant to the Chief of Engineers. A letter of felicitation from Commissioner Melvin Hazen was read.

On behalf of the assembled citizens, Fleming presented to McCoach a testimonial signed by the chairmen of the various dinner committees, and to Mrs. McCoach a silver dinner set.

Col. McCoach, in his response, said:

"When I became Commissioner I felt it an extremely fortunate appointment for any officer in the Corps of Engineers. Now, at the end of my abbreviated term, I am confirmed in the belief.

"The duties of the Engineer Commissioner are so varied and complex that I would not have hoped to succeed without the help of the membership of all units of the District government, and this I have enjoyed."

He then declared the personnel of the District set-up the equal or superior of any similar government in the country, and thanked his friends in the local and city governments, on Capitol Hill and in private life, for their cooperation.

The guests included:

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Ickes Queries Department On Gas Conservation

Secretary Ickes apparently is going to use his Interior employes as guinea pigs for some of his oil conservation ideas. Each employe yesterday was given a questionnaire to fill out on how he or she traveled to work. The Secretary was particularly interested to know whether the employe drove an auto to work, and if he did, whether he picked up others to bring with him, and whether he would be willing to do so if it could be conveniently arranged. The employes also were asked if they would be willing to leave their autos at home and use busses and street cars to conserve gas.

Before the start of the new fiscal year on July 1, each Federal employe will be compelled to sign an affidavit that he or she isn't a member of a subversive organization. Navy Secretary Frank Knox yesterday ordered his employes to take the oaths. Each 1942 appropriation bill approved so far by Congress carries a rider that prohibits payment of funds to persons belonging to an organization that advocates overthrow of the Government. Senator Overton instigated the riders.

Interior's Grazing Service is the first decentralization victim. Its 60 employes and officials are being moved to the West, probably Salt Lake, to make room for the Petroleum Co-Ordinator for national defense. Richard H. Rutledge, service director, recommended the transfer in response to the Administration's request to find space for defense activities. They laughed when Secretary Ickes built the grand Interior Building, but today it's literally packed and jammed. File cases were even moved into the seventh floor art gallery the other day.

Apparently it isn't even safe to leave town for a few days at Interior. Your office may be occupied when you return. John C. Page, director of the Reclamation Bureau, actually had this experience. He went out of the city for a week and when he returned he found Ralph K. Davies, the deputy oil coordinator, in his office. And Davies is still in it. Which brings up the rumor that Reclamation may be moved en toto to Denver.

An Election Here!

Something novel to Washington—an election—will be held shortly after July 1 by Federal employes to choose their own representatives on the new boards of review that will settle employe grievances growing out of efficiency ratings. The boards, set up under the Ramspeck Act, each will be composed of three members, one employe representative, one representing the agency concerned, and the chairman who'll be appointed by the Civil Service Commission. A department can have more than one board and each board will be given broad authority to settle conflicts.

The employe representative must be elected by secret ballot and he must get a majority of the votes cast. Each agency will set up employe committees to receive nominations and hold the elections. Nominations will be by petition of about 50 names. Each agency here will have one or more boards and the system may eventually be extended to the field. Efficiency ratings usually are the basis of promotion and demotion and the boards are expected to have plenty of work to do.

James A. Treanor, jr., has succeeded Ganson Purcell as director of the trading and exchange division at SEC. Two new assistant directors are Walter C. Louchheim, jr. and Miss Olga M. Steig who has been chief of the over-the-counter unit. . . . C. B. Munson, of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, has been sent to the Caribbean region to study the food situation and general health conditions. President Roosevelt suggested the appointment. . . . The number of typist and stenographer eligibles is disappointing. Only 758 qualified for junior stenographer and 2,571 for junior typist in the recent Civil Service tests.

Girl, 16, Leaves Home; Missing Since Sunday

Irma Marie Watson, 16, was reported yesterday as missing from her home at 716 Sixth Street Southwest since Sunday.

Her father, George A. Watson, told police the girl left home with two suitcases. She is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 125 pounds and has black hair and blue eyes, he said.

A Bottleneck at Mealtime

The crowding in the dining room reserved for junior executives at the Office of Production Management has finally provoked a definition to call the sheep from the goats and to determine admissibility to the luncheon tables.

The definition: A junior executive is an OPM official with at least four bottle-necks under his supervision.

Dramatic Byplay

Hammond, Ind., June 19 (A.P.).—While Roscoe Woods, a Hammond realtor, was telling of depression-caused losses at a bankruptcy hearing today, his belt unbuckled and his trousers fell to half-mast.

"Not the first time I've lost my pants," Woods said as he yanked them up and continued his testimony.

Under a star-spangled sky last night a crowd of more than 3,000 music lovers at the Water Gate heard the first summer festival of the season, the Columbia Light Opera Company in a revival of the Hauerbach-Friml operetta "Katinka."

A quiet breeze blowing across the Potomac from Virginia and a cloudless sky combined to make ideal weather for the opening. Besides the thousands who watched the initial performance from the Water Gate steps there were many other persons who lined the Memorial Bridge or floated near the barge in canoes.

KATINKA was sung by Jeannette Bittner

IN THE DRESSING ROOM—Virginia Gregory, Kaye Hinz, Mary Bassett, Constance Luongo and Margaret Choate making-up for the performance

The performance was given under joint auspices of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department and the Welfare and Recreation Association. The operetta was under direction of Ethyl Manning.

Jeannette Bittner as Katinka and Irving Chandler as Ivan were both excellent as leads in the colorful and tuneful operetta while the chorus of 60 voices sang particularly well. An extra barge was provided for the augmented orchestra of 25 Washington musicians which through the public address system could be heard with great clarity. The settings and costumes were very elaborate.

Following "Katinka" the next Summer Festival will be held on Wednesday at the National Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument. The programs this year are under direction of an executive committee of local men and women with Miss Sibyl Baker as chairman.

Church Unit Gives Award To Jennings

D. C. Federation Picks Philanthropist For 'Zeal in Every Christian Enterprise'

For his unflagging zeal in "every Christian enterprise" here, layman Coleman Jennings yesterday was awarded the Washington Federation of Churches' annual plaque at its quarterly meeting.

The honor was to have been bestowed upon the distinguished churchman-citizen-philanthropist at the federation annual meeting in March, but Jennings was then in California, lecturing on the youth clubs—a subject dear to his heart.

The awards committee's decision, said Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, chairman, was motivated by Mr. Jennings "splendid record" in his own St. John's Parish, Lafayette Square; his interest in interdenominational work through the federation, and his "distinct service" to the community as Community Chest president, U. S. O. volunteer and penal welfare worker.

Telegram From Kaufman Read

Dr. Anderson read a telegram from Joseph D. Kaufman, of the National Conference of Christian and Jews, lauding the Federation's selection of Mr. Jennings as "No 1 Christian citizen" of Washington. Kaufman called himself a "disciple of this Christlike man," and added that the Federation "honored itself in honoring Jennings."

Plaque in hand, Jennings, with his characteristic humility, said he felt "truly honored" by the award, assured that he was especially honored that it came from the Federation of Churches.

He went on to say that his conviction was that churches get "added strength" when "banded together in a common cause" through such organizations as the Federation.

Coleman Jennings, who left a banking career in 1928 to devote his entire time and abilities to public welfare, became the fourth recipient of the Federation honor, given annually to the laymen considered having made the most significant contribution to the city's religious life.

Wilbur La Roe, jr., District Parole Board member, got the award in 1938; District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws in 1939, and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of metropolitan police, last year.

Sherwood Eddy Speaks

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, federation president, conducted the board's business sessions, when it was announced that Dr. T. Worth Tippy had been temporarily retained as successor to the Rev. John L. Mixon as director of the federation's social welfare department. Dr. Tippy, former head of the social welfare department of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, came here in 1937 to help organize the new department.

Mr. Mixon recently resigned to become Social Welfare director of the Los Angeles Federation of Churches.

Washington Baptist Celebrates Jubilee

Former and present members of historic Washington Baptist Church joined in its diamond jubilee dinner last night in the parish hall at Thirty-first and N Streets, Georgetown.

Mrs. George E. Truitt, wife of a former pastor there, came to the banquet with a cane made from the wood in the pews of the old Gray Street Baptist Church destroyed by fire in 1899.

And serving as master of ceremonies was Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of District public schools and the congregation's Sunday school superintendent, whose mother was a member from 1869 until her death in 1925.

Others of the Haycock clan present were W. Hunter Haycock, the superintendent's brother, and other members of their families, as well as 87-year-old Mrs. Mary McFadden, who joined the church 70 years ago. Lawrence Burroughs introduced the toastmaster.

Many of the city's Baptist leaders joined in the affair, with greetings coming from George B. Fraser and Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president and executive secretary of the D. C. Baptist Convention, respectively; Clifford Jenkins, representing the District Baptist Sunday School superintendents; Mrs. James Yaden, the District Baptist women; Dr. Thomas Wilson, District Baptist men, and John Gordion Mein, Columbia Federation of Baptist Young People's Unions.

Cliff Berryman Observes a 50th Anniversary

HE DRAWS "BACK AT THE POST"—Cliff Berryman, political cartoonist for the Washington Evening Star, draws a cartoon commemorating the day—50 years ago today—when his first cartoon was published by The Post. Berryman made the drawing when he visited The Post last night and called it, "Back at The Post"

Clifford K. Berryman, 72-year-old cartoonist of the Washington Star, dropped in at The Post last night to celebrate a birthday.

Fifty years ago today his first cartoon appeared—in The Post. From that day, June 20, 1891, he drew political cartoons for The Post almost daily until late in 1906, when he went over to the Star.

For 35 years since then he has turned out daily cartoons for that paper.

To celebrate the golden anniversary, Berryman dashed off a special cartoon for The Post.

"Back at The Post," he called the drawing, which showed a teddy bear looking at two Roosevelts, F. D. and Teddy, and remarking how much everything had changed around here. Especially Roosevelt.

Dressed in a white linen suit and large gray bow tie, and his white hair flowing in the breeze of an electric fan, the affable Cliff Berryman chuckled as he recalled the birth of the teddy bear, whose popularity in its heydey might be compared with that of Roosevelt II.

It seems Teddy Roosevelt had been bear hunting in Mississippi, but days passed and no sign of a bruin.

"The last day before the President was to return to Washington," Berryman recalled between strokes on his cartoon, "they yelled for him to get his gun and come outside, they had sighted a bear.

"There in front of the cabin was a measly cub on a rope, between two big colored men. His ears looked like prickly burrs and the hair was rubbed off of both sides.

"'If I shot that bear,' said Teddy, 'I'd be ashamed to face my children.'"

So Berryman did a cartoon of it, for The Post, entitled "Drawing the Line in Mississippi."

"The following day," recalled the cartoonist, "I did one called 'Returning From a Twentieth Century Bear Hunt.' I had this poor little fellow being dragged back to the zoo."

That is the story of the teddy bear's birth. Naturally the little fellow was named for Teddy Roosevelt.

Cliff Berryman came to Washington from his native Woodford County, in the heart of Kentucky's blue grass region, in 1886. The Capital was the first big city he had ever seen.

With never an art lesson in his life, he got a job as a draughtsman in the U. S. Patent Office, and while working there did his first cartoon.

He lives at 2114 Bancroft Place Northwest with Mrs. Berryman and children, Florence S. Berryman, assistant art critic of the Star, and Jim Berryman, sports cartoonist for that paper.

58 Agencies Made Members Of D. C. Chest

Community Chest trustees at a meeting yesterday afternoon elected 58 welfare agencies to membership in the Chest for 1942. Dates for the campaign have ben set at November 13 to 27, inclusive.

Of the organizations elected to membership, 57 are present members, and one was elected for the first time. This is the Washington Urban League, which was considered by the executive committee to have achieved a recognized place in the last two years as an agency dealing with problems of poor housing, delinquency, unemployment and undernourishment among the colored population of the city.

Two organizations were dropped from membership in the Chest. These are the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers Shoe and Rubber Fund and the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations Shoe and Rubber Fund. Both these agencies receive generous public support independently of the Chest through newspaper and radio appeals at Christmas.

Coleman Jennings, president of the Community Chest, announced that a legacy of $2,338.17 under the will of the late Isaac Gans has been received by the Chest, bringing the endowment fund to $93,456.53. Interest from the endowment fund forms part of the Chest's yearly income.

Speaking of participation of some Chest members in the USO campaign, Jennings said: "In order to avoid any question as to the propriety of member agencies of the chest sharing in the USO campaign, the Community Chest of Washington gladly gives permission to those member agencies . . . and to any other Chest agencies which the budget committee of the USO campaign in Washington may approve, to solicit, outside the annual Community Chest campaign, the funds . . . in meeting the national emergency."

John A. Reilly, treasurer, reported net pledges to date of $1,946,926.67, of which $1,332,060.43 has been collected. The balance, he said, is coming in steadily and in general satisfactorily.

A need for between $12,000 and $15,000 for household furnishings in buildings of Chest agencies was reported by Col. W. O. Tufts, chairman of the budget committee, who has conducted a survey of the agency buildings.

House Group Tables Proposal To Close Van Ness Street Area

Legislation to close the portion of Van Ness Street running through the Bureau of Standards grounds was tabled yesterday by the Streets and Traffic Subcommittee of the House District Committee.

Approval of the bill had been requested by Secretary of Coommerce Jones on the grounds that the bureau is engaged in numerous experiments essential to the defense program and should be completely enclosed by fencing.

More than a score of members of the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association appeared before the subcommittee to protest the street closing, pointing out that the District Commissioners, Washington Board of Trade and District branch of the American Automobile Association also were opposed to the bill.

The North Cleveland Park delegation argued that Van Ness Street is an important traffic artery and that its closing would prevent fire and police vehicles reaching their neighborhood promptly. They suggested that the bureau could connect its various plants with an underpass below Van Ness Street and put up a high fence along both sides of the thoroughfare.

The delegation was headed by J. B. Dickman, jr., president of the association, and William J. Neale, chairman of the legislation committee.

Court of Honor Gives Awards To 66 District Boy Scouts

Sixty-six Washington Boy Scouts were presented badges, palms and other awards at a court of honor last night in Central High School auditorium.

Dr. Paul Bartsch, curator of the Smithsonian Institution, presided, and also presented eagle awards to two Scouts. Linn C. Drake, scoutmaster, spoke on the significance of the eagle badge.

Award recipients and troop numbers follow:

Survivors of Zamzam Won Concessions Aboard Nazi Ship

The first account of life aboard a German raider by a survivor of a Nazi-sunk ship is recorded in the letters of James P. McKnight, Allentown, Pa., a representative of the United Presbyterian Church, to his family. Mr. McKnight was aboard the Egyptian motorship Zamzam when it was attacked in the South Atlantic on April 17. In excerpts from his letters published yesterday, Mr. McKnight told how survivors organized a committee to make demands on the captain. Today he tells how the survivors passed the 37 days at sea while living in constant fear of attack.

By James P. McKnight

Now I want to write of how we spent our time, what we have thought, how we have carried on. I must speak a little more fully of Mr. Charles J. V. Murphy, who became our leader. He is a good-looking man of 36, who was with Admiral Byrd in Little America. He is accustomed to making his way about as a journalist does and he helped us greatly to organize and plan our existence and in representing us before the captain for concessions and privileges. With Murphy is David Scherman, a photographer for Life.

On Monday, April 14, on the Zamzam, at tea time we suddenly turned completely around and retreated on our course at top speed. After two hours speeding back toward Pernambuco at 8 o'clock we veered to the south and went south until daylight. Then we got back on our course, southeast.

Apparently some warning had come regarding something on our course, and we made a big detour. No information was given out. But we had that much warning of danger. Still, practically no one was ready or had made the least preparations to get valuable things together. All my glasses were left behind and my prescriptions for medicine and glasses, my papers, and so forth.

Cleanliness a Problem

From the first Mr. Murphy insisted that we must make our own lives and that we must keep clean; for, he said, it was dirt that would get us down. The British-American Ambulance Corps (hereafter B. A. A. C.) offered to take over the serving of food, cleaning the deck and policing. The rest of us took turns, ten at a time, cleaning our hold. And that is a job, for here are 108 mattresses on the floor, side by side. Water was carefully rationed, fresh water that is. Each got 1½ to 2 pints for washing each morning, and at the same time you could get half a pint for cleaning your teeth.

Later in the day a little drinking water would be given. But I found that I could go for days on the liquid of soup and a pint of tea at each meal.

Washing of clothes became a real problem and we hit on pouring back our wash water each morning into a tub made out of half a metal barrel. With that dirty water the laundering was done. Salt water is free and one can use it for rinsing. There are only a few buckets and the men began to bring up their food bowls, which are of porcelain and shaped like a mixing bowl, to do their washing in.

The same day Dr. Dudley Wright, 75, an English doctor, set us a good example, by stripping off his clothes in front of us all for a good sponge bath in 1½ pints of water. After that we young fellows weren't afraid. But, as one of the South Carolina tobacco men remarked one night, "to shave, wash your ears and face and then eat out of the same bowl is something." The chief engineer had one of his men cut out half of a gas tin to make him a basin. The top was lying around for two or three days; then I took it, straightened it out—for it was all crushed in—doubled over the edges, plugged up the holes in the top and made myself a very useful utensil for washing, laundering—and lending out.

Day after day we worked out our schedule, and little by little we improved our lot and got concessions.

Now a day passes like this: Up at 15 minutes before sunrise, get your water, bathe and do your teeth, wash out a shirt or something and pin it up on a string; setting-up exercises if you want them, sit on the hatch and read a few lines, breakfast at 7 o'clock, prayer meeting at 7:45, cleaning the hold at 8:30. Between 10 and 12 the married men call on the ladies, bachelors have the swimming schedule. Mine is at 10:15. At 12:30 lunch, at 1 o'clock a sun bath, then free time. Supper at 4:30, back into the hold after sundown, then business meeting and announcements; then much bantering, victrola or accordion music, then evening prayers in little groups, then sleep to 15 minutes before the sun rises—if you can.

At first there was a call for carpenters to make benches without nails. Nice red wood was available, one of the passengers had some tools; so I spent some days on those. Then I made a Chinese checkerboard and pegs for it instead of marbles. This was very popular, so I sent it to the ladies and made a second one. That was not enough and before I was through I had made or helped make six. The men took up whittling and carving. The ladies sent over muslin bags for pillowcases and to put our things in. Chess and cards and reading material are available, but I have no glasses.

From the first, when we started north April 26, we thought we might be transferred to a boat going to Capetown or to a West Coast port, or to South America. Needless to say, for 20 days we have speculated endlessly. Many hoped to get to Africa, as their money and outfit is gone. One talks with everybody and every time one turns around one gets a new or different opinion. Now we are sure we will proceed north to the Canary Islands or a European port.

I have have called the food "soup," for that is what we call it; but it is better described as stew. And on the whole it has not been hard for me to eat the food. I have had an unusual appetite. Meals, too, have been improving gradually. But even at first, when breakfast was "paste" brown bread and tea, I found myself getting away with two slices of brown bread, heavy and sour as it was, and each an inch thick. At lunch and supper the same way. I'd break one slice in the stew and eat one with my mug of tea. And the stew was always tasty. Only of this rice stew did I tire. After a few days for supper one evening they gave jam with the bread and tea and no stew, and that was most welcome. Frequently at lunch the stew was of beans, and they were good; also they satisfied. I'd eat two dippers full and ask for seconds.

One night we had cheese sandwiches with butter and plenty of yellow cheese, two each, made with thick slices of brown bread, four slices for each man. Thus we lived during the first eight days, and then we contacted the raider. At that time we took on crates of eggs, and next night we had two hard-boiled eggs each.

It was about that time that Mr. Murphy took up with the captain the problems of menus. This resulted in improvements. We now got jam for breakfast with one and one-half slices of bread and a small portion of butter with our supper. And oatmeal each second or third morning and occasionally tapioca or cream of wheat or that type of thing, instead of "paste." There was pea soup once for lunch, quite thick and green, with ribs of beef, and we hoped for a repetition soon. Scrambled eggs twice a week or so for supper, with two slices of bread and a cup of tea became a favorite menu.

Ringside Table

With Mary Morris

THE GREAT NECKTIE HOAX. Umpire William Summers, of the American League, has been followed all over the country by a phantom necktie business for the last year.

It started last summer when Summers bought himself a dozen fancy cravats. This gave his pal, Umpire Joe Rue, the idea of spreading the word around that umpiring was just a sideline with Summers, that he was really making a fortune selling neckties. The tale has grown like a snowball. Perfectly innocent people ask him about his "necktie factory." He's gotten to the stage where if you say "necktie" to him, you'd better duck . . . Last act of this comedy of errors was played in the Rainbow Room lately when Maestro Milton Davis meaningfully tapped his necktie when visiting the Summers table, said "This is one of 'em."

Mr. Summers went off like an incendiary bomb. Recalling that "friend" Rue owns a bunch of Midwest ice palaces, he said, "That et cetera has turned me into a necktie peddler! Darned if I don't make it my life's business to turn all his ice skates into roller skates."

Lacri, cymbalon player at the Plymouth, is also an artist with the pencil. He frequently makes caricatures of Plymouth patrons, presents them with the pictures as a memento of the evening.

COZY LOTUS LUNCHEONS. Lotus always hums with many sizeable parties at its luncheon session. The other day two huge tables were occupied by the Women's Bohemian Democratic Club of Baltimore. General Manager L. C. Major, of the Greyhound Terminal, and Mrs. Major had a party of friends. Miss Betty Ferro, of the FCC, was entertaining for Mrs. W. W. Halstead and Miss Frances Rousseau, of Memphis, Tenn. And the cheerful ladies of the Busy Bee Knitting Club which does so much toward providing milk for the needy, were there headed by their Queen Bee, "Aunt Nellie" Browning.

MAD REQUESTS. Don Taylor, singing emcee of Restaurant "123" nearly swooned (a 300 pounds of him) the other eve at a list of requests from one table. It included "Beat Me Daddy, Eight to the Bar," Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," "You Great Big Beautiful Doll" and Ravel's "Bolero."

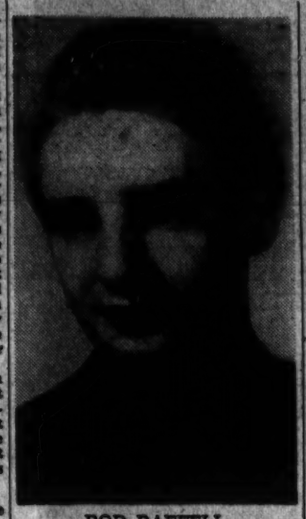
HOW TO BE A MOVIE STAR. Since Glen Echo's Adele Van received a bid to take a screen test from Paramount Pictures, she's been getting loads of letters advising her how to become a successful screen star and wishing her luck. But one pessimist wrote, "You'd better not go to Hollywood. You'll become a star, make too much money and then start going to those wild Hollywood parties."

Star event of this weekend is the opening of O'Donnell's Farms tomorrow eve. "Plantation syncopation" and "plantation dinners" are on the diversion menu.

FANCIFUL FACTS. Valentina, Madrillon's new chanteuse, is one of five children, all born in different countries, and who all now have their permanent homes in New York . . . The Mayflower Hotel has a Wisconsin guest who has stocked the hostelry's refrigerator with the many kinds of famed Wisconsin cheese. When he visits the Mayflower Lounge he orders hors d'oeuvre from his private stock . . . Crystallogist John Frazier, of the King Cole Room, says that crystal reading is the most ancient form of forecasting . . . Omar of, the Casino Royal, can do handsprings and carry a tray of dishes at the same time. And he doesn't use glue. Perhaps a smidgeon of ii-



ROD RAFFELL,
whose orchestra will celebrate its first anniversary in Nightingale tomorow night

brary paste . . . Leo, the seer of Mayfair, says that Hitler will reach his peak on September 15, and thereafter will be strictly a toboggan rider.

BEAUTIFUL CUSTOMERS. The young leddy in the Lounge Riviera who wore two of the largest white orchids we've ever seen in her jet black hair. At first glance they looked like a fly-swayish white hat. At that, they must have cost as much as a Lily Dache bonnet . . . That foursome of prettiez in daring midriff gowns who were recently rained out on the Starlight Roof, but had just as good a time downstairs in Cafe Caprice.

FAMILY OF COINCIDENCES. The Anchor Room's Eileen George and Matt Windsor fascinatedly report that among their prized customers are brother and sister Margaret and Bud Anderson, who were both born on the same day in different years. And that isn't all. Their mother and father were both born on the same day.

Have you heard Helen Malcolm sing "The Duchess Lost Her Crutches" at the Silver Fox? If not, it would be a good idea to put it on your "must" list.

STRICTLY NEW AND NOVEL. The rodeo-flavored lariat dance that agile Janet Evans is doing on the Shoreham Terrace. She ropes all eyes and much applause . . . The new bandstand arrangement that's been worked out for Don Baker's Musicomics in the Neptune Room. It gives 'em that Hollywood angle and, at the same time, provides a better view for the overflow crowds they're attracting . . . The new broadcasts by Ciro's Villagers from the Famous Village. Radio listeners have evinced approval, and with enthusiasm . . . Robin Hood's new team of Leslie Hare, angelic girl singer, and Johnny Hartsfield, the demon boy pianist.

PIANO AND CANDID CAMERA are the vocation and avocation of Sandy Ross, of Hi Hat's "our M's. He's an ace pianist and he's rapidly becoming an ace camera man after a few months of practice.

LUNCHEONS "AWAY FROM IT ALL." The Harrington Tavern specializes in light but savory and satisfying luncheons. Just what you want before resuming a session of shopping or for a really relaxing interval before you return to the office and concentrate on Government defense work . . . At Olmsted's Grill you'll always find many tables surrounded by substantial businessmen, the kind that know good food, demand nothing less than the best—and plenty of it . . . Luncheons at the Parrot are idyllic—right out in the garden and in the best tradition of Dixie cuisine.

The "grapevine twist" as practiced at Kavakos' Grill on Sunday afternoons is the most complicated country dance ever. But though we've been waiting for months for the Kavakos patrons to get tangled in it, they always perform with the experiness of a ballet troupe.

GIVE LIVER BILE FLOW A BOOST—

And You Too After 40 May Enjoy Life More—Sleep Sounder—Awake Refreshed—Ready for Work.

Normally your liver should discharge about a quart of digestion-aiding bile juices every 24 hours. A scanty flow—a slowing up may mean Sick Headache, Biliousness, Poor Digestion with that "half sick" depressed feeling.

Stir yourself! Do this for 30 days: take half a teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous blend of six salts) in three-quarters of a glass of hot or cold water every morning, half an hour before breakfast. Don't miss a morning. This simple sensible prescription that has worked wonders for thousands should do the same for you. Try it for 30 days and you too may shake off that "run down" feeling and get a real "lift." But don't start unless you agree to keep it up for 30 days. If then you do not feel 100% better, get your money back.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Joe Louis also is a pretty good fighter. Billy Conn provided most of the sensations the other night at the Polo Grounds and at the finish he had the respect of everybody who likes to evaluate courage, cleverness and the willingness to trade punches, but somehow the fact remains that Louis won the fight.

POVICH

Somehow, Louis has the unhappy knack of making heroes out of the guys he licks to the great detriment of his own place in the public eye. The champion always seems to miss top billing after each successive knock-out victory. He stopped Tony Galento, but the chief topic after that fight was Galento's punch that put Louis on the floor. He knocked out Abe Simon but the most discussed after-the-fight angle was Simon's feat of lasting 13 rounds. Louis beat Musto in nine rounds, and that was labeled a dull performance. He knocked out Buddy Baer in six, but Louis emerged chiefly as the guy who had been dumped through the ropes in the first round.

And now Louis, still champion because he was able to batter Conn into defeat with a murderous thunder of punches in the thirteenth round, discovers that the hero of that fight was not himself, but the loser, Billy Conn. He has a right to ask what a guy has to do to achieve some credit.

It's understandable, though, why Conn emerged as something of a hero from the other night's encounter. He was giving away 25 pounds to the man who was labeled as the best heavyweight champion since Dempsey, and he was giving Louis a sound beating until he made the mistake of trying to slug it out with the champion in that thirteenth. Conn was putting on a show and exhibiting himself as a fancier boxer, faster puncher and more willing mixer than Louis. He had the sympathies of every little man who ever found himself apparently overmatched and up against it. He was their symbol of their day of reckoning.

But Joe Louis was probably fighting his greatest fight the other night. For the first time he was finding himself outboxed and being beaten to the punch. On the night when his million-dollar title appeared to be slipping from his grasp he caught up with the young wraith who was slinging him badly and knocked him out. Louis was fighting the best man he had met since becoming champion and he was able finally, to muster a knockout punch. It was important that he should. Only two rounds remained before Louis would be stripped of his title on points. He had to be a pretty good champion to pull that one out.

For some reason, the doubt of Louis' greatness has been persistent. When he was fighting his way up out of obscurity, knocking over second-raters in rapid succession, credit was withheld. Wait until he meets some of the better fighters, was the admonition. Louis met the better fighters. He knocked out Max Baer in four rounds, he dispatched another former champion, Primo Carnera in six, and he made short work of Jack Sharkey. He won Jimmy Braddock's title, and apparently he was a pretty good champion.

But the refrain in those days was, Can Louis take it? Until he met Max Schmeling, he had never been on the floor. Schmeling put him down and kept him down, and Louis' ability to take it was under question. Well, Jimmy Braddock had him down and he knocked Braddock out. Tony Galento put him down and he climbed off the floor to knock Galento out in the next round. Buddy Baer knocked him through the ropes and he struggled back to butcher Baer.

In the Polo Grounds the other night, Conn staggered Louis a couple of times with crushing right hands on the chin. A mere 175-pounder was hurting Louis. He was both hurt and bewildered, because Conn wouldn't hold still for him. But there is certainly no evidence that Louis can't take it, because at the finish it was Louis standing placidly in a neutral corner while the referee was tolling the fateful decimal over a prostrate Conn who had tried to slug it out with the champion.

The upshot will be, of course, that all of Louis' other immediate engagements will be canceled to clear the way for a return bout with Conn. That one will mark the return of the million-dollar gate. Lou Nova is the unhappy loser. He was supposed to get a shot at Louis' title in August, but that would be poor business what with Louis and Conn dead certain to produce a million-dollar gate.

When they go back in there again in September, this department will pick Louis to beat Conn all over again. He has a knack of catching up with those fellows who made him look bad.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 19.—Conn put up a great fight, and when he went back to his corner at the end of the twelfth round, with his hand in the air and his doughty choir-boy face upturned to the cheering stands, he was in truth the heavyweight champion of the world.

CONSIDINE

But even though the fight changed in the thirteenth with startling suddenness, and even though a return fight would draw a lot of money, and even though there are a lot of people around who would like to get another gander at this tremendous demonstration of slugger-vs.-dancing master, the indisputable fact remains that the next Louis opponent should be Lou Nova.

With all due respect to Conn, Nova should have been in there against Louis last Wednesday night. Nova is heavyweight challenger No. 1 and has been for a year. He has done everything asked of him and done it well. His challenge has been deferred long enough.

I believe that if Nova had had Louis in the same condition that Conn had him in, in the twelfth round, he would have knocked Joe out. For that reason I think that a Louis-Nova fight will be an easy money betting proposition, and that it will do close to a million dollars. For that would be the fight the people would patronize to see Louis come to the end of his long and honorable championship career.

Not that there would be any great guarantee that Joe would lose to Lou. The champion proved once again Wednesday night that he is a stick of dynamite no matter what condition he is in. He'll possess the kick of a mule in each fist until he is 90. But Nova would have been a wiser fighter against Louis than Conn was, in the breathless closing minutes of that classic.

Jacobs Beach buzzed with gossip of the fight today, while out of Mike Jacobs' office windows poured the sound of the record of the fine fight-broadcast turned in by Don Dunphy and Bill Corum. It was the consensus of the beachcombers that Conn was ahead on rounds, 7 to 5, that he owes his defeat to a rash of overconfidence that impelled him to trade punches with a blindly staggering champion whom he only had to stab and poke in order to defeat.

Dumb Dan Morgan, the veteran manager who picked Conn to win, pointed out above the roar of the managers on the beach that it wasn't Billy's "Irish" that caused his downfall. "He had the title in his paw and didn't know what to do about it," Morgan said. "It went to his head and when he came out in the thirteenth he forgot that he had been winning the fight on boxing skill, not power. He threw a sucker left at Louis—the kind of long left which Louis has always been able to counter quickly with his straight right. Nope, it wasn't his 'Irish.' It was just that the fellow thought he had the thing won and got too cocky."

Equally shrill around the beach was Manny Seaman, the only white man among Louis' handlers during the fight. Manny was taking part of the credit for Louis' victory because when Conn went down in the thirteenth, and started to get up at the count of five, Seaman got behind him, outside the ropes, and bellowed "stay down, stay down."

Jersey Jones, Louis' publicist, also got in a word and the beach willingly admitted that he had had something to do with the win. When Jersey publicized Louis' training camp this time it was the thirteenth time he had done this for the Bomber. Also, on the thirteenth of June he went on the air and predicted that Louis, whose birthday is May 13, would win. Louis trained 13 days for the Conn fight and, you remember, won in the thirteenth.

My own emotions in retrospect are that Louis showed the effects of too many fights by giving out of steam in the late rounds, and that he needs a good rest before Nova. He looked slow at times, but he was slow only because Conn was so brilliantly speedy. He seemed to me to be softening up, to be genuinely hurt by Conn's flashy but not very heavy punches. And, let me say again what I have been saying for several years, that he is the finest sportsman whose activities I have ever had the pleasure of covering. He proved it by saying after the fight "Billy had me whopped," and he proved it in the tenth round of the fight when he stepped back and wouldn't hit Conn when Billy slipped on some water in his corner and started to fall defenselessly. Joe was in desperate need of getting in a good punch about that time, for he was losing his precious title. But he wouldn't take advantage of Conn, and we wondered, watching this fine gesture on the part of a man who wouldn't even know the meaning of words like moral code, just how many of his fancy predecessors would have given a dangerous challenger that much of a break.

Anyway—let's have Nova. He's got it coming to him.

Dutch Gives Three Hits, Mates Slug

Early, Case Spark 17-Blow Attack With Four Apiece; Lewis Gets Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Unrecognizable as the team that had retreated into the league cellar, the Nats looked like a composite of all the great ball clubs of history yesterday as they slapped down the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 0.

Dutch Leonard pitched three-hit ball. The Nats rushed runs across the plate in seven different innings. They supported Leonard with a half-dozen fancy bits in the field. George Case, who hasn't been able to buy or get the loan of a hit during his long batting slump, banged out four in a row yesterday. Buddy Lewis hit a home run.

The Nats licked Dennis Galehouse, the gent who, when last seen in Griffith Stadium a month ago, was holding the Nats to one hit for nine innings. They knocked Galehouse loose from three runs in the first inning and forced his retirement by the end of the fifth, by which time they had an 8-to-0 lead.

They unloaded 17 hits against the St. Louis pitching and went scoreless only in the second and eighth innings. With Leonard pitching the way he was, they raced through the ball game in an our and 46 minutes.

Dutch at His Peak

Leonard was at his peak yesterday. He was making his knuckle ball behave masterfully. He didn't walk a batter until the eighth, and he walked only one. Fact is that the Browns didn't get a man to second base, and in seven of the nine innings, he was required to face only three batters.

Until Pinch Hitter Chet Laabs pounded a single to center in the ninth inning, only George McQuinn had been able to get a hit off Leonard. McQuinn singled in the first inning and again in the fourth, and that was all until Laab's hit. The big knuckle baller was breezing, and for Manager Bucky Harris it was tantamount to the afternoon off.

Close inspection of the play reveals that the Nats scored all but one of their dozen runs after two were out in the various innings. They weren't getting up a gallop until two were down.

The runs they scored to take a 3-0 lead in the first inning were no disgrace to Galehouse, however. They were all luck-anointed, spawning from four cheap hits

Mike Jacobs Besieged With Callers

Heavyweight Division Seethes With Activity; Louis' Handlers Want Him to Take a Rest

By Bob Considine.

New York, June 19.—While Challenger Billy Conn took it on the lam, apparently to be married to Mary Louise Smith, and Joe Louis snored peacefully in a swank Harlem hotel until late this hot afternoon, the heavyweight division seethed with activity in the wake of last night's sensational bout.

The managers of Lou Nova, Abe Simon, Conn and other challengers were banging on Promoter Mike Jacobs' office door bright and early, demanding his ear. Julian Black, comanager of Louis, insisted that the champion is jaded with fighting and will rest until September. Jacobs, never one to miss a bet, stalled off all the managers, though he indicated that Nova would get the bid "if Carlen (Nova's manager) don't get no fancy ideas about the percentage he should get."

This would mean the sidetracking of the scheduled July fight between Louis and Abe Simon, who lasted until the thirteenth round of his first fight with Louis, and it would also eradicate a return bout with Conn, who, in the consensus of responsible fight experts, was heavyweight champion of the world last night at the end of 12 rounds.

He'll Just Lase Around

It was also the consensus of the experts that Louis badly needs the rest on which Black insists he will embark. The champion has been in constant training since the beginning of last December, and in the intervening periods he has fought and knocked out Al McCoy, Red Burman, Gus Dorazio, Abe Simon, Tony Musto, Buddy Baer and Conn. A part of his proposed relaxing period will be his participation in several colored golf tournaments and a few odd jobs around his 480-acre Michigan farm.

Conn left his hotel without acquainting his manager, Johnny Ray, of his itinerary. His camp was ignorant of his exact plans and exact whereabouts, but Ray confirmed that Conn secured a marriage license to wed his attractive blond financee several days ago in Brookville, Pa., and that the license was forwarded to the home of a friend in Brockway, Pa. Conn called Ray at noon, after picking up Miss Smith at Ocean City, N. J. and said they would drive on to Ardmore, Pa.

Louis Praises Billy

That greater love hath no man than Conn was amply proved by the fact that he left town without first collecting the approximate $80,000 he earned last night for 38 minutes and 58 seconds of work. The fight, biggest since Louis' sec-

Conn, Blonde Sweetheart Off To Say 'I Do'

By the Associated Press

St. Marys, Pa., June 19.—Telling their friends they would be married tomorrow morning in Pittsburgh, boxer Billy Conn and his pretty blond sweetheart, Mary Louise Smith, left by automobile late today after a quiet visit with friends.

"All of our troubles have been settled and daddy has given his full consent and blessing," beamed Miss Smith, daughter of James L. Smith, Pittsburgh sportsman and former major league baseball player.

"And tomorrow I'm going to marry the sweetest girl in the world," interrupted Billy, a smile all over his face.

Editor Reports Conversation.

H. T. (Jack) O'Brien, editor of the St. Marys Press, reported the conversation as given to friends.

Conn came direct from his fight with Joe Louis in New York to this picturesque northwestern Pennsylvania district, spending his time at Brandy Camp, 12 miles south of here.

The reported parental blessing of Miss Smith's father was not in accordance with word from her mother, who said in her Ocean City, N. J., home the "planned marriage of our daughter to Mr. Conn has definitely been called off."

Hudson to Pitch Against Indians In Series Opener

Cleveland's league-leading Indians move into Griffith Stadium this afternoon for the start of a three-game series with the Nats.

Sid Hudson will greet the Indians from the pitching mound. His opponent will be left-handed Al Smith, who defeated the Nats on their last visit to Cleveland.

Griffith Stadium officials announced that Manager Roger Peckinpaugh will start Bob Feller on the mound in the game between the two teams on Sunday.

Keller Slugs, Yanks Beat White Sox, 7-2

Outfielder Homers With Bases Loaded for Third in as Many Days and 12th of Year

By the Associated Press

New York, June 19.—The New York Yankees found their way back to the victory trail today with a 7-to-2 assault on the Chicago White Sox, who had whipped them by one run in the first two games of the series.

Charley Keller hit a home run with the bases loaded in the fourth inning for the big spark in the Yankee onslaught. It was his third in three days and twelfth of the season. Tom Henrich opened the inning with a triple to center and scored on a single by Buddy Rosar before Lefty Ed Smith, of the Sox, loaded the sacks for Keller.

Joe DiMaggio extended his hitting streak to 32 consecutive games with a perfect day at the plate—his fourteenth home run of the year, two singles and a walk.

Marvin Breuer, giving his best pitching performance in a year, held the Sox to five hits. One run was a homer by young George Dickey, brother of the Yankee catcher, and the other came in the fourth when two walks and an error loaded the bases with none out.

Bulla, Byrd Take $7,000 Tourney Lead

By International News Service

Toledo, Ohio, June 19.—Setting a blistering pace that included seven birdies and a best ball of 64, Sammy Byrd and Johnny Bulla tonight swept into a first-day lead in the seventh annual Inverness $7,000 Round-Robin Invitational Golf Tournament with a plus three.

Pressing the Byrd-Bulla team, newcomers to the tourney, were Veterans Lawson Little and Horton Smith, who finished with plus two in their match with Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson.

Byrd and Bulla went like a house afire in their match with Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard, the 1935 and 1939 winners who finished three down despite a brilliant 65 best ball. Other standings at the end of the first round were:

Ralph Guldahl and Ernie Harrison, plus one.

Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner, minus one.

Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson, minus two.

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, minus three.

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan and Lloyd Mangrum and Harold McSpaden, all even.

The sensation of the opening day was Bulla, who banged home six birdies in one of the greatest exhibitions ever witnessed at Inverness. His putting was marvelous and the gallery of some 6,000 soon caught word of Bulla's exhibition and rushed to follow him to the finish.

Murphy Quits G. U. Athletic Post

Graduate Manager Of Athletics to Leave on July 1

By Jack Munhall

H. Gabriel Murphy, who 11 years ago to the month took a huge leap from the classroom to the position of Georgetown graduate manager of athletics, has submitted his resignation, effective July 1, to "devote full time to my general insurance and real estate business."

The dapper 36-year-old Murphy revealed his resignation to Father John J. Kehoe, faculty director of athletics, in a letter dated June 16. Father Kehoe made the announcement yesterday and an accompanying letter expressed his own and the regret of the executive board of athletics.

Murphy's resignation came as a surprise to fellow workers at the Hilltop, though it has been no secret that during the last few years he has met increasingly strong opposition from certain powerful alumni groups, mainly in New York, Chicago and Detroit.

Father Kehoe declared last night that the school had no definite one in mind as Murphy's successor, but it was learned that at least ten men—all alumni—are under consideration.

H. GABRIEL MURPHY

Of these ten, two have been most prominently mentioned in connection with the position. They are Harry (Babe) Connaughton, '27, a star tackle and Georgetown's first football all-America, and Pete Haley, '25, also a former grid player, whose restaurant near the school is now a favorite hangout of students and alumni.

'Babe' Connaughton, Schwegel Are Held Likely Successors

Others who seem likely to merit serious consideration are Rome Schwagel, former Georgetown director of sports publicity, and Cliff McCormick, both of New York, and Tom Golson, a Chicago restaurant man.

According to gossip last night Connaughton, who is expected to have the backing of "Spike" Briggs and the Detroit alumni, and Schwagel, who is well liked by the numerous New York group, are the leading candidates. There is in the case of each, however, one serious obstacle to his accepting the position, if offered it. That is the fact that both have good positions. Connaughton is an assistant district attorney in Chicago, and Schwagel is with the oversea di-

Wagner Beats Skinker in Playoff for Mid-Atlantic Medal

Baltimorean Shoots 75 At Suburban

Skinker Within One Stroke on 16th Gets 77; Md. Amateur Play Opens Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Pikesville, Md., June 19.—Although the suburban course was reserved for practice rounds for the Maryland State Amateur championship today, Earle Skinker and Herbert A. Wagner jr., took time out to play off for the medal of the recent Middle Atlantic championship, and Wagner was the winner.

Wagner, of the Green Spring Valley Club, near Baltimore, and Skinker, of Columbia Country Club, tied with 73s last week in the M. A. qualifying round at Hot Springs, Va., and they could not get together for a playoff until today.

Wagner was five over par with a 38-37—75, but it was good enough, as Skinker was away off his form of the past few weeks and finished with 40-37—77. Skinker, trailing since the fourth hole despite picking up two shots on the first, pulled within one stroke of Wagner on the sixteenth and hit a shot 6 feet from the pin on the short seventeenth, but Wagner replied with one a foot away and dropped the putt for a deuce.

Three D. C. Postentries

Postentries, including three Washingtonians, Ralph Bogart, the District champion; Maury Fitzgerald and M. W. Whittlesey, brought the field to 135 for the twenty-first annual Maryland Amateur championship, which begins tomorrow with an 18-hole qualifying round. Match play is booked for Saturday and Sunday. The field is one of the largest in the history of the tournament.

M. Parker Nolan, Congressional's defending champion, and Volney G. Burnett, who won at Manor in 1937, carry the hopes of the Washington delegation, along with Bogart.

Other Washingtonians with championship flight potentialities include Ray Swearingen, who had a 72 in practice today, Eddie Ault, Skinker, Gene Pittman and Buster Mrstik.

Brownell Waits

Baltimore, which supplied over 100 players for the tournament, looks to Spencer Overton, a former champion and last year's runner-up and Ernie Caldwell, a former champion.

Bobby Brownell, the newly crowned Middle Atlantic amateur champion, passed up the State Amateur for the National Intercollegiate Championship which starts on Monday.

Maryland Women's Entries Close Today

Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, chairman of the committee for the Maryland State Women's Golf championship next week at Chevy Chase, will close the entries today. Mrs. Payne can be reached at the Kennedy-Warren Aapartments.

The tournament starts Tuesday with a qualifying round and continues through Saturday. The course will be open Monday for practice. Players may bring outside carries.

Abrams Wins Over Spangler At Richmond

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., June 19.—Jimmy Webb, of St. Louis knocked out Johnny Romero, of Los Angeles in the third round of their scheduled 10 round co-feature of the sixth annual Richmond Police Boxing Show at the City Stadium tonight before a crowd of about 10,000.

Webb weighed 174, Romero 173½.

In the other co-feature, Georgie Abrams, of the United States Navy, decisioned Joe Spangler, of Richmond in 10 rpunds. Abrams weighed 158½ and Spangler 153½.

Webb and Abrams are youthful leading contenders for the championship in their respective divisions. Webb recently scored a nine-round knockout over Tommy Tucker in Madison Square Garden and as a result is expecting to meet Gus Lesnevich for the light-heavyweight championship in the fall.

Two former champions were among the spectators. They were Gene Tunney, retired undefeated world heavyweight king, now a lieutenant commander in the United States Navy, and Ken Overlin, who recently lost his middleweight crown to Billy Soose.

Pennington Loft Wins Third Time

The second 500-mile airline race of the current old bird series, sponsored by the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club, was flown from Nappanee, Ind., and won by an entry from the loft of William R. Pennington, whose birds now have won the last three races. An entry from the loft of Congressman Pehr Holmes, of Massachusetts, and Harry C. Burke, a partnership, came in second, 14 minutes behind the winner.

Liberation was made at 5:45 a. m., and due to severe electrical storms encountered by the birds en route home, they were forced to remain out the first night. The winner was timed at 6:48 a. m. the second morning, and averaged 877.80 yards per minute for the entire 500-mile journey, after deducting 8 hours and 6 minutes for darkness.

Coleman Clutch Subjugates Green Hornet

Still carrying on as the giant-killer, roly-poly Abe Coleman laid the mountainous Green Hornet low last night in the main event of the rassle show at Turner's Arena. Abie turned the trick neatly with his "Coleman clutch" in a scant 16 minutes.

The "Coleman clutch" reduced the porcine Hornet to a quivering mass of dejected humanity which kept bleating, "It ain't so!" as he was counted out by Referee Casey Berger.

True to the usual script, Hornet opened as the villain and in short order Coleman was yowling in anguish as he absorbed numerous punches to his paunch. The ref interfered and while Hornet was protesting his innocence the irate Abie made a determined effort to remove the Stinger's mask. With success just seconds away, he was officially reprimanded, but not at all abashed, the hirsute Coleman located an authoritative arm lock which seemed to make the hooded terror unhappy. This advantage was short-lived, however, and the Hornet came back with a series of body slams which had Honest Abe in trouble. But right must prevail and Abe unlimbered a dropkick of Redskin caliber and followed it with the lethal full Nelson which closed the match.

In the semifinal a Martian-looking monstrosity called Wadislaw Talun, allegedly a Polish protege of Stanislaus Zybysko, made short work of something called Andy Meixner in three minutes.

Pineapple-headed Angelo Leone and Angie Savoldi drew in 30 minutes, Milo Steinborn bested Louis Bacigalupi and Maurice La Chappelle defeated Ace Freeman.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Special Weekend Weather Forecast

Gentle variable winds, fair weather Friday; outlook for Saturday, fair with increasing southerly winds becoming moderate to fresh over northern Chesapeake Bay, and New Jersey and Delaware coast.

There has been considerable discussion among fisherman as to how long Maryland's trout streams may be fished this year.

We've checked the matter and have been told that trout anglers have 15 more days of trout fishing this year than either last year or next year. The trout season in Maryland will close July 15 of this year.

The running-in of the trout season with the bass season will give the small-mouth bass angler, while fishing the larger Maryland streams a good chance to catch and keep one of those big rainbows or brown trout that work their way down out of the mountain streams and grow to a big and fat size in the bigger waters.

JACK BELL

It is at or near the mouths of such streams as Fishing, Little Hunting and Big Hunting Creek in the Monacacy where these big fish are known to lurk.

We have heard by way of the grapevine of a number of big 4-6 and 8-pounders caught which had to be returned as being out of season. Maryland anglers now have a chance to catch and enter these big trout in many of the nations big fish contests.

Three blue fin tuna, the season's first catch of blue fins, were caught near Ocean City, Md. Seldom if ever before have tuna been caught in waters north of Cape Hatteras this early in the year. But even more remarkable was the catch of two tuna on one line at the same time. One was hooked in the usual way and the line half-hitched the other tuna in the gills. All three tuna caught weighed between 30 and 40 pounds each. They were caught in the morning on a course southeast by south of Ocean City, about 80 miles out into the gulf stream.

Channel bass are still running in the surf near Ocean City, Md., off Popes Island.

Capt. George Tapping, of Messick, Va., reports good fishing for trout (weakfish), hardheads, bonito, and a few cabios. This is the first real good report from him, which leads us to believe good fishing is to be found down there. The price of boat charter is $10.00 a day for five men and $1.00 each for all over five. Boat captains there mean a day; they will stay out until you catch fish.

G. E. Bowen, of Solomons Island, tells us that due to stormy weather hardhead fishing has fallen off. However, the weather is improving and he looks for improvement by the weekend.

Rockfishing is holding its own around Point Patience and Rock Point in fact has improved somewhat. Several parties trolling with small feather lures caught stripers weighing from 10 to 15 pounds.

Fresh run Atlantic salmon have finally arrived in Washington County streams, a number of 12 to 16 pound busters having been taken to date from Denny's, Narragusgus and Pleasant River. "Sarg" G. M. Haynes, well known local trout and salmon angler, known better locally for his fly tying and rod building, is up there somewhere on the Dennys River. He's been fishing for trout and land-locked salmon in Washington County since May 29. With the appearance of sea run salmon in the Dennys we can picture him fighting the heavy water and, we hope, salmon, there if the black flies and mosquitoes have left anything of him.

Harold Vermuele and I shall be well on our way up to New Hampshire's White Mountains, above Berlin, as you read this column. We shall spend several days fishing for native trout in the swift mountain streams. After that we shall fish Rapid River, which drians out of Lower Richardson Lake into Umbagog Lake in Maine for some of those tackle-busting land-locked salmon.

Expert Lauds Huskie Crew As One of Best

By the Associated Press

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 19.—Rusty Callow, former Washington and present Pennsylvania rowing coach, today lauded Al Ulbrickson's Huskies "one of the finest crews I have ever seen." Callow made the observation after watching the Huskies hold their morning workout for next Wednesday's intercollegiate regatta.

"This is a better Washington crew than the one which eked out a close win over Cornell last year," Callow continued.

Princeton's promising varsity rowed 9 miles this morning. Coach Fred Spuhn planned to send the Tigers over the course at a low beat this afternoon.

California's Golden Bears worked out before a group of admirers from the West Coast. Coach Ky Ebright said Marshall Robinson, Jayvee No. 3, is rapidly recovering from an attack of measles and will be back in the shell Saturday. Fear of a general epidemic has waned.

Cornell has a long pull this morning. It appears the lone hope of an Eastern victory is centered in the big red shell.

Lansburgh, Businessmen Win at Softball

Lansburgh and Community Businessmen of Mount Rainier triumphed in National Night League play at Washington Softball Stadium last night. Lansburgh downed Elite Laundry, 5-3, while Community Businessmen scored over Census Bureau, 7-2.

Johnny Lannon's four-hit hurling dominated the proceedings for Lansburgh's as the department store ten scored three times in the second and twice in the sixth to win. Silver's home run was the big blow.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, Carr Bros. and Boswell will tackle Garvin's Grill in the Capital City League and at 9:15 Fat Boy, with Harold Steffes on the mound, will take on Tru-Fit Clothing, one of Baltimore's fastest teams, in the second half of the twin-bill.

The Arlington Dodgers, trailing until the seventh round by a score of 2-0, turned on a last-minute spurt and rang up a 6-2 victory over the Gibson Greys last night at Ballston.

Hymie Inscoe pitched a five-hit game for the Dodgers and collected two singles that netted three runs. McNabb, who had allowed two hits until the fatal seventh, was driven out of the box by the Dodgers.

Top-Flight Speed, Muscle Men Whoop It Up Today in Palo Alto

20th N. C. A. A. Track, Field Meet Draws 200 of Nation's Best for 2-Day Competition

By the Associated Press

Palo Alto, Calif., June 19.—College track and field holds its grand finale of the year tomorrow and Saturday.

It's the running of the twentieth annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Championships. Some 200 of the country's top-flight speed and muscle men will whoop it up in Stanford Stadium.

Past performances this season indicate that four official world records and a greater number of N. C. A. A. marks will be in danger.

On the team side, University of Southern California's Trojans will be strong favorites to win their seventh successive N. C. A. A. championship and the tenth since the meet was established in 1921.

Four Records Threatened

World records seemingly in a shaky position are the 440-yard dash, the high jump, discus and shotput. The event calling for springy legs, in fact, has been buffeted around all season. Les Steers, of the University of Oregon, set a new unofficial world ceiling at 6ft 11 inches last Tuesday and previously had bettered the accepted record twice.

On the track, Grover Klemmer, of the University of California, recently equaled the recognized world 440-yard dash record with a time of 46.4 seconds. He'll have bristling opposition in such rivals as Hubert Kerns and Cliff Bourland, both of Southern California; Gene Littler, of Nebraska, and Bill Edya, of Oklahoma University.

Archie Harris, of Indiana, and Al Blozis, of Georgetown, kingpins in the discus and shotput, respectively, have the physical equipment necessary to set records in their specialties. Harris has sent the platter on a ride of 174 feet, which is 2½ inches short of the world mark made by the German star, Willie Schroeder. Blond Blozis, the football giant, has heaved the iron ball 56 feet 4½ inches, which is 3½ inches short of Jack Torrance's world record.

Cardinals Beat Phillies in 11th to Hold Three-Game Lead

Crespi's Hit Scores Hopp For Victory

St. Louis Wins, 7-6; Leaders Tie Score In Ninth Inning; Phils Score First

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 19.—The Cardinals were on the brink of defeat today but Frank Crespi's eleventh-inning single brought victory, 7 to 6, over the last-place Philadelphia Phillies. The bases were loaded when his blow to center set Johnny Hopp across the plate. Hopp had walked to start the inning. Don Padgett singled him to third and heavy hitter Enos Slaughter was passed intentionally.

By winning, St. Louis maintained its three-game lead over second-place Brooklyn.

Phils Score Early

The Phillies started scoring in the first. Dan Litwhiler doubled and came home on Merrill May's single. May scampered on to third when Slaughter missed connections with the ball in right field and scored on Harry Gumbert's wild pitch.

These two runs were duplicated by the Cards in their half of the first. Stan Benjamin's third-inning homer put the Phils into a lead they held until the sixth when a three-run Card rally tied the score.

Wonder What Mary's Little Lamb Will Have to Say?

By the Associated Press

Charlotte, N. C., June 19.—A stray dog wandered into a baseball box score here.

Bob Ortiz, right fielder of the Charlotte Piedmont League team, clouted the ball to deep right field and tore out for first.

As he neared the bag, a spotted terrier, long of ear and tail, dashed from the stands. He caught Ortiz at first and stuck with him all the way to third, where Ortiz beat him and the ball by a slide Then the terrier grabbed Ortiz's cap and made merry around the infield.

In the Charlotte lineup the news carried the footnote:

"*Stray dog."

In the summary:

"*Ran with Ortiz in the ninth."

Metropolitan Ten Beats Hamilton

The Hamilton Bank's five-run rally in the seventh inning fell short as the Metropolitan ten won, 7 to 5, in a Bankers' League game yesterday on the Lincoln Memorial field. Zaerner, Metropolitan catcher, had three hits, including a double, in three times at bat.

Twilight Hours Bring Out Broodmares at Rockridge

Imported Gino and Time Maker Both Boast Fine Racing Records and Many Noted Foals

(This is the eighth in a series of articles by Miss Hagner concerning breeding farms in this area. The next, on Westmoreland Davis' Morven Park Farm, at Leesburg, Va., will appear tomorrow.—Editor.)

By Anne Hagner

Two of the finest stallions in Virginia live in adjoining barns at David N. Rust, jr.'s Rockridge Farm, near Leesburg—Imported Gino, rated at the top of all Eastern stallions, and Time Maker, sire of Time Supply and many other stake winners.

Owner Rust, whose home is separated from the stud barns by only 100 yards, is apt to beam with pride on his great combination, but friends cannot fathom which is his favorite.

"Treat all my children just alike," he said yesterday as he patted Gino's gray nose. "But isn't this a handsome horse? He stands 16.2 hands and weighs 1,300 pounds."

Just as the onlooker decides that here is the master of Rockridge's pet, Rust leads the way to Time Maker's stall, saying, "Now I'll show you a real horse. Look at that tremendous bone; he's a little big horse."

Small in Stature

Actually, Time Maker is small in stature, like most sons of The Porter, but has no end of substance. Standing only 14.2½ hands, he is barely half an inch out of the pony ranks, yet he weighs 1,200 pounds.

Both horses possess excellent racing records. Gino, now eleven, appeared on English track and as a 2-year-old won the Imperial Produce Stakes, a feature of British racing. His dam, Teresina, is considered one of the truly great mares of all time; a superb stayer, she won the Goodwood Cup at 2 miles and 5 furlongs; the Jockey Club Stakes, at 1¼ miles; the Royal Plate, carrying 131 pounds, and a long list of other classics.

Time Maker, foaled in 1925, did not race until his 3-year-old season, when he won his first four starts. At the end of the year he had an accident and was retired to stud. His dam, Dream of Allah, was by the unbeaten Colin.

Time Supply Famed

Most famous of all his fleet sons is Time Supply, the only foal of 1931, who won $145,045 and broke five track records. Other stake winners are Heather Time and Time Alone. From 1934 to 1938, Time Maker's children earned more than $258,000.

Gino, bought at the sale of the Willis Sharpe Kilmer stock last fall for $19,500, reputedly cost in the neighborhood of $70,000 when he was imported to this country from the Aga Khan's Stables in England.

Naturally, no home-owned sons of the big gray are yet romping around Rockridge's 435 acres, but Time Maker is more than amply represented. In one rich meadow are 17 Rust-owned mares, all with sucklings sired by "the little big horse" at their sides. Their owner figures that the matrons are the best he has had in the 30 years he has owned the farm; some are daughters of Sun Briar, bought from the Kilmer auction, and others have in their pedigrees the country's best blood lines.

17 Have Foaled

Currently, 17 mares have foaled and there have been no mishaps; fortunately for their values, 11 are colts and six are fillies, which is a remarkably high average.

Visiting mares from William duPont's famed string occupy a prominent place these days, principally because of the presence of Fair Star, winner of more than $60,000 and consistent producer of stake winners. Now blind, she has at her side a little bay daughter of Gino, bred at Kilmer's, that Rust proclaims "the nicest filly I ever saw."

DuPont mares are of great esteem among breeders because each matron averages two excellent race horses.

Gino and Time Maker have as a stablemate a visiting stallion, Charley O., owned by James H. Wilson. A son of Hourless, he is Wilson's only horse, and his owner is given to making frequent long-distance phone calls from his Chicago home to inquire about his pet.

Five yearlings will represent Rockridge at the Saratoga sales this summer—three are by Time Maker, one is by the imported horse, Boswell, and the last is by Trace Call.

Batting Spree Tops Cubs, 9-4, For Dodgers

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 19.—The Brooklyn Dodgers blew themselves to a 15-hit, 9-to-4 triumph over the Chicago Cubs today for Kirby Higbe's eighth victory of the season.

Peewee Reese, who has been benched a couple of times this year for weak hitting, led the Dodgers' attack with four hits in six trips and his teammates followed suit.

Reese opened Brooklyn's scoring in the third inning with a double followed by Pete Reiser's triple and Dolph Camilli's single. The Brooklyns added two more runs in the fifth, two in the seventh and a final, furious three-run flurry in the ninth.

Claude Passeau, the Chicago ace, was the losing pitcher but Vance Page had to be called in to finish.

Higbe kept nine hits scattered and his biggest trouble came from Babe Dahlgren, the former Yankee whom the Cubs acquired from the Boston Braves. Dahlgren hit two home runs in the late innings after the game was decided.

Indians Rout Athletics, 12-1; Bagby Victor

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 19.—Cleveland's league-leading Indians blasted three Philadelphia pitchers for 19 hits, including three home runs, to swamp the Athletics, 12 to 1, today for a clean sweep of their three-game series.

Outfielder Jeff Heath pounded out a home run, two doubles and a single to pace a Cleveland attack that saw every Indian except Rollie Hemsley get at least one safety. Heath's home run came in the fifth inning with Gee Walker on base, while Ken Keltner homered with none on in the sixth and Lou Boudreau with Ray Mack and Jim Bagby aboard in the seventh.

Bagby, meanwhile, scattered six hits among the Athletics, whose lone run came in the sixth when Dee Miles doubled, advanced to third on Bob Johnson's infield out and scored on Frankie Hayes' single.

Beckman Injured

Bill Beckman, the A's starting pitcher, suffered a torn muscle and sprained ankle that forced him from the game in the fourth when he caught his foot in the pitching mound as he went after Bagby's single.

Boudreau's three bagger, followed by Keltner's outfield fly, started the Indian scoring in the first inning. Heath opened the fourth with a double and scored on Bruce Campbell's two-base hit. Hal Trosky flied out, Campbell advancing to third and scoring on Mack's single. Beckman trapped Mack off first, but Johnson threw wild and Mack reached second safely. Bagby's single scored Mack after Hemsley was retired on an infield out.

Hadley Pounded

Beckman's successor, "Bump" Hadley, was ousted in the fifth when Campbell and Trosky followed Heath's home run with singles and Mack walked to fill the bases before Luman Harris stopped the uprising.

In the seventh, Trosky and Mack singled with one out, Hemsley flied out and Bagby singled to score Trosky before Boudreau produced his homer. Singles by Heath and Campbell and Trosky's outfield fly sent Heath over home plate with the final run in the eighth.

Yanks to Unveil Monument To Gehrig July 4 at Stadium

By the Associated Press

New York, June 19.—A granite monument honoring Lou Gehrig will be unveiled in Yankee Stadium July 4, on what would have been his thirty-seventh birthday, the New York Yankees announced today.

The memorial to the great first baseman who played in 2,130 consecutive American League games over a period of 14 years and set numerous batting records will be a tribute from his teammates and will be unveiled by Manager Joe McCarthy and Catcher Bill Dickey, his roommate and closest friend.

The ceremony will take place before the first game of a double header with the Washington Senators and will come on the second anniversary of the "day" given Gehrig by 61,000 New York fans when the big fellow, with tears trickling down his cheeks, told the hushed crowd, "I've been reading about my tough breaks for the last two weeks, but today I consider myself the luckiest man on earth."

Gehrig died June 2 of a spinal disease.

Rookie Newsome Wins Sixth; Bosox Defeat Tigers, 6 to 4

Young Righthander's Third Victory in Row Gives Team Series Split; Bridges Routed

Boston, June 19.—Heber "Dick" Newsome, a first-year man, became the Boston Red Sox's leading pitcher today as he racked up his sixth victory—a 6-to-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

The young right-hander, who has lost three games, was found for 11 hits, including homers by Paddy Mullin and Pinky Higgins, but he kept the Tigers in check while the Red Sox bunched their 10 hits off four Detroit pitchers.

Third in Row

The victory, Newsome's third in a row, gave Boston a split in the four-game series and protected the Red Sox's third place position in the league standing.

Boston landed on Tommy Bridges, Detroit's starting pitcher, for four runs in the first two innings—Ted Williams driving in two in the first with a single after Dom DiMaggio walked and Lou Finney doubled, and Finney tripled home two more runs in the second after Bobby Doerr singled and DiMaggio walked a second time.

With this advantage, Newsome worked smoothly and was never seriously threatened.

Giants Beat Pirates, 9-6

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 19.—Harry Danning hit two doubles and a triple to lead a 12-hit assault today as the New York Giants overpowered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 6.

The Pirates made 11 hits and each team used three pitchers in the wild and loose affair, which came up to the eighth inning with the score tied at 6-all.

Time Scout Sets $237 Double in Motion at Charles Town

Meadow Gold Has Part In Big Payoff

Time Her Captures Elks' Day Feature Event; Star Strewn, Glitter Girl Follow

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 19.—Thar' was gold in these here hills today for a few lucky daily double backers. For the investment of a mere $2 in a piece of pasteboard carrying the numbers 6 and 1, they collected $237.60. The big price was the work of W. R. Fairbanks' Time Scout, a $29.80 proposition in the second race, and Meadow Gold, owned by H. R. Dulany, jr., a $13.40 shot, in the third race. Jockey Willie Kelly, leading rider at the meeting, brought Time Scout to the wire and Jockey Butsy Hernandez did the kicking on Meadow Gold.

It was Elks' Day here and two of the races were named for that organization. The outstanding event was the Dr. J. L. Luke Purse, sixth on the program. Mrs. C. C. Rollings' Time Her, a 5-year-old daughter of Time Maker, proved the best in a field of six operating over the short sprint route of about 4½ furlongs. Running like a scared rabbit, Time Her went to the top at once and had her rivals chasing her all the way. Three lengths behind her came Michael Seth's Star Stream, the long shot in the field, to be second two lengths in advance of J. B. Ryston's Glitter Girl.

D. C. Boys Shine

Time Her, excellently handled by Jockey Eddie Churchill, of Washington, D. C. paid her backers a $7.80 mutuel. For the first time in a week, the track was fast and Time Her turned in the respectable time of :50 3-5.

Another Washington boy, Johnny Shanks, turned in a victory on Mrs. W. Robinson's County Cork in the seventh race. The Westwick gelding got to the front on the backstretch and came on to lead Palkin and Sea Finn to the wire. He paid $4.40.

Jockey Sammy Palumbo, a "long-time-no-winner," finally drove H.O. Will's Tavern to victory in the fifth race, the Fraternal Order Eagles' No. 824 purse. Palumbo's backers however, could not outcheer the boos he received when he returned to weigh in. Emma H. was second and Man At Arms third. The winner paid $7.20.

Thursday, June 19, 1941—By Walter Haight.
WEATHER, CLEAR; TRACK, GOOD.

FIRST RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:31½. Off at 2:32. Winner, J. H. Van Wert's br. c. (2), by Rolls Royce—Play Laura. Trained by J. H. Van Wert. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:52⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROLLS ROUGH, $9.80, $3.40, $2.80; SUN MAKER, $2.80, $2.40; COQ A LANE, $3.20.

ROLLS ROUGH forged to the front on the inside early, drew out to a long lead and won with speed in reserve. SUN MAKER, off slowly, raced widest of all and closed with good energy. COQ A LANE was closest to the pace early and faltered. HI TOOTS was hard ridden and had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:05½. Off at 3:06½. Winner, W. R. Fairbanks' b. f. (4), by The Scout—Julep Time. Trained by C. E. Brining. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME SCOUT, $29.80, $10.60, $5.60; SCHLEY BUCK, $10.40, $6.00; PRECIOUS TIME, $5.80.

TIME SCOUT forged to the front early, withstood the bid of PRECIOUS TIME and drew out to win easily. SCHLEY BUCK was a forward factor from the beginning, but was no match for the winner and hung on gamely. PRECIOUS TIME was hard ridden and had no excuses. STRUMMING closed ground in the final stages.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:38. Off at 3:38. Winner, H. R. Dulany, jr.'s b. f. (4), by Sun Meadow—Golden Fizz. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:24.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MEADOW GOLD, $13.40, $7.20, $3.80; PETIT FOURS, $5.80, $3.80; REAL BOY, $5.00.

MEADOW GOLD, allowed to settle into her best stride, gained gradually to the backstretch, overhauled the leaders at the final bend and withstood a drive to win. Bernhardt's claim of foul against the winner was not allowed. PETIT FOURS had a very rough trip and was slightly bothered by the winner at the stretch turn. REAL BOY set a good pace and barely failed to stay. EXPECTED BELLE showed a good effort.

Daily Double—TIME SCOUT and MEADOW GOLD Paid $237.60.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:06½. Off at 4:07½. Winner, Mrs. M. McNeer's b. f. (4), by Espino—Glorify. Trained by J. Day. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RANDLE'S QUEEN, $8.40, $6.20, $4.40; GOLD SWEEP, $10.80, $5.60; ACE OF TRUMPS, $3.00.

RANDLE'S QUEEN, in the first flight from the start, wore down SNUGGLE to take command and was kept to a drive to the end. GOLD SWEEP worked his way to contention on the outside and closed with good energy. ACE OF TRUMPS was close up from the start and hung when placed to pressure. SNUGGLE went to the front under hustling tactics and tired when displaced.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:36. Winner, H. O. Will's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAVERN, $7.20, $4.40, $2.80; EMMA H., $8.20, $4.40; MAN AT ARMS, $5.60.

TAVERN, in the first flight from the start, responded gamely when placed to a drive and was opening a gap at the end. EMMA H. displaced MISS KSAR to take command, could not resist the winner, but was best of the others. MAN AT ARMS was shut off leaving the gate, raced wide and showed an excellent effort. MAEBEAU moved up menacingly and then weakened.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:03. Off at 5:03½. Winner, Mrs. G. C. Rollings' ch. m. (5), by Timemaker—Dunworkin. Trained by S. Luttrell. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME HER, $7.80, $4.80, $3.60; STAR STREWN, $32.20, $5.40; GLITTER GIRL, $3.80.

TIME HER broke alertly, went to the front and drew out to win easily. STAR STREWN was a keen factor on the outside while racing wide and closed gamely. GLITTER GIRL was hard ridden and had no excuses. MISTY EYE saved ground and weakened at the close.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:33. Winner, Mrs. W. Robinson's b. g. (4), by Westwick—Emerald Star. Trained by W. Robinson. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNTY CORK, $8.40, $5.20, $3.00; PALKIN, $3.60, $4.00; SEA FINN, $5.40.

COUNTY CORK, closest to the pace of DARK ACE, forged to the front when placed to a hard drive and was kept to pressure to the end. PALKIN was in the first flight from the start and closed with good energy. SEA FINN moved up menacingly approaching the final bend and faltered. DARK ACE set a good pace and stopped.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:01. Off at 6:02. Winner, A. A. Baldwin's b. f. ALAMODE, outrun early, saved ground to better her position readily and closed with good energy, appearing to get up. BLOX wore down CANROCK to take command and fought it out willingly under good handling. TRANSDAY was in the first flight and weakened in the final furlong. LAST SCAMP saved ground and had no excuses.

Selections at Charles Town

Of course this track was built after Man o' War retired but we may see the famous Black and Yellow colors of the Glen Riddle Farm in action here tomorrow. Samuel D. Riddle's Tall Story, a stake horse, arrived in this section this week, along with War Skipper from the same stable. Tall Story is slated to be entered in the Senator M. O. Rouss handicap. Tall Story's last appearance was in the $10,000 added Rhode Island Handicap last May 3 and he finished fifth, beating Many Stings, winner of the $50,000 Widener. C. Gribben is the trainer of Tall Story. Jockey Johnny Leyland is celebrating his thirty-fifth birthday today. Well, Jockey Sammy Palumbo finally got out of the maiden class and he was forced to smile when he drew the biggest boo of the meeting. The ashes of the great Cavalcade have been placed in front of the stallion barn at the Brookemeade Farm, near Upperville. Mrs. Dodge Sloane intends to place a memorial there to honor the memory of her fine stake performer.

Well they put over County Cork yesterday. The odds dropped from 30-1 to 3-1 and the form reversal was so shocking that the phoney Flamingoes in the infield blushed. Johnny Shanks put up a brilliant ride, however. Art Brown came up for the day's sport. He's been a pretty sick man so I won't rib him. It looks as if we will have to wait for six furlongs at Havre de Grace to catch Mintson. He was a sour favorite yesterday. The thoroughbred classes of the horse show proved interesting. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—MOWMET gives away tons of weight in this but I'm forced to string along with the son of Mowlee. Has won four in a row. MYRTLE M has plenty of speed and is dangerous. SIR JEROME for the minor award.

Second race—OWALLER looks like the solid one in this abbreviated sprint. WESTING is speedy and won when in the same post position. HIBLAZE and HIGH BUD belong close but are very doubtful starters.

Third race—KENNER has been getting ready to turn back such as these and I'm going to take my chances. SAIL BY and LULA KHAYYAM seem to have something on the others. COUNSUELLO and IVONIA are good ones on the reserve list.

Fourth race—TAUT seems well-placed in this rather open affair and will like the fast oval. COUNTERPART is in top form and will be a serious factor. WAR SORROW showed flashes of speed in that first outing.

Fifth race—VANTRYST could be the right one in this field. Needs help from the saddle but I'm going to take my chances. CLOCKS is too consistent to be disregarded. BALKANESE for the minor award.

Sixth race—GARDEN POOL appears to be the right one in this field. Last effort was a fine one. PIMLICO LADY has speed and will be in the thick of contention. BEAMING LADY deserves respect due to light weight.

Seventh race—PAMUNKEY gets the best of the weights in this and may go to the top and stay there. TYR has speed but may not like the 119-pound assignment. CORORA is due to awaken with a bang.

Eighth race—CHALOTAUR is the class of this field despite being on the outside. VICTORY LIGHT and MARY'S BOY to account for the place and show positions.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take DEBLIN, EXHORT and GOANTELL.

Best bet—GARDEN POOL.

Thomas Heads Bank Auditors' Group in D. C.

Lewis E. Thomas is the new chairman of the auditors' section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, it was announced at the annual meeting last night in the Wardman Park Hotel. Mr. Thomas, who is assistant cashier of the Liberty National Bank, succeeds William B. Mehler, jr., assistant cashier of the City Bank.

MR. THOMAS

Other newly named officers of the auditors' group are: vice chairman D. D. Whitcraft, assistant auditor of the Riggs National Bank; secretary, James C. Elgin, of W. B. Hibbs & Co.

The assembly marked conclusion of a year in which the group made the following noteworthy steps:

1—Completion of a six-year survey for the District Bankers Association which will aid local bankers in weeding out their files. The report recommends what to preserve and destroy in old files.

2—Appointment of a committee which acts jointly with a committee from the fiduciary section on study of trust department costs.

Mr. Mehler, retiring chairman, expressed appreciation of the group to A. Scott Offutt, vice president of the City Bank and official representative of the District Bankers Association with the section, for his guidance. A reception and dinner preceded the business meeting after which there was dancing in the Metronome Room.

Included on the guest list were, A. M. McLachlen and Mrs. McLachlen, T. Stanley Holland and Mrs. Holland, John A. Reilly and Mrs. Reilly, Albert S. Gatley and Mrs. Gatley, Donald W. Larson, John M. Christie and Mrs. Christie.

SEC Promotes Treanor

The Securities Commission yesterday appointed James A. Treanor, jr., director of the trading and exchange division, succeeding Ganson Purcell, who was sworn in as a member of the commission. Treanor is a native of Pittsfield, Mass., and practiced law in Boston before coming to Washington with the NRA in 1933. He joined the SEC staff in 1936.

At the same time the commission appointed Walter C. Louchheim, jr., formerly of New York, and Miss Olga M. Steig, formerly of Wisconsin, as assistant directors. Louchheim had been an assistant to the director and Miss Steig was chief of the over-the-counter unit.

How Many Vanishes!

The Treasury says $2,827,790,000 of new Federal Reserve notes (currency) has been issued and $1,414,000,000 of old ones retired this fiscal year. In the similar period a year ago, new bills amounted to $2,019,317,000 and redemptions $1,363,483,000.

Also retired this year were $2,105,042 of Federal Reserve bank notes and $14,755,072 of national bank notes—both types of money no longer issued.

Auto Makers Seen Welcoming Order to Cut 1942 Output

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Automotive Editor

Detroit, June 19.—How far curtailment of new car production in the 1942 model year will affect automobile use during that period is giving motorcar makers and retailers material for much serious thought; they are daily coming to believe more generally that production next year will be geared more closely than ever to actual requirements.

So far as restriction on use is concerned the manufacturers and merchandisers alike assert that such action automatically would cut off a source of large and important revenue to governmental units throughout the land.

There are at present something like 26,000,000 passenger cars licensed for operation in the United States; about two-thirds of that number are vehicles not more than five years old; five million will be less than a year old when the new model period begins on August 1

One fact that has received relatively little notice in connection with rumors of further curtailment in car output is that nobody knows how much contraction in retail demand will develop next year following the tremendous bulge of the 1941 model period.

Many trade observers believe that even had there been no production curtailment edict from the Office of Production Management, an automatic tapering off in car output in 1942 was to be expected. Certainly, they maintain, the demand that required this year's indicated 5,200,000 unit production could not be expected to continue through another 12 months without a breathing spell.

To the statement that this view doesn't allow for probable increased individual incomes during the next year, the trade experts reply that most of this year's car purchases will be paid for out of next year's earnings.

One leading sales manager said recently that if the industry made only 3,200,000 car during the coming model year the merchandising division would have "a real selling job" on its hands. This executive, along with several others, agreed that current heavy sales volume is taking a sizable part of next year's normal market.

Thus it seems safe to say that some curtailment in new car production next year will not be wholly unwelcome to the industry.

Gradually disappearing among the car manufacturers is apprehension over the extent of a probable further curtailment in output. They expect the already ordered 20.15 per cent cut to be increased to perhaps as much as 50 per cent of this year's volume. They do not expect, however, that a complete suspension of production will be ordered.

Parts Shortages Cut Auto Output Slightly in Week

Detroit, June 19 (AP).—The trade paper "Automotive News" says today that materials shortage in several major automobile plants will reduce this week's production of new cars and trucks to 128,865 compared with 129,627 last week. Assemblies this week a year ago totaled 86,623.

The publications says a further decline in production is a "possibility" if a strike at the Douglas & Lamason Auto Parts Co. here not terminated quickly. The company furnishes materials to Chrysler, some General Motors divisions and Ford.

The production survey credits General Motors divisions this week with 55,255 units compared with 55,206 last week, Chrysler with 27,068 this week against 27,545 and Ford with 28,200 compared with last week's 29,154.

$300,000,000 Issue Is Due Next Week

By the Associated Press

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday the Treasury would sell next week on behalf of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation $300,000,000 of new securities for cash.

An additional $211,000,000 of RFC securities will be issued to refund some old RFC securities coming due for payment July 20.

Terms of the financing will be announced later.

Morgenthau gave no reason for the financing but the RFC has approximately $2,700,000,000 of defense commitments. It borrowed $600,000,000 just a month ago.

May Construction Sets 11-Year Top, Dodge Reports

New York, June 19 (AP).—Construction contracts in May were the largest of any month since June, 1930, and amounted to $548,700,000 for the 37 eastern States territory, F. W. Dodge Corp. said today.

This represented an increase of 35 per cent over the preceding month and 65 per cent over May, 1940.

Private ownership construction amounted to $293,864,000, or 54 per cent of the total, while public ownership projects accounted for $254,836,000, or 46 per cent.

One and two family house building continued to be a large factor and contracts represented 28 per cent of the May total. More than 30,000 new dwelling units were provided for by this dollar volume.

U. S. Rubber Use Soars in Period

New York, June 19 (AP).—The Rubber Manufacturers Association reported yesterday that domestic consumption of crude rubber in the first five months of this year exceeded consumption for the entire year 1932.

A leader among raw materials vital to national defense, crude rubber was brought into the country in substantially larger volume in May, but consumption for the month also showed a big jump over the same period last year.

May use was estimated by the association at 71,187 long tons against 71,374 in the preceding month and 54,513 in May, 1940. For the five months consumption was 340,266 tons against 269,467 in the 1940 period. The rubber industry used 332,000 tons in the full year of 1932.

Price Fixing Laid to Dozen Meat Packers

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 19.—A Federal grand jury investigating alleged antitrust activities today returned indictments before Judge John P. Barnes charging 12 companies and individuals with conspiracy to fix prices on sheep sold in the Chicago Livestock Market.

The defendants listed in the indictments were:

The American Meat Institute, a national association of meat packers; Armour & Co.; Swift & Co.; Wilson & Co.; the sheep section of the Chicago subcommittee of the Joint Marketing Improvement Committee; William F. Monia and Walter A. Netsch, sheep buyers for Armour & Co.; John Holmes, president of Swift & Co.; Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board, Wilson & Co.; Charles R. Hood, vice president of Wilson & Co.; and L. Aubrey Williams, listed as an order buyer for Eastern packers; and Paul C. Smith, vice president of Swift & Co.

The sheep section of the subcommittee was described as an organization of buyers and sellers.

Daniel Britt, head of the Chicago antitrust division of the Justice Department, said additional charges in the indictment, charged that the Swift and Wilson companies exchanged information on the quantity of sheep purchased by each and disclosed each other's market position with relation to the agreed share of each in the receipt of sheep at the Chicago Livestock Market.

Judge Barnes set bond at $1,000 for each defendant. Maximum penalty on conviction would be one year in prison and $5,000 fine.

Oil Production Mounts in Week

New York, June 19 (AP).—Daily average crude oil production increased 6,050 barrels last week, the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute disclosed today. Daily production averaged 3,822,750 barrels compared with 3,816,200 a year ago.

Operations of reporting refineries declined to 87.6 per cent from 90.7 per cent the week before. Runs of crude oil to stills for the industry as a whole were estimated at 3,755,000 barrels a day against 3,880,000 the previous week and 3,608,000 a year ago.

Gasoline production declined to an estimated 12,646,000 barrels for the week from 13,294,000 the previous week. Gasoline stocks were reduced to 92,478,000 barrels at the end of the week compared with 92,932,000 (revised) a week earlier. A year ago stocks totaled 97,700,000 barrels.

New Ordnance Plant Goes Into Production

Canton, Ohio, June 19 (AP).—The $16,000,000 Canton naval ordnance plant went into limitted production today—several weeks ahead of schedule and only 143 days after ground was broken for the project.

The plant will make gun mounts, recoil mechanisms, torpedo tubes and similar items. Operated by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the plant at full production will employ about 3,000 skilled workers.

Shoe Output in May Shows 36% Increase

New York, June 19 (AP).—The Tanners' Council of America today estimated shoe production in May amounted to 41,000,000 pairs, 36 per cent above the 30,139,000 pairs for May, 1940, and a new high for the month.

Including the estimate for May, production in the first five months of the year was placed at 201,527,000 pairs, an increase of 19.9 per cent over the production of 168,138,000 pairs in the same 1940 period.

Singer Shareholders' Suti Is Dismissed

New York, June 19 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Lloyd Church has dismissed two stockholder suits to compel the Singer Manufacturing Co. and six directors to render an accounting.

The stockholders had charged that investments of $84,000,000 in United States Treasury notes, Canadian, State, municipal and railway bonds were "excessive and unwarranted," and that the company had $47,000,000 in surplus and undivided profits —"an unnecessary reserve." They asked distribution of profits.

The court ruled that the complaint failed to allege more than general allegations of wrongdoing, based on undisclosed facts, "thus not stating a cause of action."

Wholesale Commodity Index Rises in Week

By the Associated Press

The Bureau of Labor statistics reported yesterday an increase of .9 per cent in the general level of wholesale commodity prices for the week ended June 14 due largely to continuing price increases for farm products and foods.

The bureau's price index now stands at 86.7 per cent of the 1926 average as compared with 77.4 per cent a year ago.

Banks' Idle Cash Drops $180,000,000

By the Associated Press

Quarterly income tax payments took a $180,000,000 bite out of idle funds in the Nation's banks last week.

The Federal Reserve Board said last night that because of large withdrawals to meet June 15 income tax liabilities, lendable excess reserves of banks declined by that amount and reached a total of $5,310,000,000 in the week ended June 18.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended June 18 member bank reserves balances decreased $181,000,000. Reductions in member bank reserves arose from increases of $83,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $40,000,000 in money in circulation, $18,000,000 in Treasury cash and $56,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and a decrease of $8,000,000 in reserve bank credit, offset in part by increases of $19,000,000 in gold stock and $4,000,000 in Treasury currency. Excess reserves of member banks on June 18 were estimated to be approximately $5,310,000,000, a decrease of $180,000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended June 18, 1941, were reported as follows:

Pennsylvania Oil Price Is Boosted 20c a Barrel

Pittsburgh, June 19 (AP).—An advance of 20 cents a barrel in the price of three grades of Pennsylvania crude oil was announced last night by the Joseph Seep purchasing agency of the South Penn Oil Co., boosting the quotation on the Bradford-Allegany grade to $2.75.

Southwest Pennsylvania oil was advanced to $2.50 and Eureka to $2.34 a barrel.

It was the sixth rise since last November 12, and brought the price to the same level that prevailed between January 1, 1940, and May 21, 1940. Bradford-Allegany quotations were dropped 25 cents a barrel just a year ago today and reached a low in the down swing of $1.85 last August.

Increasing demand was given as reason for the price rise.

A new record was established in May for deliveries of crude oil through Eastern pipe lines, 22,840,000 barrels, against 21,010,000 barrels in May, 1940. For the first five months of 1941 deliveries amounted to 100,283,000 barrels, compared to 94,910,000 barrels in the same 1940 period.

SEC Issues Report On 'Unseasoned' Stocks

The Securities Commission made public yesterday a study showing that issues succeeded in selling less than one-fourth of the dollar amount of "unseasoned" securities registered from July, 1933, through 1939.

"Unseasoned" securities are those of new enterprises having only brief business records, and usually are common stock.

Saying that sales for the period totaled $97,832,000, the report added that "this relatively small aggregate figure eloquently testifies to the conservative character of the new issue market during recent years."

Insurance Sales Rise Seen Inflation Check

Philadelphia, June 19 (AP).—Harry T. Wright, of Chicago, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, said here today that a rising trend of life insurance sales is an important factor in removing fear of possible inflation.

"Savings, particularly insurance savings, have the effect of deferring consumer demand for goods and services, thus relieving the pressure of price increases," he told a session of the Philadelphia Association of Life Underwriters.

18.7 Billion Pounds Of Meat Eaten in '40

Chicago, June 19 (AP).—The National Live Stock and Meat Board reported today that approximately 18,712,000,000 pounds of meat were consumed last year, or an increase of more than 250,000,000 pounds over 1939.

The board placed the Nation's meat animal population at 143,000,000 head, stating it was "ample to insure a plentiful supply."

Rail Issue Approved

The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Southern Pacific Co. yesterday to issue $14,625,000 of equipment trust certificates in connection with the procurement of new equipment.

New York Cotton

New York, June 19 (AP).—Abruptly changing its course in late trading today cotton futures erased substantial losses and closed 13 to 17 points higher.

The market turned on a stepping up of trade and mill demand with some aggressive bidding for account of New Orleans interests.

Buying interest broadened in the worth Street textile market but again scarcity of fabrics for nearby deliveries reduced volume. Prices were firm.

Confusing War News Slows Stock Trade; Prices Are Mixed, With Little Change

New York, June 19.—Stocks rallied and slipped at intervals in today's market and, despite a little buying support in the final hour, closing trends were irregular.

The list had a fair amount of business optimism to go on but confusing war developments, including the German-Turkish friendship pact, the question of a Nazi-Red break and doubts regarding outcome of the British campaigns in Syria and Africa, served to keep many potential buyers in the background. Widening of the rift between Washington and Berlin also inspired caution marketwise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 41.8 after having been off .2 of a point at noon. Except for several large blocks of low-priced stocks, dealings were relatively light throughout, transfers totalled 459,590 shares compared with 576,240 yesterday.

Commodities generally took on a firmer tone in the concluding hour and this steadied sentiment in the securities division to some extent. Bonds were mixed.

On the side of recovery forces were: Another jump in bank clearings to a peak since 1938; an 80 per cent increase in heavy construction awards over this time last year; mounting orders for railway equipment to meet defense requirements, and the sale of a stock exchange seat for $28,000, up $2,000 from the last previous transfer.

Chrysler got up 1⅛ points and General Motors ⅛ as opinions varied as to just how much of a curtailment in production would be necessary because of shortage of materials. Some expressed the view the cut would not be as severe as had been predicted.

Commonwealth and Southern turned over in blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares, unchanged at 7-16. This company's senior stock, though, was up 2 points at a new 1941 top, reflecting decision of the concern to abide by integration provisions of the holding company law and dispose of some of its Northern properties. American car and foundry preferred also touched a new high for the move.

At the finish modest improvement was shown for United States Steel, Loft, United States Rubber, United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Kennecott, American Smelting, John-Manville and Du Pont.

Standard Oil (N. J.) and Texas Corporation backed away as Federal Price Administrator Henderson requested the industry to make no further price advances without consulting his agency. Lower were American Telephone, Great Northern, Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Eastman Kodak.

In a spotty Curb, rising inclinations were exhibited by Glen Alden Coal, Cities Service, American Cyanamid "B" and Phoenix securities. In arrears were Aluminum of America, Bell Aircraft, Humble Oil and Le Tourneau. Volume here was around 75,000 shares against 91,000 Wednesday.

A few firm spots dotted today's bond market but the trend was decidedly irregular in the main corporate list. Belgian issues again were strong.

United States Governments maintained a steady undertone but changes either way were neglible, both on the stock exchange and over the counter.

Department Stores' Operating Profits Estimated Higher

New York, June 19 (AP).—Department and specialty stores' operating profits are expected to exceed 3 per cent in 1941, the Controllers' Congeress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association announced today.

In its annual survey of merchandising and operating results of such stores, the organization announced the estimate based "on the premise that the remaining part of the year will show about the same degree of improvement" as the 14 per cent gain experienced for the first five months of 1941.

This estimate was made with the provision that "emphasis of expense control is placed on dollars of expenditure rather than percentage, and provided, further, the Government takes no steps to limit margins or to restrict materially purchasing power."

25,000 Shoe Workers Get Wage Increase

St. Louis, June 19 (AP).—International Shoe Co. announced today a further increase in wages would be made July 13 for 25,000 of its factory piece-work and hourly paid employes.

The increase, together with other adjustments made in recent weeks, amounts to about 10 per cent on the average although it varies somewhat in different plants, the company said.

150,000 Tons of Rail Ordered by Pennsy

Philadelphia, June 19 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today it had placed orders for 150,000 tons of new steel rail—enough, officials said, to lay almost 700 miles of track when rolled.

It was the second big order by the railroad in as many days. Yesterday the company disclosed it had placed orders for $23,000,000 worth of new equipment to meet increasing demands for shipment of defense materials.

Mill Buying Rallies Wheat; Close Is Strong

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 19.—Frequent buying spurts during execution of orders placed by mills, possibly in connection with flour business, and by previous "short" sellers lifted wheat prices at times today a cent a bushel from the two weeks low point to which they receded yesterday.

The market closed on one of these bulges, with net gains of ½ to 1 cent compared with yesterday, July 99⅝ to 99¾, September 101¾ to 101½. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ higher, July 73¼, September 75¼; oats unchanged to ⅛ lower; soybeans 1⅞ to 2¾ higher; rye unchanged to ½ higher and lard unchanged to 3 higher.

Part of the strength of wheat was associated with fresh gains in the soybean pit, trade was restricted, however, by rumors about German-Russian relations. Increased hedging and spreading sales, as well as the prospects of expanding harvesting operations and wheat movement, checked demand.

Grain men said the market has had to contend with some hedging associated with unusual preharvest movement of old wheat which is competing with new grain. They said this wheat apparently is being sold by interests who hold it either under loan or at private risk in the hope of getting higher prices following establishment of the new loan rate.

Soybean gains in late trading was associated with a rally of cottonseed oil, cotton and lard futures and further strength in hogs.

Cotton Jumps In Late Deals

Hesitant action in many of the New York commodity exchanges after a notable advance in prices since early June was attributed by brokers to indications of closer scrutiny of the commodity price structure by OPM executives.

Closing ranges of important New York futures markets were: Santos Coffee, down .06 to .13 of a cent a pound; cottonseed oil, up .06 of a cent to .03 of a cent lower; wool tops, down .3 to .5 of a cent; domestic sugar, down .02 of a cent; cocoa, down .02 to .04 of a cent; rubber, up .06 to.09 of a cent; silk, down 2 to 3½ cents; hides, up .04 of a cent to .11 of a cent lower.

There were numerous strong spots in cash markets. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 spot wholesale staples adavnced to another new four-year high at 87.68 per cent of the 1926 average, against 87.54 per cent Wednesday.

Week's Loadings Advance 1.2%

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 862,975 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was an increase of 10,035 cars, or 1.2 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 150,054 cars, or 21.0 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 229,020 cars, or 36.1 per cent, compared with 1939.

Walsh Rites To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for John Butler Walsh, Washington attorney, who died yesterday after a brief illness, will be held tomorrow at Ives funeral parlor, in Clarendon, Va. Interment will be at Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Walsh was the son of the late Dr. John E. Walsh, physician on Admiral Peary's North Pole expedition, and Florence Butler Walsh. He was born in Washington and attended the University of Pennsylvania and George Washington University, receiving his law degree from the latter university in 1922.

After graduating from law school, Mr. Walsh went to New York, where he was a lawyer for the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York City. He remained in this position until 1928, when he married and returned to Washington. In 1930, Mr. Walsh took a position as attorney in the Federal Trade Commission, where he stayed until the creation of the SEC in 1933.

Shortly before his death, Mr. Walsh was appointed principal attorney in the utilities division of the SEC. He would have been 41 years old on June 23.

Surviving Mr. Walsh are his wife, Mrs. Helen Lewis Walsh, and a brother, Humphrey M. Walsh, both of Washington.

R. F. McMillan, Retired Employe Of ICC, Buried

The funeral of Robert Finley McMillan, 74, retired employe of the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, who died at his home at Chevy Chase Tuesday after a long illness, took place yesterday from the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda. The services were conducted by the Rev. Joseph E. Williams, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Bethesda, and burial was in Glenwood Cemetery, Washington.

Mr. McMillan is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hannah McMillan; two daughters, Mrs. Carl Hahn, Washington; and Mrs. Henry L. Benson, Jr., Chevy Chase; and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Baines, Washington; and Mrs. Mary Bates, Trenton, N. J. He was a native of Washington and lived here until he moved to Chevy Chase about 17 years ago. He was long connected with the Government service.

James Martines' Funeral Today

Funeral services for James Edward Martines, 79, who died at the Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, on Tuesday, after a short illness, will take place at 2:30 p. m. today at the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda. The Rev. D. Wade Safford, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Kensington, will officiate and burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

Mr. Martines, who was a lifelong resident of the Kensington area, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Griffin, Kensington, and Mrs. David Penn, Forest Glen, and two sons, Ernest Martines, Forest Glen, and Preston Martines, Kensington. For 40 years and at the time of his death he was in the employ of a Washington drug exchange.

Horace Epes, News Editor, Dies at 59

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 19 (AP). Horace Epes, 59, a news editor in the Associated Press Washington bureau during the World War years, died tonight. On duty when the Armistice was signed, he helped direct the Washington coverage.

After the war, he became assistant to Benjamin Winchell, southern regional director of the United States Railway Administration. He left that post in 1920 to become associated with David Lawrence on the Consolidated Press Association. On January 7, 1928, he was named general manager and executive vice president of Consolidated Press.

When Consolidated Press affiliated with the North American Newspaper Alliance in 1933, Epes was named general manager of Consolidated News Features, which handled comics and mail matter. He held that position until he became seriously ill in 1939.

'Ideal Dad' Takes Family to Movies

Lawrence W. Conant, of 3063 Ordway Street Northwest, Social Security Board executive, who last week was adjudged by The Post Washington's ideal father, took his wife and three children to the movies last night.

They saw the show at the Loew's Palace as the guests of the management—one of the prizes for the selection.

IN MEMORIAM.

VANCE, JENNIE MARIE. In sad but loving remembrance of our dear and departed daughter and sister, JENNIE MARIE VANCE, who left us 5 years ago today, June 20, 1936.

Just a loving thought,
Just a silent tear,
Just a beautiful memory
Of one we loved so dear.

Mother and Father, Sister, Brothers and Aunt Bettie.

ODD BODKINS — By FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

NOW DON'T GET CANTANKEROUS, GRANDMAW TWEEDY! I ONLY PUT HIM IN JAIL TO SCARE HIM!
WELL SEE IF YOU HAVE ANYTHING AROUND HERE THAT CAN SCARE ME!
I GOT OL' DOC HOOPER TALKIN' TO HIM!!
I WON'T HAVE THAT WALKING HICCUP INFLUENCING HIM!
YOU CAN'T BE ONE O' THEM SUPERMEN — YOU WERE PUT ON EARTH TO GET BLACK-EYES — NOT GIVE 'EM!
THERE ARE GIVERS AND TAKERS — YOU'RE A TAKER. IF THAT WASN'T SO, NATURE WOULDA BUILT YOUR MUSCLES BIGGER THAN YOUR CHIN!
YES, SIR!

WINNIE'S BOSS, MR. CRUCIBLE, JUST TOLD THE BIG CHIEF HE INTENDED CHANGING FROM FORMULA NO. 1 TO NO. 2 IN THE MANUFACTURE OF A NEW BOMB. ON ENTERING THE NEXT OFFICE HE OVERHEARD WINNIE ON THE PHONE SAYING- "HE SAID TO CHANGE FROM FORMULA NO. 1 TO NO. 2."
BUT, MR. CRUCIBLE, I WASN'T DIVULGING ANY SECRETS! I-I-ER-SHOULD EXPLAIN, I SUPPOSE, THAT I'M REALLY MRS. WRIGHT---
SO! YOU CAME HERE AS MISS WINKLE AND IT TURNS OUT YOU ARE MRS. WRIGHT!
I WAS ONLY TELEPHONING MY MOTHER TO CHANGE MY TWIN BABIES' FOOD FORMULA FROM NO. 1 TO NO. 2 ----
OH, AND NOW YOU HAVE TWINS, EH?
BEFORE YOU TELL ME YOU'RE A GRANDMOTHER AND HAVE GREAT GRANDCHILDREN, YOU'D BETTER GET YOUR MONEY FROM THE CASHIER AND GO! YOU'RE FIRED!

WE'LL FIND A WAY— FIRST, YOU GET YOUR PICTURES!
WHILE THEIR RIVAL—
BUT I'VE GOT TO GET A LINE OUT— I'M HI CALBER, THE NEWSPAPER MAN—
I DON'T CARE IF YOU'RE THE SULTAN OF PERSIA— THE OUTSIDE LINES ARE ALL DOWN!
YOU MIGHT TRY THE TELEGRAPH OFFICE— I HEAR THEY STILL HAVE ONE LINE OPEN!

SWIFTLY THE WALLS CLOSE IN ON THE TWO HAPLESS VICTIMS....
ANOTHER MOMENT-- AND YOU'LL BE DEAD!
THAT IS OPEN TO CONJECTURE!
HELP ME- HELP ME! I'M BEING CRUSHED!
IT SEEMS TO ME YOU SHOULD HAVE THOUGHT OF THAT BEFORE PUTTING YOURSELF IN THIS UNCOMFORTABLE POSITION.
SUPERMAN BRACES A HAND AGAINST EACH WALL--THEN SHOVES CLEAR THRU THE METAL FOLDS!
HE DIED IN THE TRAP OF HIS OWN MAKING. TOO BAD, BUT IT'S SMALL LOSS TO THE WORLD!

Listen!
with Glynn

WJSV just goes shuffling along in a big way tonight.

Meaning by that that three of its popular programs are being shuffled around so that everybody—meaning sponsors, artists, the broadcasting people and, oh yes, presumably listeners—will be pleased.

Actress Ilka Chase's sprightly new show, "Penthouse Party," is to be heard at 9 now instead of 9:30 p. m. as on previous weeks, so that now she can sincerely say "Come earlier." Her featured guests, incidently, are to be H. V. Kaltenborn, the news analyst, who's usually not much in the party line, and Larry Adler, the harmonica virtuoso.

"Hollywood Premiere," which you've been hearing from 9 to 9:30 p. m. each Friday, under the new programming is heard at 8:30 p. m., getting ahead of things as all premieres should. Its presentation tonight is to be an adaptation of the forthcoming picture, "Blossoms in the Dust," starring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon. Louella Parsons, the movie columnist and mistress of ceremonies, is to bring news and gossip of Hollywood during the intermission.

Then "Proudly We Hail," the new defense series which has been heard on Sunday afternoons, makes it Friday night debut over WJSV at 9:30 p. m. Edwin C. Hill is to be the narrator and Fibber McGee and Molly will be the featured guests. This program, approved by William S. Knudsen of OPM, pays tribute to the men and women who are building our defenses.

Contract Bridge

It is not enough to bid and make games; we must be able to defend them as well. The East and West players of today's hand were very unhappy when they found they had won no match points for their defense of four spades. Declarer South made an overtrick by stripping his and dummy's hand and throwing East in the lead to gain a ruff and a discard. In this way declarer eliminated a heart loser, of which he had two; he lost only a club and a heart trick.

But East could have defeated the end-play had he been more alert. Do you see how? Here is the way declarer managed the hand; The ace of clubs won the first trick and a club was continued. South trumping. The spade finesse was next taken successfully and the spade ace killed the king. Dummy's last club was trumped in the closed hand and a low heart was played to the ace. Declarer was hoping to win an extra trick if either East or West held a heart honor guarded only once and failed to throw it under the ace. East did not see what was coming and played a low heart on the ace. Now declarer ran his three diamonds and played a low heart. East had to win his lone king and was forced to return either a club or a diamond, which allowed South to trump in his hand and throw off a heart loser from dummy. The last two tricks were taken with dummy's high spades and South claimed five spades, losing only a heart and a club.

Had East the foresight to throw his heart king under the ace, declarer would have lost two tricks in hearts, as West would have won both the ten and queen when declarer next led the suit. Only four hearts would have been made, for an average score.

Fort Belvoir Shifts Affect 2,000 Troops

Shifts affecting some 2,000 officers and men have taken place this week at the huge Engineer post at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Opening of two senior R. O. T. C. schools brought 400 student officers to Belvoir, 345 in the Engineer course and 60 to study Cavalry tactics. Under Col. E. D. Ardery, professor of military science and tactics at Pennsylvania State College, they will remain until June 27. The machine gun troop, Third Cavalry, from Fort Myer, is stationed at Belvoir to assist in the Cavalry school.

Belvoir lost 1,000 selectees from Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York, when the Seventh Training Battalion was transferred to Langley Field, Va., for duty. The men have completed basic training at the Engineer Replacement Center.

The 711th Railway Battalion, activated Tuesday, moved into offices in Flagler Hall yesterday and began organization under Lieut. Col. M. J. Noyes. The battalion, which is attached to the Engineer School, is scheduled to leave Belvoir August 1 for Camp Claiborne, La.

Also activated this week was the 410th Park Battalion, assembled from the Fifty-sixth and 394th Engineer Companies, and Company F, Forty-fourth Engineers, and experimental equipment company.

14,000 Men Reviewed At Fort Eustis

Fort Eustis, Va., June 19 (AP).—Under a clear sky with a typical June sun beaming down, 14 training battalions, consisting of 1,000 men each, stationed at Fort Eustis, Coast Artillery replacement training center, passed in review today before commanding officers of the three Coast Artillery replacement centers of the United States.

The troops were reviewed from a stand erected on the parade ground, in front of the post hospital, by Brig. Gen. Harold F. Nichols, U. S. Army, post commander. He had as his guests for the review Brig. Gen. John B. Maynard, U. S. Army, commanding general of Camp Wolters, Tex., and Brig. Gen. Francis P. Hardway, U. S. Army, commanding general of Camp Callan, La Jolla, Calif.

Some 1,000 or more persons, including officers and enlisted men not taking part in the review, and hundreds of civilians, both men and women, watched the first general review of the Eustis selectees.

Following the review, the two visiting generals extended congratulations to Gen. Nichols on the condition and showing of the troops in their first big review since reporting for service in the new U. S. Army.

'Enemy' Is Routed In Caroline County

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., June 19 (AP).—The 113th combat team, commanded by Col. D. John Markey, forced the enemy "Red" reinforced regiment represented by 13 men out of their position and into the southwest here today as the Fifty-eighth Brigade unit completed a week of training and prepared to return tomorrow to Fort George G. Meade, Md.

The enemy regiment was stronger than its numbers would indicate. The battle was one of power and tactics versus red and blue flags that represented firing superiority. Five umpires—three for the "Reds" and two for the attackers—conferred on the situation and determined which outfit was entitled to the firing advantage. One wrong move could quickly change the situation and reverse the fire control.

Four Criminal Courts for D. C.

Four justices will hold criminal sessions in the District Court next week, the first time so many criminal courts have been held at once here.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat announced the assignment, to deal with the congested criminal docket. District Attorney Edward M. Curran said that 175 criminal cases are pending, with 50 accused persons in jail awaiting trial.

Presiding in the criminal courts will be Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle, of the Southern Illinois District, here for three weeks on "loan" duty; Justice F. Dickinson Letts, Justice Jesse C. Adkins and Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

Maj. Bowes Under Knife

New York, June 19 (AP).—Maj. Edward Bowes, radio impresario, underwent a hernia operation at Doctors Hospital today. The operation was described as "totally successful."

Reunion With Dad

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

R. A. F. FLIER SEES CHILDREN—Leader Roy Darbishire, R. A. F. ferry pilot, greets his children in Halifax after they flew from Austin, Tex., to see him. The children are Nadia, 5 (left), and Callum, 17 months. They have been living in Austin with Mrs. J. C. Hormel for the past 11 months and when Darbishire flew in from England on an official mission, she took the children to Halifax for a reunion. With them was Gillian George, a niece of Darbishire, who has also been making her home with the Hormels

Rep. Caroline O'Day Breaks Hip in Fall

Port Chester, N. Y., June 19 (AP).—Representative Caroline O'Day (Democrat), of New York, broke her hip in a fall at her home in Rye yesterday and was taken to United Hospital here. Recuperating for several months from a serious illness, she had been unable to attend the present session of Congress.

A Year of Warfare

London, June 19.—The fleet of 264 American ambulances operating in Britain today finished their first year on the job, in which they traveled 1,728,992 miles.

Sir Gerald to Speak At Md. Bar Session

Baltimore, June 19 (AP).—Sir Gerald Campbell, of the British Embassy in Washington, will be the principal speaker at the banquet of the forty-sixth annual convention of the Maryland State Bar Association next week in Atlantic City.

More than 20 members are expected to attend the meeting, opening June 26.
